G. M. PRICE HIKE

The Upward Revision Will Apply to All the Passenger Motor Cars.

MARKUP OF 2 TO 6 PER CENT

BOOST ON OTHER LINES

Same Pattern Is Planned for the Firm's Nonautomotive Products.

Detroit, Aug. 1.(AP)—General Motors corporation today announced a 2 to 6 per cent increase in the list price of all passenger cars, effective immediately.

"Price adjustments on specific models and body styles will be established individually by the divisions involved," the announcement said.

Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet passenger cars were affected.

Cadillac raised its prices from $66 to $168, Buick from $60 to $139 and Oldsmobile from $85 to $100. There was no immediate announcement from the other divisions.

Cites Cost Increase.

C. E. Wilson, president, said the company's first general price boost since last November was necessitated because "increased costs of both labor and materials are now too great for General Motors to possibly absorb through improved processing and the use of better machines and tools, or from any potential increase in volume."

He cited what he termed a 12 per cent increase in labor costs because of April's wage agreement with the C. I. O. United Auto Workers, as well as rising costs of steel, pig iron and other materials.

Wilson said there would be no further increases on G. M. C. trucks, for which new prices were announced earlier this week.

Parts Prices Hold.

Nor would there be any general price adjustments on automotive service parts, he added.

Price increases on nonautomotive products will follow the same general pattern as for passenger cars and trucks, Wilson added.

"The price increases now being made cover but a part of the increased labor and material costs," his announcement continued.

"As a result of the new wage contract with the U. A. W.-C. I. O., effective April 24, 1947, labor costs were increased 12 per cent. Steel costs have now risen 17 per cent since November, 1946. During this same period, pig iron prices have increased 29 per cent, copper 26 per cent, coal 22 per cent, tin 22 per cent, lead 43 per cent, cotton 23 per cent and wool 12 per cent. These figures clearly indicate the inflation that has occurred."

Wage Hikes a Cause.

General Motors granted the U. A. W.-C. I. O. an 11½-cent wage increase plus six paid annual holidays, estimating the over-all boost at that time as equivalent to 15 cents hourly.

Wilson said General Motors was able to show "reasonably satisfactory earnings" for the first half of 1946 "through liquidation of lower priced materials."

(General Motors Tuesday reported net income for the first six months of $147,622,834, equal after preferred dividends to $3.20 a share on common stock.)

"These materials, purchased at lower prices, have now been consumed and must be replaced at the current higher prices," Wilson stated.

CARY STRONG FOR PARTIES.

Movie Star Says He Enjoyed Hughes Gatherings.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.(AP)—Cary Grant, actor, sailed for England today aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth.

Grant told newsmen he attended many parties given by Howard Hughes, aircraft manufacturer, but said none was connected with politics or government so far as he knew.

"Why not go to parties?" he asked. "The world would be a dull place without parties. If they pass a law against parties while I am away, please let me know."

Grant said he would arrange with movie producers for reproduction in England of films in which he will play.

After a brief respite, the weather is becoming progressively warmer and the temperature by tomorrow afternoon, in the opinion of the forecaster, will be crowding 100. Sunday has not been brought within the forecast, but the outlook now is that, under continuing fair skies, the thermometer will register between 100 and 103 degrees Sunday afternoon.

Tonight is expected to bring a drop to the middle 70s. Early today the thermometer stood at 73 from 2 to 7 o'clock inclusive.

A BONANZA IN SALES TAX.

At Present Rate, Missouri Will Collect 61 Million This Year.

JEFFERSON CITY, August 1.(AP)—Missouri's 2 per cent sales tax brought in $5,677,347 this month, the state revenue department reported. The total for the first seven months this year is $35,738,570.

The 7-month figure was within 6 million dollars of the 1945 total and represented a gain of $6,193,163 over collections for the first seven months of 1946.

Last year the tax brought in about 53 million dollars. If collections for the remainder of this year stand up, the tax will amount to more than 61 million dollars for the 12-month period.

A RECESS BY U. S. JURY.

No Vote Fraud Indictments Are Returned Yet.

No indictment or report was made today by the special federal grand jury investigating alleged vote frauds when it recessed until 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The jury foreman, John W. Garrett, Joplin, Mo., told Judge Albert A. Ridge that the jury did not have a report today. Outside the courtroom, Garrett declined to say if a vote had been taken.

There were no witnesses this morning. The jury reported to Judge Ridge at 11:30 o'clock.

Since Tuesday the jury has interviewed witnesses from the fifth precinct of the second ward.

There was some speculation that the refusal by Garrett to comment on a vote might indicate that a vote had already been made, but the jury would not release any indictment until it reconvenes Tuesday.

SHOW AIR MIGHT

Spectacular Display Celebrates the Fortieth Anniversary of the Defense Arm.

A RECORD B-29 FLIGHT

Seven Bombers Fly From Tokyo to Washington in 30 Hours 55 Minutes.

Several Speed Records Are Established by P-80 Jet Fighter Planes.

Washington, Aug. 1.(AP)—The army air forces put on a spectacular, nation-wide sky show today with seven giant B-29s setting a Tokyo-Washington mass flight record and speedy jet fighters new unofficial marks to Washington from Miami, Chicago and New York.

Across the nation the A. A. F. exhibited its planes to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the nation's air defense arm, now co-equal with the army and navy under the recently-approved armed forces unification legislation.

Nearly 31 Hours.

The seven B-29s from Tokyo started landing at near-by Andrews Field, Md., headquarters of the strategic air forces, at 10:20 a. m. (Kansas City time).

The flight from Japan was made in thirty hours and fifty-five minutes. This included approximately forty-eight minutes used in a rendezvous over Martinsburg, W. Va., and circling Andrews Field, while escorts landed first.

There were twenty-four of the jet-fighters in the windup of the 7,000-mile flight across the Pacific.

The seven B-29s passed over the nation's capital in two V formations.

On landing at Andrews, Lieut. Col. Howard F. Hugos, commander of the fleet, said:

"I am well pleased with the flight."

One B-29 in Late.

Hugos said it was "a bad break" that an eighth superfortress was forced to leave the others at Anchorage, Alaska—the only stop—when it developed minor trouble. The eighth plane is continuing on to Washington.

"All credit goes to the final maintenance the fine grounds crews gave us in Japan," Hugos said.

Lieut. Horace C. Nichols of Ardmore, Ok., on landing his plane found all four blads of one engine's propeller badly nicked.

"No wonder that engine was running rough," he grinned and added, "We are all mighty tired but we are mighty proud too."

The flight was the longest and fastest 1-stop flight for heavy bombers ever made. Crowds lined Andrews Field as the B-29s came in.

Maj. Gen. Clement McMullen, strategic air command chief of staff, accepted from Hugos a package from Lieut. Gen. E. C. Whitehead, commander of the Far Eastern air forces. The package was directed to General Carl Spaatz, commander in- chief of the air forces.

New Records by P-80s.

Three army P-80 Shooting Stars set unofficial speed records to Washington today from Miami, Chicago and New York.

Lieut. J. R. Howard flew a jet fighter from Miami to Andrews Field, in 2 hours, 1 minute and 2 seconds, averaging about 480 miles an hour for the 970-mile trip.

Capt. A. J. Meancon brought a P-80 into Andrews on a 220-mile mourse from Mitchell field, New York, in 24 minutes, 15 seconds.

Maj. Donald E. Griffin came in from Chicago, about 600 miles by air, in 1 hour, 11 minutes, 40 seconds. Lieut. Fred J. Haupt trailed him by fifty-one seconds in another P-80.

In New York, an air armada of about 140 planes roared across the city. And along the eastern seaboard—helping the A. A. F. celebrate—a squadron of British R. A. F. 4-engined Lincoln bombers flew over cities on a 1,400-mile sweep. The British, A. A. F. guests, were to return to Andrews Field here.

Federal Tax Collected in Eastern Missouri Shows Drop.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.(AP)—Federal tax collections in the eastern district of Missouri were approximately 38 million dollars, or 4.8 per cent, less in the 1946-47 fiscal year which ended June 30 than in the preceding year, James P. Finnegan, internal revenue collector, reported today.

Treasury records show the decline for the country as a whole was 3.8 per cent. Repeal of the excess profits tax accounted for the drop.

In St. Louis and the fifty-four counties in the Eastern Missouri district, collections in 1945-46 totaled $784,475,267, compared with $746,505,281 in 1946-47.

GIRL GIVES HER VERSION OF TROUBLE ON CAR RIDE.

R. L. Nafziger, Jr., Who Disputes Assertions of Miss Gwenn Darnell, to Prosecutor Later Today.

R. L. Nafziger, jr., 27 years old, son of Ralph L. Nafziger, sr., president of the Interstate Bakeries corporation of Chicago, was to be taken before the prosecutor this afternoon in connection with the blows and scratches Miss Gwenn Darnell, 20, of 321 Ward parkway, alleges he inflicted on her in his motor car last night. She attributes the attack to jealousy.

The attractive brown-eyed brunette signed a statement to police today asserting that the only blow she struck in the scuffle was not before Nafziger struck her, as he told the police, but in self-defense after he had hit her on the head about eight times and had twisted and pinched her left arm, inflicting painful bruises.

THEN SHE HIT HIM.

After he did those things, Miss Darnell said, she struck him on the head with the heel of a shoe.

The whole incident happened as she left work in the Country Club plaza district yesterday, she said. She is a stenographer at a motor company. Miss Darnell said Nafziger seized her arm as she left the company and thrust her into his motor car. He then began to drive, stopping occasionally to strike her, she said.

Miss Darnell said she did not know where he was driving her until she saw the Fairway theater in Johnson County, Kansas. There Nafziger threatened to make her get out and walk home, she said.

She prevailed upon him to take her to her home in the Villa Serena apartment building, she said, then he left her.

She informed police of the incident, and went to the General hospital for treatment of scratches and bruises on the face and head and bruises on both arms and legs.

Lithographer Pickets Shut Down Thirty-Three Firms.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.(AP)—A strike of 375 members of the C. I. O. Amalgamated Lithographers union today closed thirty-three St. Louis commercial printing firms. Approximately 5,000 employees of the firms, members of other unions, refused to cross picket lines.

The walkout followed a strike vote by the union which has been negotiating with the Associated Printers and Lithographers of St. Louis, Inc., an owners' association, over wages and length of work week.

MARSHALL TO GO TO RIO.

Secretary of State Will Head U. S. Delegation to Conference.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.(AP)—Secretary Marshall will head an official United States delegation of six to the Inter-American defense conference at Rio de Janiero, the State department announced today.

Marshall will have the status of plenipotentiary delegate and chairman. William D. Pawley, ambassador to Brazil, was named ambassador and delegate.

The others with delegate rank are:

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Connally of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee; Representative Bloom of New York, ranking minority member of the house foreign affairs committee, and Warren R. Austin, U. S. representative to the United Nations.

Including advisers, an initial group of thirty-nine will attend the conference, opening August 15. Most are expected to leave by plane August 11.

Most of the group attended the 1945 Mexico City Inter-American conference which laid the groundwork for the Rio meeting.

SUICIDE AFTER SLAYING TEN.

A 21-Year-Old Sailor Hangs Himself While Awaiting Trial.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.(INS)—The navy announced today that William Vincent Smith, 21-year-old sailor from Asheville, N. C., who last year slew ten shipmates aboard an LST in China, committed suicide by hanging himself at the Anacostia naval air station.

Smith, who was awaiting court-martial for the mass slaying of his comrades, fashioned a noose out of part of a mattress cover ripped from the cot in his cell.

Smith went berserk aboard an LST on the Yangtze river last year. Arming himself with a carbine, he strode into a mess hall and opened fire on his shipmates.

Later, naval officials reported that Smith said he had shot men who had "taunted him." Officers marveled at his marksmanship. All of his victims were said to have been men against whom he had a definite grudge.

DEWEY IS BACK HOME.

Governor Confident He Has Built Up a Big Lead.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 1.(AP)—Governor Dewey returned today from his western tour confident that he has built up a wide lead over Senator Taft of Ohio and all other potential rivals for the Republican presidential nomination.

The governor and his family arrived in Albany at 8:58 o'clock from Detroit, where last night he held the last of a series of political conferences that punctured his 4-week "vacation" trip.

In Detroit he met six G. O. P. congressional leaders and had final talks with two of Michigan's top Republicans—Arthur E. Summerfield, national committeeman, and John A. Wagner, state chairman. Both had declined invitations to the Taft "recognition" dinner in Columbus, O., last night because of Dewey's visit and for business reasons.

ELLIOTT 'RULED' ON PLANE

General Echols Testifies in Senate Inquiry That the Son of Late President Selected Hughes Photo-Reconnaissance Craft as the Best Available.

AFTER ARMY 'NO'

The Air Corps Expert Had Rejected the Model in 1943, Testimony Shows.

DECISION FOLLOWS A TOUR

Committee Told Young Roosevelt Made His Report After Visiting Aircraft Plants.

The Chief Executive Sent Down Order for Full Co-operation, Group Hears.

Washington, Aug. 1.(AP)—Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols testified today that Elliott Roosevelt picked a Howard Hughes plane as the best available for wartime photo-reconnaissance work after the air force high command turned it down in 1943.

Echols, wartime chief of the air corps material command, told the Senate war investigating committee that the son of the late President Roosevelt in effect reversed the decision of the air corps' best experts.

The general agreed that if the plane could do a claimed 485 miles an hour it then would have been the air corps' fastest plane of the type.

No Records on Tests.

Chairman Ferguson of Michigan, Republican, commented that the committee has been unable to find any air corps records dealing with the experimental plane between July, 1942, and the end of June, 1943.

Echols said there probably were none because Hughes was conducting his own development. He added that late in June, 1943, he made a report on performance and possible production of the Hughes plane at the request of General H. H. Arnold, the commanding general of the air forces.

Echols, now retired from the army, related that Elliott was summoned home from his post as chief of reconnaissance work in Europe to look over various types of planes. He said the action was taken after complaints were received that the types available in the European theater were not satisfactory.

After a tour of the nation's plane plants, Echols said Roosevelt returned to say "that of all the planes he had seen, it was his conviction that the Hughes airplane, modified, would be the most suitable type."

The committee already has received testimony behind closed doors from John Meyer, publicity man for Hughes, that Elliott was one of the army officers and government officials whom he entertained in behalf of Hughes.

Frowned On by Arnold.

The plane which Roosevelt favored was a type of 2-place fighter which it was proposed to convert into a photo-reconnaissance ship. It then was known as the D-5, but subsequently has been designated as the F-11.

Echols testified that on August 24, 1943, shortly before Roosevelt's return, General Arnold had directed that no further action be taken Fails to Serve Subpoena on Howard Hughes.

Washington, Aug. 1.(AP)—Senator Ferguson of Michigan, Republican, said today the United States marshal at Los Angeles reported to him by telephone that he had failed in a first attempt to serve Howard Hughes with a Senate war investigating committee subpoena.

The subpoena was sent by airplane to Los Angeles last night after Hughes declined to come here to testify today at the committee's request.

Ferguson, who heads the subcommittee looking into Hughes's wartime plane contracts with the government, said Robert Clark, U. S. marshal at Los Angeles, called him on the telephone and said he had been unable to serve Hughes with the paper, which would require the plane builder's appearance before the committee "forthwith."

"The marshal said he will make other efforts to locate Hughes," Ferguson told reporters.

A PARTNOY PLEA FAILS

JUDGE BLAIR REFUSES TO STAY COMMISSION RULING.

The Racing Wire Head's Assertion He Did Not Know His Customers Is Termed "Incredible."

By LEW LARKIN.

(The Star's Jefferson City Correspondent.)

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 1.—Judge Sam C. Blair of the Cole County Circuit court today declined to stay a Public Service commission ruling that denied telephone service to Simon Partnoy of Kansas City.

The commission ruled last month that Partnoy, head of the Harmony Publishing company, was not entitled to telephone service because he was using it to disseminate race horse results to bookmakers. Partnoy, through his attorney, then moved to have the circuit court here suspend the ruling.

"PAID BY CASHIER'S CHECK.

In his ruling today Judge Blair said it was "incredible" that Partnoy would not know the identity of his customers. Partnoy testified before the commission and Blair that he did not know his customers and that they paid for his telephone service by cashier's check. Blair added that he could not put much stock in Partnoy's "profound ignorance."

Still pending in a Jackson County Circuit court is a temporary injunction under which Partnoy is receiving telephone service from Southwestern Bell Telephone company.

A review of the commission's ruling is docketed in Judge Blair's court late this month.

The judge said he was withholding final decision until after the review hearing but declared he had read the record in order to act on Partnoy's request for a stay.

"I am constrained to say now that while the evidence . . . is largely circumstantial," the judge wrote in his denial, "it is my present judgment that the (P. S. C.) findings are adequately supported by the record.

TO PERMIT INTERVENTION.

"The commission was not bound to believe what he said simply because he said it, nor am I. And I do not believe it."

Judge Blair said he felt the P. S. C. acted rightly in permitting the state of Missouri to enter the case and declared the attorney general would be permitted to intervene in the hearing before him later.

The case began last March 11 when Governor Donnelly and J. E. Taylor, attorney general, asked Southwestern Bell to cut off Partnoy's telephone service because, they alleged, the service was being used as an instrumentality to violate the law.

Hughes to Demand U. S. Investigation of Alleged Brewster-Pan American Link.

SAYS JACK FRYE WAS RIGHT

Former T. W. A. President Had Warned of "Juan Trippe's Political Machine."

Plane Maker Arresrts "What Has Happened to Me Should'nt Happen to a Dog.'

Los Angeles, Aug. 1.(AP)—Howard Hughes, central figure in a Senate war investigating committee probe, turned accuser today and announced he would demand a Department of Justice inquiry into the "relationship of Senator Owen Brewster and Pan American Airways."

Hughes announced he would not "jump through a hoop like a trained seal" to answer demands that he appear in Washington immediately, but that he had promised to appear before Senator Brewster's committee next Wednesday.

A Fourth Statement.

Hughes' demand for the Justice department probe came in his fourth public statement in twenty-four hours.

"The basis of my demand," he said, "will be substantially on charges I have already made." Last Wednesday, in a statement, he publicly asked Senator Brewster if it were not true that the senator had offered to call off the investigation into some 40 million dollars in Hughes plane contracts if Hughes, who also is the major stockholder of Trans World Airline, would agree to a merger with Pan American Airways.

He discussed Pan American at length in a copyrighted article over is signature appearing in the Los Angeles Examiner today, and at one point quoted Jack Frye, then president of T. W. A., as telling him:

"'Howard, you are going to learn that Pan American Airways has the biggest, most complex and strongest political machine that has ever hit Washington.

"'Juan Trippe, (president of Pan American) feels you have moved in on his territory, which he considers to be the entire world outside of the U. S., and he is going to make your life miserable. You have no idea the ends these people will go to.'

"Frye Was Right."

"Well, I guess Jack Frye was right, because since the day my company first started flying the Atlantic, what has happened to me shouldn't happen to a dog—not even a little dog . . ."

In his statement dealing with his plans to appear in Washington, Hughes charged that "the apparent purpose of this entire investigation has been to put the screws on me through the release of unfavorable publicity . . . slated to mislead the public."

He said he was too busy with his

Indonesians Give Way Before Forces Thrusting Toward Tjilatjap.

By Stanley Swinton.

Batavia, Java, Aug. 1.(AP)—The Dutch claimed sweeping new gains in Middle Java and both the Dutch and Indonesians today spoke of scattered republican counterattacks today.

A Netherlands army communique said Dutch forces in Middle Java had thrust southwest beyond Banjoemas, only twenty miles north of the key South Java port of Tjilatjap, and occupied Poerwaredja, some ten miles east of Banjoemas, also seizing several strategic bridges over the Serajoe river.

Dutch Drive Deep.

A Republican communique monitored in Batavia, indicated the Dutch had thrust even deeper than they themselves claimed. This communique said Dutch troops had been repulsed at Soempioeh, southeast of Banjoemas and less than ten miles from the south coast.

In Banjoemas, the Dutch would be some forty-five miles south of Tegal, on the north coast, from which they began their southward drive three days ago. They have reported opposition extremely light along the way.

Ten miles west of Tjilatjap, the Dutch communique said, Dutch army aircraft and Dutch navy warships smashed at Republican coastal batteries at Neosa Kambangan, which the Republicans several days ago said had damaged a Dutch vessel offshore.

Fight Along River.

(Harris Jackson of the Associated Press reported from Jogjakarta, Republican capital, that a Republican army communique told of fighting along the Serajoe river southwest of Banjoemas, and declared the Republicans had driven back a motorized Dutch force at Banjoemas yesterday.

(He said some Republican quarters conceded that the drive on Tjilatjap might turn into a threat to Jogjakarta, seventy-five miles east of there, because the intervening terrain was more favorable to motorized advance than between the capital and Salatiga to the north, where the Dutch have been stalled for a week.)

COURT FIGHT FINE EASED.

Mrs. Margaret Melvin Need Pay Only $15 and Costs.

A fine on a charge of disturbing the peace in the police headquarters building levied against Mrs. Margaret Melvin, 51 years old, owner of a rooming house at 1035 Pennsylvania avenue, was reduced from $100 and court costs to $15 and costs today when she appealed the case before Judge John F. Cook in the Jackson County Circuit court.

Judge Cook also dismissed a sentence of one day in jail, which had been placed against the woman with the $100 fine last May in municipal court by Judge Earle W. Frost.

Mrs. Melvin was fined by Judge Frost after she had become engaged in a fight outside the municipal courtroom with another woman, Mrs. Christine Parker, 22 years old, 1020 Jefferson street. Mrs. Melvin told officers she had heard that Mrs. Parker was to appear against her as a witness to an argument involving a rent dispute.

KILLED IN RESISTING ARREST.

A Second Man Is Wounded After One of Two Beat Marshal.

Pacific, Mo., Aug. 1.(AP)—One man was shot to death and another was wounded early today in a fight with Alpha Johnson, night marshal, who was trying to stop them from fighting as they left a tavern with two women.

Johnson said he shot James Thomas McKinnon, 28, and Fred J. Rinehart, 29, silica plant workers, after one of them beat him on the head with his own night stick. McKinnon died shortly. Rinehart was shot in the back and left arm as he ran, the marshal reported.

Johnson said the trouble started when the men got into an argument over who would drive their truck.

A coroner's jury summoned at 4:30 a. m. found that McKinnon died of a gunshot wound "while resisting arrest."

LEAVES NEARLY 40 MILLION.

Estate of Stanley McCormick Is Closed in Probate.

Chicago, Aug. 1.(AP)—The estate of Stanley McCormick, youngest son of Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the harvester, was closed yesterday by William F. Waugh, probate judge. Final accounting of the estate showed assets valued at between 35 million dollars and 40 million dollars.

Stanley McCormick, a semi-invalid for many years, died January 19 at his home in Monticello, Calif.

The entire estate was left to Mrs. Katherine Dexter McCormick, Santa Barbara, Calif., McCormick's widow.

The decoration was presented by the commander of the air forces, Henry H. Arnold (right), who then was a lieutenant gneral. Today General Echols, former chief of the air force materiel command, who has retired, told the Senate war investigating committee that Elliott Roosevelt picked a Hughes plane as the best available for photo reconnaissance work although the air forces high command had turned it down—(Acme).

Elliott Roosevelt to Appear Before Committee Monday.

Boston, Aug. 1.(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt said today that next Monday in Washington "I'll say my piece" before a Senate committee investigating war contracts awarded Howard Hughes and Henry J. Kaiser.

He said he was not subpoenaed but had been asked to appear before the committee by Senator Brewster of Maine, Republican.

"I imagine they want my version," Roosevelt added.

Senator Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, declared yesterday that Roosevelt had grounds for purportedly pushing wartime construction of a Hughes photo-reconnaissance plane and also remarked:

"I have no doubt that it will be shown Elliott Roosevelt accepted entertainment from representatives of Hughes."

Asked about that, Roosevelt answered:

"I'll say my piece when I reach Washington."

Gilbert W. Hall, 70 years old, 2010 Holly street, was admitted to the General hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from heat exhaustion. He had been repairing a wall for a neighbor when he was stricken. His condition was reported satisfactory today.

The condition of William Fannen, 71, Waverly, Mo., heat exhaustion victim stricken Wednesday in front of 1644 Baltimore, was reported good. Two other heat victims have been released. They are John Hall, 55, Helping Hand Institute, and William A. Watson, 73, of 1104 Admiral boulevard.

to prosecute Nafziger, Miss Darnell was accompanied by an unidentified blond young man, who said she did not love Nafziger but "loves me." Miss Darnell told the police she had known Nafziger about ten months, and had had several dates with him.

Yesterday she told Nafziger she did not intend to go out with him any more, she said, and he became jealous.

Miss Darnell's story was backward, Nafziger asserted when advised of her statement. He said, "Gwenn asked me to marry her."

Nafziger added that he did strike Miss Darnell because "she got me upset," but the bruises on her arm resulted when he grabbed her to keep her from jumping out of the car, he said.

ROARS FOR PROBE

regular work here, including tests of the F-11, one of the planes under investigation, to drop everything and go to Washington immediately and said, "I made a firm agreement with Ferguson's committee that I would appear Wednesday, August 6.

Hughes, in the Examiner's copyrighted article, declared:

"This one is entitled 'The Little Dog That Stepped on the Big Dog's Toes'."

"Yes, my little dog (T. W. A.) dared to step on the big dog's toes (Juan Trippe's high, exalted, grand and mighty Pan American Airways).

"Pan American Airways' first attack was a strong lobbying maneuver to shove a bill through Congress known as the 'chosen instrument bill.'

As a Monopoly.

"Under this bill, all the foreign routes would automatically be taken away from T. W. A. (my company) and all the other overseas air lines, and given to a big new company which would be formed. This new company would be an outright monopoly. It would be the only U. S. company allowed to fly across the ocean.

"And, naturally, under the terms of the proposed law, this new company would be controlled lock, stock and barrel by Pan American Airways, and Juan Trippe would be president of the new company.

"However, Juan Trippe and Senator Brewster were unable to shove this bill through Congress and make it a law. So they introduced a new bill called the 'community air line bill.' This, of course, is the same baby in a different set of diapers, and if it should become a law it would acomplish the same thing.

"Now Senator Brewster is the author and official sponsor of this bill.

"It is known as the Brewster community air line bill. Brewster signed his name to it and has openly and most actively campaigned for it . . .

The Plan Fails.

"However, with T. W. A. leading the other independent overseas air lines in a fight against this bill, and with the general American policy against monopoly and for free enterprise, Juan Trippe and Brewster didn't get very far, and their efforts to push this bill through Congress met with failure.

"It was at about this point that I first got wind of the beautiful scheme to use the threat of this senatorial investigation of my airplane projects as the screw by which to pressure me into merging T. W. A. with Pan American Airways.

"Juan Trippe and Brewster made it very clear to me that they only need T. W. A. in order to put their community air line bill through Congress and make it a law.

"They could shove it down the throats of the other overseas air lines if they could just get T. W. A. on their team.

"Then, Juan Trippe, who already has the biggest air line in the world, would wind up with a complete monopoly, automatically and quite legally putting all the smaller air-lines out of business and taking over their routes and airplanes. . ."

Ben Shlyen, who has brought the weekly magazine, Boxoffice, to the top as the trade journal of the motion picture industry, spent six weeks in England this summer and established a London office at 58 Wardour street. Less time was given to the study of the motion picture industry in France.

In London Mr. and Mrs. Shlyen were passing 10 Downing street and Mrs. Shlyen wished to point her camera at that famous entrance upon so many world decisions. Shlyen found a British guard agreeable and in the brief conversation learned the publisher was from Kansas City.

"Do they still have Katz drug stores?" queried the guard at 10 Downing street.

In claiming title as the national film weekly, Boxoffice, distinctly not a movie fan's publication, serves the entire industry from Kansas City publication offices, but with editorial offices in Rockefeller Plaza, New York, central offices on Michigan boulevard, Chicago, western offices on Hollywood boulevard, Hollywood and Washington offices on F street, N. Conducting a huge trade association convention is big business, as will attest Don M. Turnbull, executive secretary of the International Baby Chick association, who has just returned from Cleveland, where his association held its annual get-together. Some 5,000 hatcherymen and others interested in the poultry business attended. Turnbull had budgeted the cost of the convention down to what he thought was the last penny, including $500 for prizes to give wives of hatcherymen attending an elaborate luncheon.

The baby chick secretary had not counted, however, on the acquisitiveness of the ladies. Decorations for the tables for 600 luncheon guests included, very appropriately, tiny china chicken salt and pepper shakers. When the plates were cleared away after the luncheon, not a china chick was to be found. The entire flock of fifty-two pair had been carried away.

Turnbull was billed—and the association paid—$116.

ELLIOTT 'RULED'

to encourage Hughes in his efforts to sell his plane to the army.

This command was communicated to the Wright field experimental headquarters by Brig. Gen. B. W. Chidlaw, Echols's assistant, documents showed. It followed lengthy discussions with Hughes and his representatives about the plane and a predecessor ship, both built of plywood.

"Normally that would end the matter, would it not?" asked Chairman Ferguson of Michigan, Republican, of the subcommittee.

"Normally, yes," Echols replied.

He recounted, however, that when Roosevelt came home from Europe he, Echols, was told to cooperate with the President's son.

As the inquiry into Hughes's 40-million-dollar wartime plane contracts went through its fifth day, there were published reports that Hughes will ask the Justice department to investigate the "relationship of Senator Brewster of Maine, Republican, chairman of the full committee, and Pan American Airways.

This brought from Brewster an invitation for Hughes to "discuss this matter under oath."

Probe Two Contracts.

A 22-million-dollar contract for photo-reconnaissance planes is one of two Hughes contracts the committee is investigating. The other is an 18-million-dollar flying boat contract.

No planes were delivered before the war's end.

Echols said he was well aware of Hughes's experimental work on a speedy photo-reconnaissance plane before Elliott Roosevelt came into the picture.

He said he first heard in the summer of 1940 that Hughes was working on a plane of this kind, and was instructed to keep "fully aware of the development to the extent that Hughes wished."

At one time in 1942, General Echols said, he had an air corps directive to buy one of the Hughes planes and proposed to pay $500,000 for it, but Hughes declined this offer, saying he had some 3 million dollars costs invested in the development.

Ferguson noted that some Hughes spokesmen then claimed an investment of 5 million and 6 million dollars in the plane.

Senator Pepper of Florida, Democrat, asked the air corps general if he was "hagglin" over prices of a possible new air weapon at the time.

Replying in the negative, Echols said that all his air force technicians then opposed purchase of the Hughes plane, but he was willing to spend $500,000 to see if they or Hughes was correct.

Step for Contract.

As for the actual plane order, Echols read a memorandum dated August 31, 1943, to his staff. This said he (Echols) had been directed by General Arnold that if the Hughes plane was only one suitable, he would take steps to obtain a contract for Hughes.

When Ferguson asked why Arnold went ahead with the project despite recommendation of Wright Field experts to the contrary, Echols replied:

"General Arnold told me he had heard all the pros and cons and to go ahead and get 100 planes."

Ferguson asked if any of the usual specifications and military characteristics that usually precede any such order had been written in advance of the Hughes contract.

Home From Paris to a Hot Spot . . . John W. Meyer, Publicity Man for Howard Hughes, Shown in a Photograph Made Upon His Arrival at LaGuardia Field, New York. He Wasn't Talking About His Scheduled Appearance Before the War Investigating Committee of the Senate—(Wirephoto).

"I don't know," Echols replied.

Ferguson said it appeared from air corps files that the "military requirements were written up later."

"That's what the record shows," Echols replied.

Meanwhile, there were these developments in the inquiry into Hughes's government contracts:

1. Johnny Meyer, Hughes's press agent, and the man who entertained lavishly during the war for young Roosevelt and high government officials, returned from Paris by plane. He was excused by the committee until later in the day.

2. Senate investigators armed themselves with income tax data for a sortie into the entertainment expenses of Hughes in building the world's largest flying boat.

Income Tax Study.

Whatever the date, members of the investigating subcommittee said the questioning will turn, among other things, to an exhaustive study into the income tax returns of several of the principals.

The Hughes Tool income tax returns were said by committee members to have been under scrutiny in connection with Hughes's 18-million-dollar contract for a still unflown cargo plane as well as later contracts for a photo-reconnaissance ship in which the government has invested 21 million dollars.

When Hughes does appear, one committee member who asked not to be identified by name, told a reporter the airman will be confronted with information taken from his income tax returns.

This member said the committee also has had general accounting office experts examine the returns of Elliott Roosevelt.

SPUR COUNTY ROAD AID

OFFICIALS CONTEND PROPOSED EMERGENCY FUND INSUFFICIENT.

Requisites for Area's Arteries Are Outlined by Engineer to Citizens Board Committee Members.

Road needs in Jackson County were described to members of the Citizens Bond committee by David W. Leonard, county highway engineer, in a meeting of committee members with the three county judges today.

The county officials insisted that the proposed 1-million-dollar emergency fund for improvements urgently needed as a result of wartime lack of maintenance, was inadequate.

FOR URGENT PROJECTS.

Leonard recommended that the 1-million-dollar emergency fund be boosted to $3,273,000 in order to provide for urgent projects which, he said, should be scheduled for 1948 and 1949. Such an increase in the fund, Leonard said, would permit these improvements in the next two years:

For 1948—Improvements to One Hundred Third street, $115,000. This includes 22-foot concrete paving from State Line to Holmes and replacing present Indian creek bridge with the one now used over same street on Holmes road. Widening forty miles of macadam roads, $865,000. Improvements in Holmes road, $330,000. This includes repairs to present pavement, widening with concrete to make three lanes, and replacing bridges over Indian creek and Dykes branch.

For 1949—Blue River road, 8½ miles, $320,000; repairs and improvements to Thirty-ninth street from city limits to Outer Belt road, $1,311,000; 20 miles of macadam road widening, $432,000.

At the request of Elmer C. Rhoden, bond committee chairman, the county officials agreed to draw up a detailed report on road work considered to be in the "urgent" category. The report will become the basis of future recommendations by the bond committee.

TAX LEVY NEARLY DOUBLE.

Hays, Kas., Aug. 1.(AP)—A proposed Ellis County budget calling for an expenditure of $691,360 in 1948, compared with $475,932 this year. The tax levy would be increased from 6.23 to 11.94 mills.

PLANE SHOW IS ON Display and Exhibitions Today a Prelude to Fairfax Celebration Sunday.

SALUTE TO AIR FORCE

Nazi and Jap Craft and Bombs Among Items on Display at Anniversary Fete.

Army personnel at Fairfax Field in Kansas City, Kansas, anticipating that some 5,000 to 7,000 persons will visit the field late today and tonight in observance of Air Force day, was busy polishing equipment for display at the 2-day celebration.

Today's activities are a preliminary to the field's main observance Sunday of the air force anniversary. Elaborate demonstrations are being planned for that day. No formal plans have been made for tomorrow. The field, however, will be open all day tomorrow to permit visitors to inspect the planes, but no exhibitions will be given.

Aim to Show Contrasts.

"We have planned activities and demonstrations to provide a contrast between obsolete and new types of fighting aircraft," Lieut. Col. Alexander G. Evanoff, commanding officer, explained.

Official opening of events today, scheduled for 2 o'clock, was a flight of fifteen P-51 fighters from the Kansas national guard unit in Wichita. Following the demonstration, four planes are to land and remain at the field for the show.

At 2:30 o'clock a flight of AT-6s was to take off from Fairfax Field for Joplin, where they would participate in Air Force day activities. Returning to Kansas City at 5:15 o'clock, they will make a demonstration flight over the field before landing.

On the field for display today were a Northrup flying wing, a 30-foot prototype of the giant XB-35 flying wing; a Heinkel HE-162 German jet plane; a V-2 Rocket, of the type under experimentation at the White Sands, N. M., proving grounds; a Japanese suicide Baka bomb, and a V-1 German buzz bomb of the same type which leveled London.

Cockpit in Nazi Bomb.

The V-1 buzz bomb on display here was an experimental model flown by a German woman, who volunteered to test the plane's controls to see how they were in action; so it is equipped with a cockpit.

Of particular interest to former flight personnel will be an obsolete Boeing-Stearman PT-17, the primary trainer in which pilots of World War II received their initial training.

An R-5 Sikorsky helicopter, one of three now in existence in the United States, was brought in from Marshall field, Ft. Riley, Kas., for the exhibition.

Maj. Larry Dennis of Cedar Rapids, Ia., stationed at Wright field, made an emergency flight from Dayton today in order to relieve Capt. J. W. McGuryt, who arrived at Fairfax field Wednesday to demonstrate a P-80 Shooting Star. Last night Captain McGuryt received word that his small son is critically ill in Dayton. Major Dennis flew to Kansas City in a P-51 and will remain to participate in the P-80 demonstration.

Relic Alongside a P-80.

Demonstration of the P-80 Sunday will be one of the highlights of the celebration. The P-80, among the most ultra-modern of existing aircraft, will be exhibited and demonstrated in flight with a 1912 Curtiss pusher plane, a relic of the old bamboo and baling wire days of flying.

The oldtime plane will be flown by its owner, Billy Parker, of Bartlesville, Ok.

The planes will be on display at the field from 10 to 7:30 o'clock. They will be flown from 4:15 to 5:15 o'clock.

Other activities Sunday will include mass flights and demonstrations and a surprise attack on the field by a squadron of A-26s to be made sometime during the day.

A mass flight of B-29s was to pass above Kansas City at 4:25 o'clock this afternoon. The route of more than 100 Superforts will carry them over twelve midwestern cities.

HOMEMAKER SESSION ENDS.

Decision on First National Convention to Be Made Later.

Girls attending the Future Homemakers of America meeting here this week left this morning for their homes throughout the United States following the conclusion of the regular business sessions. Installation of officers of the group was held at the Hotel President last night.

The meeting, which began last Monday, was to be adjourned tonight following discussion by members of the national advisory board of a site and date for the group's first national convention next year. Several possible meeting places are being considered and selection will be postponed to a later date to give more time for consideration, members said.

B-25 PLUNGES INTO CREEK.

One of Two Who Bail Out Is Injured—Two Others Missing.

McChord Field, Wash., Aug. 1. (AP)—A B-25 bomber on a night flight south to Hamilton Field, Calif., crashed in the Goble creek area east of Kelso, Wash., early today and two of the four men aboard bailed out, the McChord Field public relations office announced. The fate of the others was not announced.

One of them, the crew chief, reached Kelso later and the other, a passenger, critically injured, was being taken there by ambulance, the Cowlitz County sheriff's office reported.

DAVID CHILDS TO GO HOME.

David B. Childs, Hickman Mills, Republican County committee chairman, was to return home late today from St. Luke's hospital where he underwent an operation for a kidney ailment two weeks ago.

A PAY HIKE AND DOUBLE!

JOHNSON COUNTY BOARD GETS INCREASE BY ACCIDENT.

The $50-a-Month Raise That Appeared to Be Lost Becomes $100 With Discovery of Population Proviso.

Good luck has descended upon the county commissioners of Johnson County, Kansas, in the matter of salaries, after some temporary distress over what they believed was a pay cut.

The men who manage the county's manifold fiscal affairs are George Russell, chairman; L. R. Penner and H. M. Beckett. They work in theory and in practice for the people, their employers, but only the Kansas Legislature can raise their pay.

THREE SESSIONS WEEKLY.

Until the recent session, their compensation was fixed by law at $1,760 a year each plus mileage. At least three times a week the commissioners meet in Olathe, sign checks and lend considerate ears to the complaints of constituents. Representative W. C. (Casey) Jones, Olathe, believed they deserved more money. He introduced a bill to hike their pay to $200 a month each, an increase of approximately $50.

Another bill increasing commissioners' pay on a state-wide basis had just been demolished in the House of Representatives. Various members, still feeling kindly toward their commissioners, began offering amendments to the bill of Representative Jones to include their counties under different pay schedules.

"Gentlemen," pleaded Representative Jones, "please don't do this to me. I want my bill passed, and you'll get it so cluttered up you'll kill it."

BASED ON POPULATION.

The bill, nevertheless, became a law. It became effective July 1. Since Kansas cannot have specific legislation for separate counties under the Constitution, such bills must be written in general terms. The salary bill described Johnson County as one with a population of less than 47,000 persons. The terms were to apply to all such counties. When the deputy assessors finished their count, the county had 52,000 and Representative Jones's bill did not apply to the place it was intended for.

Distressed commissioners saw their $200-a-month salaries vanishing, despite the Legislature's good intentions. They, and the county attorney, John Anderson, jr., read the law more carefully. It had numerous amendments. One amendment, over which Representative Jones had pleaded when his collegues were adding them, provided that commissioners in counties from 50,000 to 60,000 should receive $3,005 a year, plus mileage, or more than $250 a month.

"Eureka," cried the commissioners, although possibly in other words. "That's us! And it's legal, too."

The vagaries of a legislative accident had given the Johnson County commissioners a $605 yearly increase above what their representative had intended.

A TOWN BAN ON BEER

NORTH KANSAS CITY PUTS ON SUNDAY LIQUOR CLAMP.

A Reduction in the Tax Rate Also Voted at Last Night's Meeting of the City Council.

The city council of North Kansas City, meeting last night in special session, passed an ordinance prohibiting the Sunday sale of beer, liquor or wine. The ordinance becomes effective next Friday.

Action by the council came after more than a year of protests by church organizations and citizens. Their attack centered mostly on places selling beer, of which there are nine licensed to sell 3.2 beer on Sundays within the North Kansas City limits.

Ward Dorsey, city attorney, pointed out that with the new ordinance, North Kansas City was one of only a few fourth class cities in Missouri with such a law.

The ordinance had originally been introduced last Tuesday, but the council was lacking a quorum.

The North Kansas City tax rate also was cut. The decrease, amounting to 7½ cents a $100 valuation, now totals an even 91 cents, Dorsey said.

AHEAD ON COMBINE SUIT

MOTION TO STAY BOND HOLDING FIRMS ACTION DENIED.

Judge Richard M. Duncan Says More Facts Needed Before Deciding on Harry J. Murphy's Case.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 1.—A motion to stay proceedings in the suit brought by bonding companies against Harry J. Murphy, Tarkio, Mo., pending the outcome of bankruptcy action against the implement dealer who allegedly failed to make good on a large number of combine orders, was not sustained today by Judge Richard M. Duncan in the federal district court here.

Judge Duncan ruled that he would not stay proceedings for the time and not until more facts were available. The judge pointed out that many details now are being assembled and a receiver still is checking Murphy's affairs.

INDICATES NO PROTEST.

Jerome Walsh, Murphy's attorney, who made the motion for a stay, indicated Murphy would not protest or deny bankruptcy. The ten days in which Murphy is permitted to reply to the bankruptcy petition filed by creditors is up tonight.

The next move of the bonding companies is set for 10 o'clock Wednesday in the St. Joseph law office of Brown, Douglas and Brown, where depositions from Murphy will be started.

Murphy was not in court today.

Walsh indicated that Murphy would be willing to co-operate in any way to speed the bankruptcy proceedings.

The Tarkio farm implement dealer, is being sued for $270,000 in performance of contract bonds issued on deposits paid on combines ordered by various persons in Kansas, Texas, Iowa and Nebraska for delivery by harvest time.

GROSS NEAR 5-MILLION.

The bonding companies are the Maryland Casualty company, whom Paul G. Koontz is representing, and the Massachusetts Bond and Insurance company, represented by John Murphy. The complete deal is alleged to have approached a 5-million dollar gross.

Debts of Murphy, the defendant, now are reported to be more than $900,000 against assets of about $78,000.

INJURED BABY IN GAIN.

Eileen Barber, 7-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Barber, Liberty, Mo., was reported in fair condition today at the Research hospital. The parents told hospital attendants the baby suffered a severe head injury when she pulled a chair on herself yesterday while crawling on the floor at the home. The father is employed at the National Biscuit company here.

WARY ON A-BOMB

General Devers Doubts That Any Nation Will Use It Again.

POWER AS PEACE KEY

Fully-Equipped Airborne Army Will Prevent Aggression, He Declares.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 1.(AP) —General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the army ground forces, said today that the atom bomb probably will never again be used in war.

Military leaders probably will avoid the bomb "as circumspectly in any future war as gas was in World War II," he told an audience at Newark airport as part of ceremonies marking the fortieth anniversary of the army air forces.

Fear Slugging Match.

General Devers said that if the atom bomb were used, an "atomic slugging match" would follow.

"Neither side could so achieve any substantial victory," he said.

Whether the atom bomb is used or not in future warfare, the "final decision could be effected only by surface forces," the ground forces commander said.

He saw "every prospect that we can avoid war" when the United States has a "fly-to-fight" army.

General Devers announced: "In the near future, we will be able to fly a standard infantry division, with all its armament, to battle. Our infantry battalions, with their artillery, are already airtransportable. When present ordnance and air forces developments culminate in a heavy, airportable tank, we can fly standard infantry regiments to the attack. When engineer and air forces developments produce heavy engineer equipment which is airportable, we can fly a standard infantry division to war."

Guarantee of Peace.

"When we have an army which can fly to fight, and an air force that can fly it, there is every prospect that we can avoid war, and make the peace permanent," Devers said. "The guarantee of sure, swift retribution will certainly deter any would-be aggressor."

The general said it was "impossible" that any future aggressor would attack until he held weapons equal to his intended victim. Only the United States has yet disclosed possession of a workable atom bomb, although other nations are working on them.

Devers described three "dangers" from "too-vivid predictions of victory through air power:"

1. A people may come to believe destruction through enemy air power is inescapable and adopt a defeatist attitude, which "is hardly in keeping with our American heritage. But it exists."

False Security Warning.

2. A feeling of false security behind the atom bomb may develop.

3. Or air power may be developed to the neglect of land and sea power.

Devers expressed regret that "radical demobilization has so diminished it (the air forces) in size that it is now the world's most powerful force only in terms of technical superiority and know-how."

"Autonomy for the air forces will not mean much if we stint on research and development on planes, and on trained men to fly and maintain them," he added.

NTO STUDENT BEATING AGAIN.

Detectives to Question Gene C. Smith at Hospital.

Detectives of the homicide bureau today again were to question Gene C. Smith, 21-year-old University of Kansas City student, about circumstances leading to his severe beating early yesterday at Armour boulevard and Forest avenue by two men who fled when a police car approached.

Smith, who was in a lethargic state yesterday at the General hospital, was unable to give coherent answers to police in the beating which appeared to be a robbery or attempt at robbery. X-rays made yesterday afternoon disclosed that only one of Smith's jaws, the lower right, was fractured. He suffered a lacerated lip requiring two sutures, and a bruise above the left eye. One of the men was seen to kick Smith on the head.

Smith, a freshman in the college of liberal arts, had a "good night" at the hospital and his condition was not regarded as dangerous. He lives at 4412 Harrison street.

REPORTS A BOAT STOLEN.

A 16-foot outboard motor boat, purchased last Saturday by A. L. Myers, 2249 East Sixty-ninth street terrace, operator of the A. L. Myers Contracting company, has been stolen from its moorings on Lake Lotawana, heh reported today.

Myers said the boat, white in color and of the Sea King variety, was taken to the Myers dock on the lake Saturday and was left there when the family returned to Kansas City Sunday. The boat was milling Tuesday.

A BLAME SHIFTS TO FLIERS.

Lookouts Say Forest Fires Start After Planes Pass Over.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 1.(AP)—It used to be that motorists carelessly flipping cigarettes from their car windows gave U. S. forest service fire fighters their biggest headaches.

Now, says F. C. Koziol, supervisor of the Wasatch National forest, fire lookouts keep their binoculars trained on pilots of aircraft.

"It has been established in many instances that aircraft have flown over areas immediately before fire has broken out," he said. "With no other causes discovered, there's a distinct possibility that burning material tossed from the planes caused the fires."

Clay Urges Strong Air Force to Withstand Any Challenge.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.(AP)—General Lucius D. Clay, U. S. commander in chief in Europe, urged the United States today to maintain a strong modern air force with atomic weapons "which no nation, however bold, would dare challenge.".

In a speech written for the U. S. armed forces radio in connection with the fortieth anniversary of the army air forces, Clay said:

"Until the four freedoms and complete understanding reign in the new united order of the world, there is but one assurance that the atomic weapon produced by American ingenuity might not be used against us. That assurance lies in the development and maintenance of a formidable modern air force which no nation, however bold, would dare to challenge."

STRIKE BY BUS RIDERS

THOUSANDS OF NEW YORK COMMUTERS PROTEST FARE HIKES.

Private Cars, Trains and Even Motor Boats on Hudson Are Used Against Two Companies.

NYACK, N. Y., Aug. 1.(UP)—Thousands of commuters went on strike today against two bus companies in what probably was the first walkout of its kind in the nation.

The commuters, residents of Rockland County and Northern New Jersey, said they were protesting fare boosts of as much as 33 per cent by the Rockland and Spring Valley Motor Coach companies.

They said they would stay out until the bus companies reduced fares.

The commuters used private automobiles, the West Shore railroad and even motor boats on the Hudson river to reach New York, some thirty miles south of this Rockland County center. Some commuters crossed the river by boat to Tarrytown to take the New York Central railroad to New York.

Bus company officials said they were not disturbed by the strike.

"It happens that the commuting element is not the greatest percentage of our business," said Virden Rittgers, traffic manager for both bus companies.

Last night, home-going commuters held farewell parties aboard the busses. Some brought liquor along and toasted the bus drivers.

"This is our farewell trip," said one. "We won't be seeing you until the rates come down."

The immigration officer's wife was said to be the niece of U Saw, former Burmese premier, now in custody in connection with the assassinations.

JAP DENIES TRUK ATROCITIES.

Iwanami Says He Was Told Later of Experiments on GIs.

GUAM, Aug. 1.(AP) — Hiroshi Iwanami, Japanese naval captain, denied today he ordered inhuman medical experiments performed on United States prisoners while stationed on the island of Truk during the war.

Iwanami, who took responsibility yesterday for the stabbing of two American prisoners, testified at his war crimes trial that he did not hear of the medical experiments until he was imprisoned on Guam.

Later, however, he acknowledged that he had assisted in dissecting two bodies of American victims of the experiments.

Iwanami is one of nineteen Japanese on trial charged with the deaths of ten Americans.

GRISWOLD HOPES TO BE OUT OF COUNTRY WITHIN A YEAR.

American Intends Only to Develop the Nation's Economy and Help Spur System of Trade.

ATHENS, Aug. 1.(AP)—Dwight Griswold, head of the United States aid mission to Greece, said today, "We expect to be out of Greece within a year, and we are not expecting to build American influence in Greece or obtain commercial interests here."

The former Nebraska governor said "it is not part of our program" to send American troops to Greece to carry out the program, other than about 100 military men needed to facilitate the handling of supplies and to give advice.

"We simply want to work to develop the economy of Greece and Greek trade all over the world where Greek products can be sold and where Greeks can buy foreign products," he said.

Although the program is scheduled to end June 30, 1948, Griswold said some works undertaken might continue beyond that date.

Dentist Says Soft Drinks Also Result in More Cavities.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.(AP)—A kid with a faceful of bubble gum is headed for the dentist's chair, an oral surgeon warned today, and that goes for soft drinks, too.

"The sugar in bubble gum and soft drinks probably is responsible for more bad teeth in children today then any other factor," said Dr. Van B. Dalton of Cincinnati at the twenty-ninth convention of the American Society of Oral Surgeons.

He said a study of Cincinnati children showed that youngsters who were not limited in use of pop and bubble gum developed 50 per cent more cavities than those from whom the delicacies were withheld.

A. M. G. Plans to Buy Millions of Dollars in Goods From Germany's Neighbors.

AS ANSWER TO REDS

Move Aimed at Refuting Charges That America Is Draining Europe of Dollars.

By WES GALLAGHER.

Berlin, Aug. 1.(AP)—In a bold attempt to open European markets to free trade, the American military government will spend millions of dollars in Europe buying goods from Germany's neighbors, authoritative sources declared today.

The dollars will come from the sale of Germany's exports under the American-British bi-zonal import-export plan, according to these sources. Goods will be bought wherever they can be found, whether in Western European countries or those dominated by Russia.

To Refute a Charge.

This program has been initiated already in the signing and negotiating of trade agreements with Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Italy. It is intended to refute frequent Soviet charges that America is trying to drain Europe of dollars.

These agreements break away from European trade practices built up over recent years in which each nation, in buying goods from another nation, insisted that the selling nation buy an equal amount of goods in return.

The trade agreements now being signed by the U. S. military government are understood to provide for exchanges of goods and services, but not necessarily in equal amounts.

Authoritative sources said the agreements provided that if trade did not balance between Germany and the nation in question at the end of a definite period the owing nation would have three months to balance with goods. If unable to do so it would be obliged to make up the deficit with dollars or sterling payments.

Ready With Dollars.

The American military government was prepared to meet these obligations with dollars piled up through sales in the export-import program.

It is hoped that Germany will be able to pump dollars into Europe at the rate of more than 100 million dollars a year through this program, while at the same time filling her needs from European economy.

The goods received in return are expected to reduce American occupation costs.

The plan is aimed at opening up free trade channels by replacing the old barter and bilateral agreements which American economic experts feel have been stifling European trade.

ROXAS LAUDS U. S. EXAMPLE.

Other Nations Might Heed It in the East Indies, He Adds.

MANILA, Aug. 1.(AP)—President Roxas told a group of visiting American editors and publishers today that what the United States had done in the Philippines "is something she can point out with pride as an example to the Netherlands, France and other nations of the world."

It was his most direct reference to the situation in the neighboring Netherlands East Indies.

Roxas held a 2-hour conference with the executives at Malacanan palace. He declared that "what America is extending to the Philippines today in the way of material, cultural and military assistance should convince the peoples of Asia of her earnest desire to enlarge the freedom of all peoples and give them equal opportunity to work out their own problem."

SAYS PEARL HARBOR SECOND.

Japs Reportedly Hit Malaya Nearly 2 Hours Earlier.

TOKYO, Aug. 1.(INS)—Pearl Harbor was not the first Allied base attacked by the Japanese in the Pacific war, according to a disclosure made today by sources close to the Tokyo war crimes court.

An hour and forty-five minutes before the sneak assault on Pearl Harbor, Japanese forces landed at Kota Bahru, on the northeast coast of Malaya, the spokesman said.

The enemy went ashore from transports which British airmen promptly attacked.

It is believed the first Allied casualties in the Pacific war—except for Chinese—were Australian airmen downed while in action off Kota Bahru.

Thus the spokesman moved Pearl Harbor back to "at least" second on the Japanese schedule.

WAITING THE ARRIVAL of Wichita police, James Barker, 37 years old, who described himself as a wheat farmer from Ford, Kas., sat quietly at police headquarters today and mused over his 4-day spree. It ended Wednesday, when he told police here two blond girls in halters and shorts had stolen his new maroon sedan and $500. Then Wichita police notified officials here that Barker was wanted on a warrant in connection with a $2,700 check which he used to purchase the car Saturday in Wichita. The maroon sedan was recovered, but Barker said he had no desire to prosecute the blond girls. They admitted driving the car away from a point near Little Blue, after, they said, Barker and a companion became argumentative—(Kansas City Star photograph).

MORE TIME ON GI INSURANCE.

Reinstatement Provision Was to Have Expired Today.

Veterans under jurisdiction of the regional office of the Veterans administration here were reminded today of the extension to January 1 of the deadline for the reinstatement of national service life insurance without a medical examination. The closing date for reinstatement, previously today, was extended last month.

In the last 5-month period, approximately 7,000 veterans in sixty-two counties in Western Missouri and Northeast Kansas have redeemed lapsed policies, according to VA officials here. The policies totaled about 44 million dollars.

SOFIA SETS PETKOV'S TRIAL.

Bulgarian Party Leader Will Be Tried August 5.

SOFIA, Aug. 1.(AP)—The government announced today that Nikola Petkov, leader of the opposition Agrarian party who has been under arrest since June 6, would be brought to trial August 5 on charges of plotting against the state.

(The U. S. State department on June 11 denounced Petkov's arrest and suggested that in bringing him to trial the Communist-dominated Fatherland front government would place itself on trial before the bar of world public opinion.)

Slavs Charge Armed Interventionists Being Trained Across Border.

(Copyright, 1947, the New York Times.)

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—The Yugoslav government, through its political representation in Vienna, today issued a statement charging the United States and Britain with preparing armed intervention in Yugoslavia.

The statement asserted that armed bands and terrorists were being trained by Americans and British in the displaced person camp at Pongau, in the American zone of Austria, and at the Strass, Wagna, Glasenbach and Leibnitz camps in the British zone.

Officers responsible for the care of displaced persons stated privately that the Yugoslav statement was packed with falsehoods, and it was described as a mass of lies intended to draw attention away from conditions on the Greek frontier.

FURY IN A HAIL STORM.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Aug. 1.(AP)—Hailstones described as twice the size of walnuts, struck this city yesterday in a thundersquall that disrupted telephone and electric service and set off six fires in half an hour's time. Sewers and cellars throughout the city were flooded.

TEUTONIC MIND IS TRAP

NAZI DISGUISED AS YANK HAD FIGURED HIS CHANCES.

Masquerade Was All He Could Ask but He Couldn't Foresee a Twist to the Odds in His Favor.

By Billy Rose.

New York, Aug. 1.—"That's a cute chick over there on the pier," yelled a soldier, nudging the sergeant next to him at the rail.

The man with the sergeant's stripes moved away from the boy who had touched him. Physical contact of any kind had always given him a feeling of revulsion. He stood there watching the tugs worry the big army transport into its berth. A 6-piece band on the pier was playing "Roll Out the Barrel." A long strip of oil cloth tacked to a warehouse read, "Welcome Home—Well Done."

"Well done, indeed," the sergeant thought.

In a few minutes he would disembark. Demobilization—and then South America. There were friends in Argentina. And there was work there for Col. Karl von Winther, SS gruppenfuehrer, late of Hitler's personal staff.

It had been almost too easy. His dog-tags read, "Keefer, George—ASN 35010158—Blood type O—Religion P." His service record stated: "Born—Des Moines, Iowa. Widower. Children—none." Unless somebody checked fingerprints at the separation center, his chances of being detected were—how was it the Americans phrased it—one in a million. Yes, that was it—one in a million.

But his neat Teutonic mind wouldn't let it rest at that. As he stood there waiting for the gangplank to be lowered, he reviewed again every detail of the escape operation.

Just before the Ardennes offensive in December, 1944, General Sepp Dietrich had placed him in charge of infiltration tactics. Because of his flawless English and three years in America as embassy attache, he had been selected to brief the English-speaking Germans who were to be put behind the Allied lines in American uniforms to sabotage and cause confusion. Each saboteur would be supplied with the identity of a dead or captured American soldier, and would be required to memorize the personal information contained in intelligence office files.

It was while checking over these files that the colonel first saw a photograph of Sergt. George Keefer. Keefer might have been his brother. Same general build, same color hair, same color eyes, even the same blood type. Without quite knowing why, he removed Keefer's dossier from the files, and with it the man's dog-tags, identification card and personal letters.

And then the plan had taken form. On the sixth day of the offensive, the clouds lifted and the P-47s began to slash the German armor on the roads. Von Winther knew the campaign was lost—and with it the war. There would be trials. The generals might get off with jail sentences, but not an SS colonel who had devised several memorable methods for eliminating overcrowding in concentration camps.

The first step in the plan was to have the commandant at Dormstadt shoot Sergeant Keefer and bury him in an unmarked grave. The second was to select an American sergeant's uniform from the stockpile, and then make his way toward the positions of the American 7th armored. The third was to acquire a wound and place himself where a medical corpsman might find him.

On the eleventh day of the offensive, not far from an American anti-tank gun position near Manhay, the colonel sergeant took out a pistol and shot himself in the fleshy part of the upper arm.

Five days at a field hospital. A month in a hospital near Paris. And then several months doing pay roll work in a replacement depot at Namur. After that, Le Havre and the transport. Some questions here and there, but he knew the answers. His medical record—lost, of course. Who cared? The war was over.

Here he was now, fifteen yards from American soil. A thousand dollars in back pay waiting for him at the separation center. In addition, a $300 bonus. His chances of being discovered now—a million to one. No need for that little cyanide capsule in his jacket pocket.

The gangplank was down. The men pushed forward. Von Winther tossed his barracks bag to his shoulder and stepped on the gangway. "Keefer, George," he called out to the officer who was checking the disembarkation list.

The officer put his hand on the sergeant's shoulder. "Here's your man!" he shouted down to a small group of military officials who were clustered around the foot of the gangway. The crowd on the pier began to yell. Two white-helmeted MP's started up toward him.

"Kaput," said the colonel to himself. He acted almost automatically. His fingers found the capsule in his right-hand jacket pocket. He bit into it. It tasted of bitter almonds.

The MP's carried his lifeless body to the Red Cross station on the pier. A photographer shoved through the crowd and took a flash picture.

"What happened?" the photographer asked an army officer.

"I don't know," said the officer. "Excitement, maybe. Yeah, I guess that's what it was. Here half the town turns out to welcome the millionth Yank to come back from overseas and he keels over from the excitement. Too bad."

EX-GI'S IN SWIFT CLIMB.

Three Scale Mt. McKinley in Seventeen Days for Fun.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 1.(AP)—Three rugged ex-GI's, who are now attending the University of Alaska, claimed today the swiftest ascent of towering Mt. McKinley and the first scaling of the highest North American peak for pure adventure since 1932.

The three who made a speedy 17-day trek from Wonder Lake camp to the 20,270-foot peak and return were Gordon Herreid, 22, Santa Maria, Calif., Frank Mills, 20, Cincinnati, and Henry Daub, 23, Boston.

They made the climb without receiving any outside support from the air or ground.

PLEDGE BY NLRB

Board Expresses "Deep Determination" to Make Taft-Hartley Bill Work.

AN APPEAL FOR UNITY

Labor and Management Are Asked to Respect Each Other's Rights.

Two New Members, Murdock and Gray, and General Counsel Take Oaths.

Washington, Aug. 1.(AP)—The new 5-man National Labor Relations board today pledged "deep determination" to make every provision of the Taft-Hartley labor act "work as effectively as possible."

The board issued that statement as its first act after two new members—Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray—and a general counsel took their oaths of office this morning.

Plea for Harmony.

The board also appealed to labor and management to work together with full recognition of each other's rights and the needs and rights of the public.

Earlier the general counsel, Robert N. Denham, said in an interview he "can't commend" the decision of some unions to ignore the reorganized NLRB—but that he recognized it as "a normal reaction."

Denham said he felt "the sane, balanced judgment of the union leadership, for which I have a great deal of respect," will eventually realize that unions have more to gain than lose by continuing to channel complaints and requests through the labor board.

BICYCLES ARE TOO EASY for 4-year-old J. E. Ellis, jr., of Beaumont, Tex., who proudly skims along on his 16-inch unicycle. He is said to be the youngest rider of the 1-wheel vehicle in the country—(Acme).

At the ceremony in which Denham took over his post, James J. Reynolds, one of the three hold-over board members, told the gathering, "I don't suppose that in the history of administrative law any single individual has been granted the degree of responsibility that the general counsel has under the new act."

Sees Heavy Load.

Denham himself said he was appreciative of his "tremendous responsibilities." He added:

"This act had a fair, honest, honorable objective. If we will all recognize that purpose, if we will all get together and play on the team, and train our guns on the same target, she can't go wrong. I know—well, I know we'll make a go of it."

Murdock, former Democratic senator from Utah whose appointment has been strongly assailed by Republicans, said:

"It behooves every good citizen to accept what has become the collective wisdom of Congress. This is the law. I know that regardless of any person's attitude during the period of debate, the purposes of the bill were and are the purposes of all of us.

"All the intelligence that I have, all the energy that I have will be brought to this new position with the hope, and even with the prayer, that the Taft-Hartley law will do what its authors and supporters have hoped."

At Interium Jobs.

The new members will serve until Congress returns in January. Although their names were sent to the Senate two weeks ago for confirmation, no action was taken before adjournment.

The C. I. O. Steel Workers and some other unions, angry over the labor law, have announced they won't use the new NLRB, either to ask for plant elections or to file charges of unfair practices against employers. (This won't prevent employers from filing charges against the unions, starting August 22.)

BLAME LAG ON MINERS

ASSOCIATION SAYS A SHORTER WORK WEEK CUTS OUTPUT.

But U. M. W. Official Replies That Railroad Car Shortage Caused the Sharp Reduction at End of July.

WASHINGTLN, Aug. 1.(AP)—The National Coal association today attributed a lag in soft coal production to the newly-reduced mine work week, but John L. Lewis's miners union said it is caused by a freight car shortage.

The associatio nestimated production for the week which ended July 26 at v1,800,000 tons compared with 12 million a week earlier and 12,603,000 tons for the corresponding week in 1946.

The contract recently negotiated by the mine operators and Lewis's A. F. L. United Mine Workers union reduced daily work hours from nine to eight.

Lewis is away from Washington but a union official said the association's statement:

"Any reduced production is due to the fact that there is not an adequate car supply. It is not due to the new contract. They know that, but they are being paid to cast every reflection upon the miners and discredit the contract in every way they can. Miners cannot load coal unless the mines are operating and the cars are available."

MAY USE LOW GRADE ORE.

Use of Peat as Fuel for Reduction May Solve Problem.

Duluth, Minn.—Peat for fuel might be used to reduce at low cost the low-grade iron ores of Minnesota into concentrates for shipping when the high-grade ore of the Mesabi range is exhausted, the American Society of Civil Engineers was told here by Robert L. Fitzgerald of the Duluth Steam corporation.

He described experimental work on the use of peat already under way. Half the nation's peat deposits are in Northern Minnesota, adjacent to the state's famed iron ranges, he said. Coal for the purpose would have to be obtained from distant points.

Russia, he stated, is processing from 50 to 60 million tons of bog peat into gas and power to serve industrial needs. High peat transportation costs are eliminated by converting the peat into electric power and fuel gas at the site of the bog. Production of the fuel has been greatly stepped up by mechanical handling. Soviet chemists are determining means by which various chemicals can be obtained from the peat.

Mr. Fitzgerald told the engineers about Minnesota work in forming peat into pellets, which may "be the answer to the local metallurgical use of this abundant supply of local low-grade fuel." Peat containing 85 per cent moisture can be easily formed into pellets, he said, the size of which can be controlled. The smaller sizes dry rapidly, and the dried pellets are hard and will not fracture when subjected to rough handling.

'CZECHS NOT LED'

But Masaryk Admits Soviets Said Attending Paris Talks Would Be "Awkward."

DENIES CALL BY REDS

Visit to Kremlin Was Planned Before Parley Was Set, Official Adds.

By JAMES M. LONG.

Prague, Aug. 1.(AP)—Jan Masaryk, foreign minister, said today high Russian leaders had "pointed out" the awkwardness of Czechoslovakia's acceptance of the invitation to the Paris conference on the Marshall proposal.

Masaryk, who returned recently from Moscow, told this reporter he had "needed no guidance" to realize even earlier that his country might have to withdraw from the conference.

(Czechoslovakia first accepted a British-French invitation to discuss the Marshall proposal of U. S. aid in restoring European economy. The country later withdrew the acceptance and spurned any participation in the Marshall proposal talks, as did Russia and all other Eastern European nations in the Russian sphere.)

Still Hope in West.

Masaryk, son of the founder of the republic and himself educated in the United States, gave the first detailed account of his trip to Moscow early in July.

He asserted that he and Klement Gottwald, Communist premier, were not "sent for" and that he had realized even before he talked with Prime Minister Stalin and V. M. Molotov, foreign minister, in the Kremlin that, under existing circumstances, the original decision to go to Paris must be reserved.

He contended there was no change involved in Czechoslovak policy and said Czechoslovakia still needed and hoped to obtain Western aid, at least in the form of "normal commercial loans for specific purposes."

Masaryk said the existing economic alignment need not represent any actual division of Europe.

He declared that, to the contrary, Czechoslovakia was now pressing for a mutual assistance treaty with France of the same kind which she has with the Soviet Union.

No Connection in Moves.

This was his account:

"When the Marshall plan first was mentioned, it was my opinion it might be good for us to take part—under certain reservations.

"Polish ministers visiting here at the time were all of much the same opinion, and said they considered it would be wise to go to Paris.

"There has been some misconstrued idea that we were sent for by Moscow. Gottwald asked two weeks before any talk of the plan for appointments to see Stalin and Molotov to discuss economic relations, since there was considerable room for enlargement of these.

"While we were on the way, the Poles decided against going to Paris. We arrived in Moscow as the only candidates for the trip to Paris, east of the Rhine.

"Before seeing Stalin, I knew at once the situation had become extremely difficult. Some bona fide, but not very useful, speculation had been voiced in the West that 'Czechoslovakia breaks with the Soviet Union' in having accepted the Paris invitation.

Feared Propaganda.

"Then I needed no evidence to realize our presence in Paris would have been used as a tool or hammer for purposes for which we were not willing to be used.

"When leading Soviet statesmen called attention to the fact that our government intentions would be construed as a change in policy, we said wholeheartedly we naturally understood that and could not accept responsibility for causing it.

"Any talk of threats or an ultimatum against Czechoslovakia is silly.

"The discussions were friendly. We took the decision which I cannot but consider the right one under the circumstances."

Long Record Behind Negro Sentenced in U. S. Court.

Paul Andrew Smith, 46 years old, Negro, 919 East Tenth street, was sentenced to seven years and seven days in federal prison today by Judge Albert A. NOTE INDICATES A SUICIDE.

Truck Driver Found in His Room Fatally Shot.

A man who apparently had been dead since yesterday afternoon was found shot in the left side of his head today in his room at 916 Forest avenue. He was identified as James Reed Woolery, 37 years old, a truck driver for the Kaw Transport Co., Inc.

The body was found shortly after 10 o'clock by William E. Nabb, another roomer at the Forest address, who saw newspapers under Woolery's door and obtained a key from the manager when he was unable to arouse the truck driver. A .45-caliber automatic pistol was found at Woolery's feet.

A note on a table in the room signed by Woolery read:

"Pat, dear, I've looked everywhere for you. I love you, sweet. Good-by, Reed. P. S.: Hope you make out okay on the insurance. I love you. Reed."

Police today located Miss Pat Thomas, 25 years old, Marshall, Mo., who has been visiting here recently. Miss Thomas said she and Woolery had planned to be married when he obtained a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Hulda Thomas of Marshall.

Mrs. Adele DeBlassie, Albuquerque, N. M., who has been visiting friends at 916 Forest avenue, told police she heard a shot at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but had ignored it. The body was taken to the Passantino Brothers funeral home.

SALINA PLANES IN TEST.

One of B-29 Pilots Bombing Submarine Pens Is a Kansan.

SALINA, KAS., Aug. 1.(AP)—Three B-29s engaged in deep penetration bomb tests against German submarine pens are from the 97th group based at the Smoky Hill army airfield, the public information office at the field said today.

The planes, temporarily based at Ginbelstadt, Germany, are co-operating with the Royal air force in tests of extra large bombs against Nazi-built sub pens at Farge, Germany.

In command of the B-29s are Capt. George T. Barrentine, Greenwood, Miss.; Capt. Willis Boyd, Meade, Kas., and Lieut. Marcus L. Hill, Cisco, Tex.

TELESCOPE DISCLOSES DEATH.

Philadelphian Focuses on Body in a "Vacant" House.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.(AP)—Thaddeus Judyski, 21-year-old former merchant seaman, sat at a window of his apartment last night experimenting with a newly-purchased telescope.

Focusing on a supposedly-vacant house 100 feet away he saw through a window what looked like a bundle of clothing. Closer study showed it to be a man's leg.

With his brother, Judyski walked to the house and found sprawled in an otherwise empty room the body of Christopher J. Graham, 54-year-old grave digger.

K. U. INTRAMURALS HEAD.

LAWRENCE, KAS., Aug. 1.(AP)—Donald F. Powell has been named the first full-time director of men's intramurals at the University of Kansas, Chancellor Deane W. Malott said today. Powell, completing work for a master's degree in physical education this summer, was assistant director as a graduate student last year.

FEAR FOR VICTIM OF FALL.

The condition of Lemuel Scaraborough, 85 years old, who fell from a second-story window yesterday, was described as critical today at the General hospital. Scarborough, who lives at a home for the aged at 709 Washington street, stumbled while attempting to latch a window at the home.

A BILLFOLD IS STOLEN.

A thief took $5.50 from a billfold in a buffet drawer at the home of Dr. Myron A. Myers, 414 East Fifty-ninth street, last night, while Dr. and Mrs. Myers and their two children were asleep in upstairs bedrooms.

Machines now being built produce enough popcorn in one day to fill a house. The machines are 15 feet long.

AWAIT FOOD CUTS

Sharp Reductions in the British Rations Are Expected Next Week.

BELOW THE WAR LEVEL

London Papers Estimate the Slashes Will Range Up to 50 Per Cent.

London, Aug. 1.(AP)—Immediate large-scale cuts in Britain's meager food rations were forecast today as cabinet ministers studied plans to combat the nation's economic crisis.

A well-informed source close to the government said Prime Minister Attlee would disclose the details in announcing his crisis program in the House of Commons Wednesday.

Meanwhile the Daily Express and Daily Telegraph, persistent critics of the Labor regime, said the cuts would be between 25 and 50 per cent in some foods already rationed more thinly than in wartime.

Details Not Revealed.

The newspapers foresaw deep cuts in meat, butter, grain and tinned foods, especially fruit and vegetables. The source confirmed that sharp reductions were coming, but declined details.

Meat already is rationed to 1 shilling and 2 pence (about 24 cents) worth a week—about enough for one meal. The butter ration is two and one-half ounces a week. Canned food distribution is restricted by a stiff point rationing system.

While the people awaited details of the cuts, a government source said Britain was pressing the United States to relax provisions of the American loan agreement restricting British imports—including food imports—from other nations.

Under the agreement Britain may not increase her expenditures in other nations, except those with war-damaged economies, if the increases are made at the expense of her buying program in the United States.

The source said the government wanted U. S. approval to step up her purchases, expecially food purchases, in her dominions.

Recent reports said the U. S. was willing to relax the agreement so far as it concerned British trade with her colonies, as opposed to the dominions.

Wealth of Food.

Four dominions, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada, are rich in food.

Only in Canada does Britain have to buy with her scarce dollars. In the other dominions, she gets her imports for pounds sterling.

The government source said Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the government's board of trade, had expected to discuss Anglo-Dominion trade with William Clayton, U. S. undersecretary of state for economic affairs, in Paris yesterday.

He could not confirm that the subject actually was discussed at the Cripps-Clayton conference but said if it was not, it would be at a later conference.

Rumors flowed freely in London's financial district as cabinet ministers labored over crisis plans.

Stocks Slump Noted.

The government source emphatically denied one report, published by financial writers, that the government might impose minimum prices on stocks to forestall any possible panic on the stock market, which has been slumping for two weeks.

He discounted, too, reports that the government might requisition the remainder of British-held stocks in dollar concerns to bolster its dwindling dollar resources.

Financial circles speculated that the government might abandon its plan to nationalize the steel industry.

The source said that this speculation was entirely unfounded, but added that the government hoped to induce the executives of the privately-owned steel plants to keep their jobs after the industry is brought under public ownership.

To achieve that end, he said, the government will modify its nationalization plan, which industry has criticized sharply.

Britain Informs U. S. She Must Make New Cuts in Occupation Commitments.

NOW SHARE ON 50-50 BASIS

But With Dollars Dwindling Nation Cannot Continue Importing for Germans.

Informal Talks Are Under Way to Revise Anglo-American Agreement.

Washington, Aug. 1. (AP)—Britain, because of her belt-tightening economic plight, has told the United States informally she must make sharp new cuts in her world stability commitments.

The reason: To stretch for use at home a fast-dwindling supply of American dollars.

Diplomatic authorities said today the informal talks have been going on for several days, centering primarily on revising the Anglo-American agreement for Germany's occupation.

Share Costs With U. S.

Under terms of that agreement signed last December, the two countries merged their occupation zones for economic purposes with costs split on a 50-50 basis.

But, because many of the basic needs for German occupation fall in a category of supplies in which Britain herself is deficient, the British have been forced to turn to the United States for the purchases, paying for their part of the load in dollars.

British officials here insist that there has been no formal request as yet for a change in the 50-50 formula. Rather, they have put it to their American colleagues in this way:

It has become apparent that Britain will run out of dollar credits, perhaps within the next six to eight months, and must reduce imports for which dollar payments are required. If she reduces such imports at home, it is obvious she cannot pay for similar imports to be sent to Germany.

Cost Is 207 Million.

Under the 50-50 plan, Congress appropriated 600 million dollars to pay occupation costs in Germany, Japan and Korea. Of that amount 207 million dollars was earmarked for Germany and—barring the plan's revision—would have to be matched by Britain.

The first indirect move to discuss such a revision formally came in Britain's unsuccessful attempt to widen the scope of coming Anglo-American talks on increasing coal production in Germany's rich Ruhr valley.

London was reported to have hoped that the conversations could take in not only Ruhr coal and its effect upon economic recovery of Europe, but the possibility of lightening Britain's occupation burden, both financially and in manpower requirements.

British spokesmen have advanced the arguments that (a) Britain, too, has coal mines underproducing for lack of manpower and lack of modern equipment and (b) their full production also could give recovery a shot in the arm and strengthen the western powers.

Loan Is Dwindling.

The graveness of Britain's economic predicament was underscored only this week with the disclosure that she had withdrawn another 300 million dollars of her year-old American loan. This left only 1 billion dollars of the 3¾-billion-dollar original credit.

Almost simultaneously there were the first inklings—in the form of published reports from London—that Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government is leaning toward a sharp cut in Britain's 1,300,000-man armed force, with particular emphasis on reductions in the Middle East and in Germany.

Such a military retrenchment in those two areas could create conditions comparable to Britain's financial retrenchment early this year in Greece—a development which produced the Greek-Turkish aid program and a historic revision of American foreign policy.

"MOW DOWN CHINESE REDS."

Nationalists Say Planes Strafe Thousands in Linchu Area.

NANKING, Aug. 1.(AP)—Low-flying government warplanes killed "several thousand" Chinese Communists fleeing from the Linchu area of Western Shantung province in attacks during the past few days, the newspaper Hsin Min Pao reported today.

The newspaper said the planes strafed long columns of men and carts with "deadly effect."

The government announced Thursday that five Red divisions were attacking Linchu, but had suffered "exceedingly heavy" casualties. The government central news agency asserted 40,000 Communists had been "put out of action." However, such casualty claims usually are exaggerated.

Hsin Pao reported from Manchuria that there were new indications the Communists were shifting their strength southward for an assault on Yingkow, port city 110 air miles southwest of Mukden.

A GERMAN MOVIE START

HUNGRY ACTOR TRYING TO REVIVE INDUSTRY THERE.

Shooting Done Entirely in Daylight Because of Lack of Light Bulbs—Extras Clamor for Parts.

BY JUDY BARDEN.
(North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Berlin—Germany is struggling to get back into the movie world. There is little indication that Hollywood need have any fear yet, but an "E" for effort must be handed to these hungary people who obstinately cling to faith in their art.

In Germany, all films must be shot in daylight because of shortage of electricity—and lack of a single light bulb or a handful of nails can stop production.

A SEARCH FOR METAL.

Berlin has been combed for every available piece of metal, chipped bricks and odd parts which can be used to put the Templehof studios into production again. The artists assemble their own wardrobes and build their own sets.

Extras earn about 5 cents an hour, according to the occupation rate of exchange. Brick-cleaning women earn 7 cents an hour. Day after day, hundreds of extras wait for jobs at the music and film exchange office. The film industry cannot employ half these who seek work. There are six licensed studios producing about fifteen films a year, compared to the eighty to 100 pre-war studios.

Today, the D. E. F. A—German film corporation, a Russian licensed nationalized firm, is the only one working on a pre-war level with a staff of about 1,300 workers. "Studio 45," American licensed, has only six regular employees and hires the best of its personnel according to the demands of the day.

German films mostly portray present conditions. This is a break for the extras. They are already tired, hungry and exhausted. They don't have to act at all when playing the parts of refugees, factory workers and brick-cleaning women. They represent themselves in front of the camera.

GOOD HEELS COUNT.

Extras are still chosen for their looks and dress. The girl who loses a heel from her shoe can also lose her job. Another girl is chosen who has two good heels. There is no union to help the extras.

The film exchange office holds many tragic stories. Men and women of all ages wait there. An 83-year-old actress still hopes for another chance. But they are not an unhappy group. They laugh at their misfortunes. In the Berlin film industry it is certainly art for art's sake and not for glamor.

BOUND TO BE HERO.

New York—Robert Merrill, Metropolitan Opera baritone, has announced a prize of $1,000 for a 1-act opera in English by an American composer and librettist. Merrill stipulated that the baritone must win the heroine and must not be cast as the villian. The contest closes February 29, 1948.

A 3-STORY FALL EASY.

Spokane, Wash. — Two-year-old Marilyn Tenby toppled from a third-story apartment house window. Doctors looked for broken bones but couldn't find anything more than a few minor bruises.

OPTIMIST.

"What's an optimist?"

"A guy who thinks his wife has stopped smoking cigarettes when he finds cigar ashes in the house."

JEWS IN ATTACK

Mortar Fire and Grenades Are Directed Upon a British Headquarters.

TROOPS ON THE ALERT

About 200 Persons Detained for Screening After a Police Roundup.

No Casualties Among Hampshire Regiment Are Announced—Area Is Cleared.

Jerusalem, Aug. 1.(AP)—A British regimental headquarters here was attacked today with grenades and mortars and one attacker was killed. Several Jews in Tel Aviv were reported wounded by gunfire from a British armored car which created panic among a funeral procession of 5,000 Jews.

Five grenade and mortar explosions heralded an attack on headquarters of the Hampshire regiment, only 200 yards from the Jewish agency.

Two suspected attackers were captured alive. No casualties among the Hampshires were announced.

About 200 Detained.

Alarm sirens summoned troops to action stations and the area was cordoned off as police began rounding up men for questioning. About 200 persons were held for screening.

In Tel Aviv, private sources said three bursts of gunfire from an armored car manned by policemen wounded several persons in the funeral procession for five Jewish victims of reprisal shootings last night. A score of Jews were wounded in last night's shootings, which a reliable source attributed to Tommies bent on revenge for the hanging by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, of two British sergeants at Natanya. Palestine police have begun an investigation of the shootings.

As the funeral procession, led by the chief rabbi and the city councillors, approached the great synagogue, an armored car manned by British police moved toward it, its Bren guns manned and swinging in arcs. The informants said shots came from the car as it withdrew.

The Tel Aviv incident touched off a series of sharp clashes. Eight young Jews were wounded by gunfire and fifteen others were reported injured in clashes with the police and military.

A private source said troops opened fire when a group of young Jews stormed Barclay's bank and other groups overturned an army truck and stoned the general post-office building.

Capture One Attacker.

The attack on the Hampshire regiment headquarters here was made against the entrance to the perimeter of its defenses. The attackers threw two mattresses over the barbed wire and tossed in a grenade in an attempt to breach the defenses. One of the attackers was shot four times, and he was found lying in the street, a gernade clutched in his hand and a Sten gun magazine in his hip pocket.

A suspicious-looking package was found under one of the mattresses, and sappers investigated it as police instituted the search for the attackers. Eight apartment houses were evacuated of all tenants except for one ill woman, and the places were searched.

Two other suspected attackers were captured alive. Military sources said there were at least four mortar and grenade explosions. It was believed the mortar was hidden in a building near by. A general alarm was sounded bringing British troops to action stations through the tense city.

The sergeants' funerals, with several high military and civil officials attending, were today in Ramle military cemetery.

The funerals of the five Jews killed in Tel Aviv, were scheduled there at 2 p. m. Mayor Israel Rokach called for a 2-hour work stoppage afterward in mourning for the five.

Fire Several Hours.

The Tel Aviv informant said at least eight armored cars opened fire in the city last night. The shooting was said to have lasted several hours.

About 400 British troops attended the funeral services today for their two slain comrades. A Roman Catholic requiem mass was sung for Sergt. Clifford Martin, and Church of England services were conducted for Sergt. Mervyn Paice.

Sherwood foresters formed the honor guard which fired farewell volleys over the graves. Representatives of the Palestine government and the high commissioner attended and several Arab friends of the two sergeants were present.

CUT DOWN ON VA OFFICES.

Extent of Moberly and Poplar Bluff Savings Not Determined.

St. Louis, Aug. 1.(AP)—Subregional offices of the Veterans' administration at Poplar Bluff and Moberly are being redesignated as contact offices, in the interest of economy, the VA regional office here announced.

E. J. Wieland, VA regional manager, said the redesignation was expected to effect savings in personnel, office space and funds, but that the extent of the reduction remained to be determined.

A HOTEL FIRE KILLS 3

FOUR OTHERS ARE INJURED IN BLAZE AT SPOKANE.

Several Guests Are Evacuated by Ladders as Flames Sweep Through 3-Story Building.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 1.(AP) — Three men were killed and four others injured in a fire that swept through the Swanson hotel here this morning.

Dead from asphyxiation are William J. McCaney, 43, Spokane steelworker, and William Goodpasture, 65, Ritzville, Wash. A third man, who burned to death while he attempted to escape the flames, remained unidentified.

Several guests had to be evacuated from their rooms by use of ladders. Firemen had to caution several men and women against jumping from windows.

The fire burned out the first floor of the 3-story frame and brick building and was beginning to catch on the Carni hotel across the court when firemen arrived.

Injured as a result of the blaze were John Erickson, 63, Spokane, who was reported in a fair condition after suffering burns; Alfred Gestoffson, 67, Spokane, who was overcome by smoke; Bert Shimer, 50, who suffered glass cuts and was partly overcome, and A. E. Brown, fireman, overcome by smoke.

J. H. Burton, city fire marshal, said a mattress fire was the cause of the blaze.

CAR ORDINANCE TRIPS KEM.

But Tow-In Fee Is Waived Because of Senator's Recent Absence

Senator James P. Kem, whose 7-month absence in Washington has left him a little rusty on home traffic rule, recovered his motor car yesterday after it had been taken by the police tow truck to the police garage at Twelfth and Charlotte streets for violation of a parking regulation.

Senator and Mrs. Kem had driven downtown and had left the car parked on Walnut street near Tenth. While Mrs. Kem went shopping, the senator went to his office in the Federal building. When the couple returned after 4 o'clock, they found the parking space empty. The senator said it was then he first noticed the sign which said "no parking after 4 p. m."

In a call to police headquarters, Kem learned from Capt. E. K. Burgard, head of the traffic and safety unit, that his car had been removed to the police garage. In view of the senator's recent absence from the city, Burgard excused him from payment of the $3 tow-in fee.

THREATS TO BRICKER

TWO TELEPHONE CALLS SPUR INCREASED POLICE GUARD.

Senator's Mother-in-Law in Columbus Told, "This Time We're Going to Get Him"—Another to Law Office.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1.(AP)—Police disclosed today that Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio had received two threatening telephone calls yesterday and that as a result extraordinary precautions were taken to guard him at the Republican rally here last night.

One of the telephone calls, which police said they believed were made by "cranks," was made to the Bricker home in suburban upper Arlington a few hours before the senator was to take part in a statewide dinner honoring Senator Robert A. Taft. The call was taken by the senator's mother-in-law, Mrs. Maud A. Day, who reported that the caller said:

"This time we're going to get him."

Three weeks ago Senator Bricker was fired upon in Washington by a former capitol policeman.

The other telephone call was made to Bricker's law office in the downtown Leveque-Lincoln Towers office building.

A squad of detectives surrounded Bricker as he appeared for the dinner last night and at the conclusion, he was escorted out a rear door by the officers.

A thorough search also was made of the grounds of the Bricker residence in Tremont road in upper Arlington.

Bricker did not appear unnerved by the telephone calls, persons who attended the dinner reported. He sat near the speaker's platform at a table, and introduced Senator Taft before the latter's address.

Police disclosed that as a "precautionary measure" they also had provided a police escort for Senator Taft last night.

POLIO SPREADS IN BRITAIN.

Despite Estimated 500 Cases, Bevan Says It's No Epidemic.

LONDON, Aug. 1.(UP)—Continental holidays for 6,000 British children were cancelled today because of the spread of infantile paralysis in Britain.

Health Minister Bevan said at least 300 cases of poliomyelitis were expected to be reported in England and Wales for the week ending July 26. This total is nearly double that of the previous week when 177 cases were reported.

Despite the sharp increase, Bevan said there was no evidence that the disease was on epidemic lines, However, the British Medical Journal reported that for the first time Britain appeared to be undergoing an "American experience." Britain never before has had a large-scale incidence of the disease.

A VACATION AT WARNER'S.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.(AP)—Warner Brothers studio announced today a 2-week vacation from movie production following completion of four films next week. All employees not engaged in preparations for forthcoming pictures will be given vacations before production is resumed in mid-August, the studio said.

Danger in Incorrect First Aid For Heat Victims Explained

Safety Council Director Points Out Proper Treatment for Sunstroke and Measures To Be Taken in Case of Exhaustion.

CALLING attention to the fact that one man died from heat exhaustion in Kansas City yesterday, and three others were overcome, George M. Burns, director of the Kansas City Safety council, today reminded Kansas Citians that July and August are the greatest killers, so far as sunstroke and heat exhaustion victims are concerned.

"And," Burns said, "you can kill a man, just as surely as if you murdered him, by treating for one, when he is suffering from the other.

"Sunstroke is usually the result of exposure to the sun. Heat exhaustion can result from exposure to the sun or to any excessive heat. Know the difference between these two summer killers. Be ready to identify the cause of the collapse of your fellow worker or your friend. Be ready to help him, instead of threatening his life with the wrong treatment."

Burns said in sunstroke, the victim's skin is dry and hot to the touch; face red. The victim also has high fever, dizziness, violent headache with shooting pains, breathes hard and loud and may have convulsions.

To treat a sunstroke victim: Remove to shady spot where it is cool; strip to underclothes; place on back, head and shoulders raised; put ice or cold wet cloths on the head; cool body with water or wet cloths; avoid sudden shocks; when conscious and able to drink, give victim cold but not ice water; no stimulants. Call a doctor.

How to tell heat exhaustion: Skin cold, sweating profuse; face pale (sometimes purplish); victim chilly and often has cramps; dizziness—feeling of sickness—a victim may vomit; usually acts dazed; sighs when breathing; evidences part or complete collapse.

Treatment for heat exhaustion: Remove to a quiet, cool place; loosen tight clothing; place flat on back with head low; keep patient warm; when conscious and able to drink, give hot coffee or aromatic spirits of ammonia in water, but not ice water. Call a doctor.

Seek a Fancy Penman to Inscribe Elizabeth's License.

LONDON, Aug. 1.(AP)—The archbishop of Canterbury was looking today for someone who can write fancy enough to inscribe Princess Elizabeth's marriage license.

Royal marriage licenses are usually inscribed by hand with a quill pen in old English block lettering, but the man who had penned them for years is dead and experts in the art of penmanship are hard to find.

The archbishop's office said it had not been decided whether the royal license would be on vellum or parchment. A spokesman said it might be illuminated.

An announcement from Buckingham palace last night said the wedding ceremony would be held November 20 in Westminster abbey.

CAR INTO A UTILITY POLE.

Phillip A. Richards Falls Asleep at the Wheel.

A cab driver, driving his own motor car south on Prospect avenue about 3 o'clock this morning, was injured when the machine struck a utility pole in front of 3516 Prospect. Phillip A. Richards, 26 years old, 3828 Olive street, was taken to the St. Joseph hospital with a possible fractured rib.

Richards told police he had gone to sleep at the wheel. He was booked on a charge of careless driving. Damage to the motor car was estimated at $150.

VETS SWAMP CARNEGIE T.

Pittsburgh—More than 90 per cent of Carnegie Tech students whose studies were interrupted by service in the armed forces have returned to complete their courses. Former servicemen make up approximately 80 per cent of the male student body at Carnegie.

EVICTIONS FOUGHT.

New York—The New York Criminal Courts Bar association has offered a $250 reward for information resulting in the first conviction of any landlord who has evicted a tenant illegally or has tried to do so.

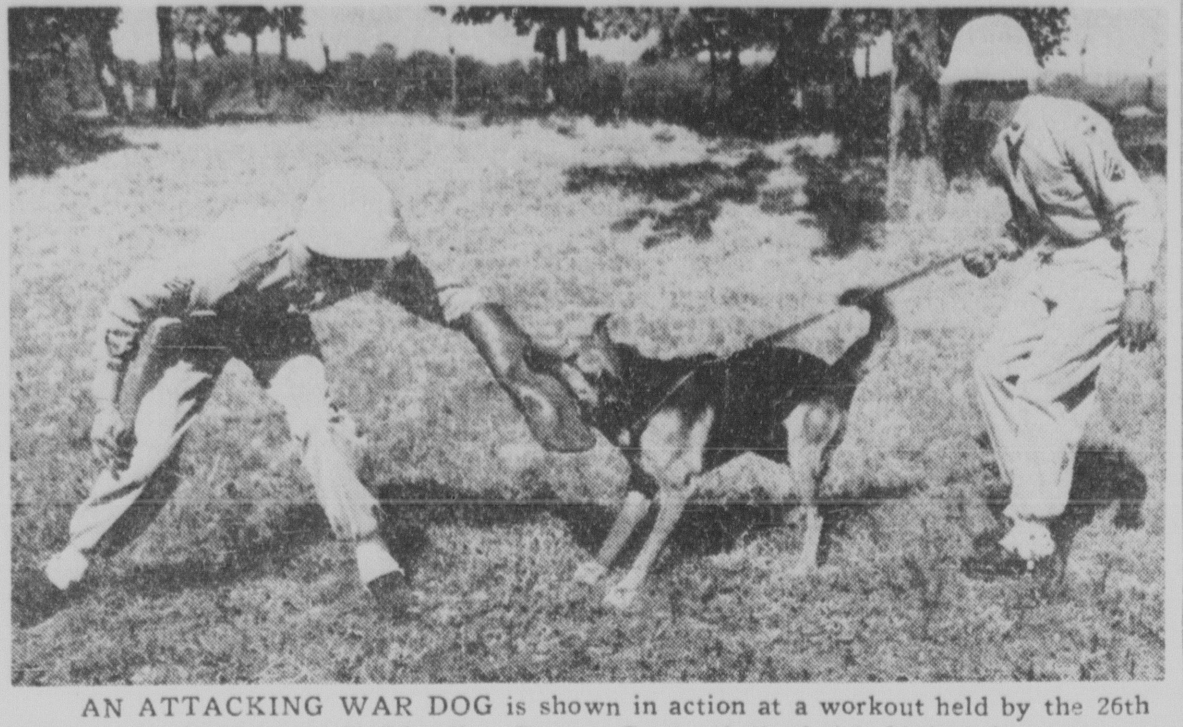
Tradition of Famed K-9 Corps Carried On by Ft. Riley Unit

Through Daily Basic Training and Regular Army Routine, Army Routine, Scout Dogs Are Kept in Training for Future.

BY JOHN ALEXANDER.
(A Member of The Star's Staff.)



AN ATTACKING WAR DOG is shown in action at a workout held by the 26th infantry scout dog platoon at Ft. Riley, Kas. Bruno, a German shepherd, sinks his teeth in a savage onslaught against the "false arm" worn by Sergt. William Layher, left, who has the protection of a saddle leather guard. Holding Bruno's leash is his handler, Tech.-5 Albert Martinez, right. The dog has been trained to attack anybody—except Martinez—(Kansas City Star photograph).

FT. RILEY, KAS., July 31.—The tradition of the 4-legged army animal, which generally has been displaced by trucks, tanks and so on, is being carried on by "man's best friend," although that term falls short of describing the nineteen fierce German shepherds of the 26th infantry scout dog platoon.

The commanding officer of the 26th, Lieut. Lawrence Tait, said the Ft. Riley unit was the only remaining part of the famed K-9 corps.

"I believe the dogs are here to stay," Tait said. "Maybe we'll expand. The word is going around that we'll start three more platoons."

Used for Guard Duty.

The rough-coated canine soldiers of the 26th, Tait said, weren't overseas veterans, although most animals had been on guard or training duty.

"We're keeping them in training," Tait added. "Their noses get a daily workout, by the numbers, because straight smelling, in their case, is as important as straight shooting."

The famed K-9 dogs, which can smell out a hidden enemy sniper at 400 yards, are housed in kennels which are aligned with the regular intervals and spacing of barracks. Lieutenant Tait, accompanied by a visitor and enlisted men, who act as dog handlers, led the way to the kennel area.

The dogs obviously weren't free to roam at will in the enclosure, which is surrounded by a forbidding 8-foot fence and numerous signs which warn visitors that the inmates are strictly unsociable.

In a Limited Space.

The running space of the "K-9s" was limited to the 15-foot radius permitted by half-inch chains which stretched between each heavy leather dog collar and the steel posts beside each kennel. The dogs, generally speaking, were in tree distance; but no two were leashed closely enough to permit a tete-a-tete.

The dogs looked peaceable and quiet, like any ordinary civilian dogs, until Tait and the men escorted the visitor through the gate in the tall fence. Then a heavyset German shepherd, which looked as if its grandfather might have been a Great Dane, growled in a manner that reminded one of the big lion at the Swope park zoo. Other dogs began barking, and the scene was soon a roaring pandemonium.

Several dogs, red-eyed monsters with hair bristling on backs, lunged the full length of the chains. The visitor edged to the away-from-the-dogs side of Lieutenant Tait and asked whether the dogs ever broke the links.

Puzzled by Escapes.

"Yes, once in a while," Tait replied. "And we can't figure out how they do it. If they're fighters (and most of them are) they usually wind up by tangling with some other dog."

To check on A. W. O. L.s, Tait said, the roll was checked every hour.

Being inside the enclosure with the dogs made the visitor feel he was in a cage with wild animals. Adding to this sensation, which produced a clammy feeling even on a warm day, was Tait's explanation of the fact that these were 1-man dogs.

"Each dog has one friend—his handler," Tait related. "Any other man, as a result of the agitation training, is regarded as an enemy."

The visitor looked at the lunging animals and estimated the distance to the nearest tree. It was a catalpa, possibly not tall enough. What should one do if a dog, especially that tough brown and black one, broke the chain?

Folly in Flight.

"That dog," Tait answered, "would be too quick for you. You couldn't get away. If you ran, he would tear you up worse than if you stood still. You might try to grab his lower jaw—that is, if you could hang onto it."

The visitor's nervous feeling wasn't enhanced as he surveyed the dog's lower jaw. It looked like the business part of a heavy steel trap, and was snapping like one. The upper jaw didn't look any better. Both were studded with inch-long teeth—teeth that clearly would have the tearing power of needles and the compressive strength of bolt cutters.

This agitation business, Tait said, was part of the basic training of each dog, which is taught loyalty only to its own handler. The other handlers, during agitation, swish at the animal with newspapers and tease it in other ways. The result is the 1-man dog is obedient only to a personal "boss." The other handlers and all other men are persons of whom the dogs would like nothing better than a good healthy bite—and the handlers, consequently, know what it is to be bitten.

Bites were described as "part of the trade" by Sergt. William Layher, who has felt teeth four times during his eighteen months in the work.

Shows Tooth Marks.

"Look at this," the sergeant said, rolling up the left shirt sleeve and pointing to a row of red marks above the elbow. "This was my last bite—eight tooth marks."

Sometimes the dogs are permitted to sink their teeth in a "false arm." This device, made of saddle leather and lined with blanketing, is worn over the arm of the attacked decoy to prevent injury.

In "basic training" each dog learns to obey such simple commands as "sit," "heel" and "down." Obedience, in the military manner, without barking back, is one of the fundamentals. The finished scout dog understands fifteen or twenty words, of which the key word is "Watch!" It might be regarded as synonymous with "Attack!" or "Sic 'em, Fido!"

The command, "Watch," alerts the dog when he is in the field ferreting out the enemy. In the daily workouts, the other handlers of the platoon act as decoys. The dog and his handler work upwind. No two men have the same scent, so the dog reacts promptly when it gets a whiff of the decoy. No two dogs give the same sign. One dog will "alert" by cocking an ear; another's hair will rise on its back.

Moves In on Decoy.

To give the dog the idea it is master of the situation, the handler, permits the animal to move in on the decoy, who arises, runs a few steps and then pretends to fall dead.

The dogs are trained to operate with their noses off the ground, to keep them from being distracted by any scents other than air-borne. As the wind blows from the decoy toward the dog, the scent spreads out in a widening angle called the "cone of scent."

As soon as a scout dog detects the enemy's scent the handler leads the animal back and forth, at right angles to the wind. For some unknown reason, the dogs give three "alerts"—once on each side of the cone and once in the center. The location of the points where the alerts are given, together with the strength of the dog's reaction, enables the handler to estimate not only the distance and direction of the enemy from the animal, but also whether there is only one of the foe, or a squad.

Tait said "dog psychology" was used during the 3-month period of basic training.

"We praise them for doing the right thing," he said. "That contrasts with the brute force used by the Germans in training dogs, and with the English system—they feed 'em tidbits."

Tait said the only way a dog ever was punished was by tightening the choke chain on the collar.

Some Fail in Course.

Like all good soldiers, the dogs have serial numbers and get their meals, physical training, even their "shots" (for rabies) with precise regularity as prescribed in War department circular number so and so. Even as with men in the army, it isn't every dog that makes the grade. One was washed out recently for failing to fit in. He was a purebred, too high strung to stand the strain. The dog handlers find the best strain is German Shepherd with a touch of something else, and the pedigrees don't count as much as the performance.

The K-9s are kept strictly on the ball. The only questionable activity seen at Ft. Riley was the digging of holes near the kennels. One burrow was deep and wide, leading to a den completely out of sight.

Lieutenant Tait observed that the dogs' digging was good exercise for the forelegs and that it was cool in the underground resting places.

"We figure there's no use in discouraging the digging," he said, "we don't want too much of it, of course, so we limit each dog to one hole."

TRY PICKETING ON 7TH FLOOR.

Los Angeles Group Is Directed to Street by Dutch Consul.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.(AP)—Dr. Adrian Hartog, Netherlands consul here, was surprised when five men presented themselves at his office yesterday for picket duty.

He directed them to the street seven floors below where forty persons carried placards protesting the war in Indonesia.

Later a spokesman for the pickets presented a resolution demanding withdrawal of Dutch trops. Dr. Hartog politely gave them a written reply explaining his government's position.

BARES AN OPA SECRET

ECONOMIST SAYS CODE PLAN WAS READY TO RATION CLOTHING

Certain Apparel Also Was to Be Standardized When Scheme Was Killed, an Agency History Reveals.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.(AP) — An "underground" OPA staff, disguised with a phony title and using code words, prepared an abortive plan to ration clothing in 1943, a former OPA economist disclosed today.

A companion plan called for "standardizing" several clothing items, according to Wilfred Carcel, former chief economist for OPA's apparel branch.

Carcel tells of the ill-fated plans in a history of wartime price controls on clothing, released today.

Work on the apparel rationing program began in March, 1942, Carcel wrote. As part of a new price control program planned for early 1943, a timetable proposed shoe rationing in February to be followed by textiles and apparel in April.

STAFF IS KEPT READY.

"With apparel rationing regarded as a virtual certainty," Carcel said, "the apparel rationing staff expanded considerably at the turn of the year.

"To maintain the utmost secrecy of plans and prevent the repetition of hoarding and buying sprees accompanying preparation of previous rationing programs, the staff went 'underground,' disguising itself as the 'miscellaneaus products division.'

"Shoes, in office language, became 'oysters' and clothes were referred to as 'clams.' A clothes rationing stamp was devised, cleared, and sent to the printer.

"Since rationing was expected momentarily, a telegram announcing this fact was drafted and kept on hand. In code, it read: 'The clams are in the stew and we are in the soup'."

STARTS A BUYING SPREE.

When shoe rationing was ordered February 7, 1943, rumors spread throughout the country that clothing would be rationed next, he recalled, adding:

"The result was a buying spree of alarming proportions. Clothing and department stores were literally stormed.

"The Office of Economic Stabilization frantically telephoned OPA to have an apparel rationing plan ready within a day. But the War Production board and the Office of Civilian Requirements took the position that retail inventories were sufficiently large to weather the buying spree."

Nevertheless, OPA kept the plan on ice throughout the war, revised and ready for adoption at any time, Carcel said.

"WAR MODEL" CLOTHING.

He explained that the plan was tied in with a program for "war model garments." Under this companion move, a number of clothing items were to be standardized and simplified in appearance, quality and price.

Ditching of the rationing plan was signaled after industry and Congress bitterly opposed a similar standardization and "dollars-and-cents" pricing plan for hosiery.

British General Says Rebuilding a Sign of Fine Determination.

KURE, JAPAN, Aug. 1.(AP)—If the people of Hiroshima progress as much in the ways of democracy as they have in rebuilding their atom-bombed city, "the effect on Japan will be beneficial and enduring," Lieut. Gen. H. C. H. Robertson said today.

Robertson, commander-in-chief of British occupation forces, sent a message to city officials on the eve of a second anniversary observance of the bombing.

Noting that the people of Hiroshima had decided to model their new city on western lines, Robertson offered "any assistance that I am able to give in the replanning of the city." He called reconstruction thus far "a sign of progress and proof of the people's ability to surmount and overcome adversity."

WIFE NOW DOUBTS KINDNESS.

Polishing Husband's Shoes Won't Keep Him Home, She Tells Court.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.(AP)—Can a bride count on keeping her husband by polishing his shoes for him?

That question was answered in Superior court, where Mrs. Therese Lytle received a divorce from Earl Lytle, jr., 23.

She told the court she considered it her wifely duty to keep his shoes looking nice. Then forty-four days after their marriage, she said, he went out of her life—shoes and all.

Proper Salute for New Secretary Of Defense Now Worries Navy Minds

The President Gets 21 Guns and the Secretary of the Navy 19 Guns—New Cabinet Officer Should be in Between but Custom Rules Out Even-Numbered Recognition.

By Arthur Edson.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.(AP)—If the secretary of the navy is entitled to a 19-gun salute (and he is), how many guns will the new, higher ranking secretary of defense be entitled to?

This obviously is a pressing naval problem and some of the best minds in Washington are hard at work on it.

You see, the President is entitled to a 21-gun salute, both when he comes to the ship and when he leaves. The same goes for a foreign president, a member of a royal family or a former President.

A vice-president, an ambassador or a cabinet officer other than secretary of the navy gets a 19-gun salute upon leaving the ship.

Immediate Boss Gets the Works.

The navy, which knows which side its anchors are buttered on, thinks the secretary of the navy is something pretty special. It gives him the 19-gun works coming and going.

Obviously, the secretary of defense should get everything the secretary of the navy gets—and a little more, too. Yet he can't be allowed as much attention as the President.

Of course, the secretary of the navy could be reduced. But that would mean the navy would make more racket over the secretary of, say, the interior than over its own boss.

What to do?

Well, clever little you immediately says: "Give him a 20-gun salute."

Never an Even Number.

Hush your mouth, clever little you. Don't you know the navy never gives even-numbered salutes? Nobody knows why. But it may be because even numbers once meant the captain had died during a cruise.

Fortunately, at least two other customs won't be disturbed. Leland P. Lovette, in his book "Naval Customs," points out that all big shots are entitled to four ruffles (on drums, not dresses).

The secretary of defense also will get eight side boys. Years ago the side boys would lift visiting dignitaries aboard during rough weather. Special gangplanks have ended all that, but the men still are there.

The British go even further. As the visiting fireman walks briskly aboard, they still yell, as they did during storms 300 years ago:

"Hoist him in!"

A GHOST TOWN FOR SALE.

High Bidder for Rhyolite, Nev., Also Will Get Casino and Saloon.

LAS VEGAS, NEV., Aug. 1.(UP)—A Nevada town complete with railroad station, bar, casino and bottle house was for sale today.

A Las Vegas realtor said the highest bidder would get the famous ghost town of Rhyolite, located near Beatty, 150 miles north of here.

Rhyolite used to belong to Wes Moreland, pioneer miner, who was known as "the greatest liar in the West." He died a few months ago after a colorful life in western mining.

BRITISH IN FOOD TALKS.

Missions Are Negotiating With Hungary and Yugoslavia.

LONDON, Aug. 1.(AP)—The British government last night announced two new financial agreements with Yugoslavia which were described as designed to open the way for "further discussions on trade and connected matters."

John Strachey, food ministry, disclosed in the House of Commons recently that British trade missions were negotiating with both Yugoslavia and Hungary, mainly for food.

AUSTRALIAN GIRLS ELUSIVE.

Three Being Deported From U. S. Disappear in Honolulu.

HONOLULU, Aug. 1.(AP)—Three Australian girls who were being deported from the United States walked off a plane taking them back home when it landed here and they haven't been seen since.

Immigration authorities say they have no idea of the whereabouts of Norma Hughes, Wanda Sauverian and Sandra Lee.

Immigration service officials in San Francisco said the three were reported Sunday night after it was found they entered the United States illegally at New Orleans. They reached here Monday.

Local authorities knew nothing about the case until inquiries were made by the Sydney Daily Telegraph as to the girls whereabouts.

Pan American added to the mystery by saying its pasenger list for Sydney contained the names of Miss Hughes, Miss Sauverian and an Elma Mitchell, but, there was no Sandra Lee.

The area of New Zealand equals the total area of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Rhode Island.

ART AND ARTISTS.

TWO UNUSUAL EXHIBITS OPEN SUNDAY AT ART GALLERY

Finger-Paintings by Originator, Ruth Faison Shaw, and Camera Studies by Frank Meister to be Shown Through August.

FINGER - PAINTINGS by Ruth Faison Shaw, a member of the staff of the Menninger foundation at Topeka, and camera studies by Frank Meister, Kansas City bank teller and amateur photographer, will open the August exhibitions Sunday at the William Rockhill Nelson Gallery of Art. The exhibits will continue through August 31.

The south loan gallery will contain forty-eight color paintings by Miss Shaw. The studies in black and white, numbering seventy-five, will be displayed in the central loan gallery.

A MEDIUM OF EXPRESSION.

That finger-painting is a flexible medium of expression is apparent in "Il Crepusculo," a bird of war. The painter has produced an eagle, crestfallen because of its backseat position, but with a crafty tilt to its head that creates the illusion the bird is looking for trouble.

Another painting with a story is "The Garnet Ring," showing a jaded woman, who is displaying her ring by the position of her left hand. The woman is said to represent a foreign acquaintance of the painter's. She is trying to hold on to fast-fading youth and beauty. The gesture with the ring typifies her desperate clutching for the past.

FISH SEEM TO MOVE.

Catching the flowing effect of underwater plants and other marine life, several of the paintings show graceful fish.

Other interesting paintings are an "Elephant in St. Louis," "Gallup, N. M.," a rhythmatic treatment of three Indians, "Easter Bonnet," eight Chinese studies, and the "Symbols of Harvest." An eye-catching abstraction in black and white, is "Two Griefs." "The Kansas Market," is a vivid still-life of fruits. The picture originally was titled "My Kansas Garden" until someone noticed a pineapple in the center.

ANIMALS REPRESENT A FAMILY.

"Tense Moment," pictured by prehistoric animals, actually represents a modern family. A young son has become upset by watching his mother fall in love with another man besides her husband. A dragon represents the intruder and the other animals are the alerted, offended members of the family.

Resembling an etching is "Chinese Junk." This painting shows the degree of line fineness that can be achieved by finger-painting.

Miss Shaw originated the idea of finger-painting more than eighteen years ago in her school in Rome. Since, she has developed a special paint and paper for the art. She taught the techniques of finger-painting to 300 psychiatrists at the Menninger foundation and to veterans at the Winter Veterans' administration hospital at Topeka.

RANGE IN CAMERA STUDIES.

Meister's camera studies cover a wide range. Included in the exhibition, which was shown in the Smithsonian Institution of Washington last February, are many church interiors and exteriors.

The pictures express different moods of Kansas City. The 16x20-inch mountings of "Eleventh Street," "Side Street" and "The Letter," showing a country woman taking her mail from the roadside box, are scenes that have caused the passing observer to say, "I wish I had a picture of that."

One of the best human interest shots is "Apothecary," a portrait of an elderly man using a mortar and pestle, amid rows of bottles. Several portraits of Dr. Clarence R. Decker, president of the University of Kansas City, are in the exhibit. Also shown are enlargements of animals, buildings and landscapes.

Meister, who is chief teller in the savings department at the First National bank, has exhibited his work in 174 major salons of America, England and Ireland.

The recently organized Kansas City chapter of the National Society of Music and Art will sponsor the finger-painting exhibition. This is the first project of the organization. It is the aim of the society to acquaint the public with the therapeutic values of finger-painting, which has proved valuable with hospitalized servicemen and as a medium of expression for both adults and children.

Hostesses will be at the gallery each Sunday from 3 to 6 o'clock to answer questions about the paintings.

A gilded bronze image of a seated Buddha, a new acquisition of the gallery, is the August masterpiece. It will give the collection of Chinese religious sculpture an example of the Chinese Buddhist art of the late middle ages. The ornate masterpiece represents the North China revival of the eleventh century, which showed sculpture influenced by painting. The figure is well-proportioned.

Hours for August in the air-conditioned gallery are:

Sunday—2 to 6 o'clock.
Monday—Closed.
Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday—10 to 5 o'clock.
Friday—1 to 5 o'clock.

COMPETE WITH U. S. "VOICE."

Russians Schedule Popular Program for the Same Periods.

Moscow, Aug. 1.(AP)—The "Voice of America," which started a second nightly broadcast Tuesday, now is being heard clearly here, but is meeting stiff competition from Soviet radio programs.

Moscow stations have scheduled a play and two concerts for the hour of the first broadcast tonight from the United States, at 8 p. m., and more music to coincide with the second at midnight—some of the most popular Russian entertainment of the day.

Both United States broadcasts last night came through clear and strong with little interference.

HEDDA GETS A FRIGHT

IN THE ROCKIES A FRIEND SUGGESTS AN 8-MILE DRIVE.

But She Failed to Mention It Was "Straight Up" and Vic Mature's Car Slides Down a Canyon.

(Hedda Hopper, who halted her U. S. tour here Wednesday, had already filed dispatches from previous stopovers between Hollywood and Kansas City. The following is another of the series written earlier in the week.)

By HEDDA HOPPER.

CENTRAL CITY, COLO., Aug. 1.—Rolling along perfect roads from Salt Lake City we hit the Rockies, climbed them, and took the Great Divide in stride. In the midst of all its majestic beauty, I kept thinking how Lassie would have enjoyed it: Miles of virgin forests, with waterfalls, wild flowers, ferns, moss-covered banks, and snow-capped peaks in the background. . . . We did all right until we hit Idaho Springs, Colo., where we were just about to put up for the night when we had a call from Marietta Vasconcells, festival chairman, saying, "why not push on to Central City, and spend the night there with Caroline Bancroft. You'll be housed under the same roof with the Burns Mantles and at breakfast can talk over what you'll say at the round-table theater discussion at Central City's opera house tomorrow."

Our good friend said the distance was only eight miles, but she neglected to tell us it was straight up. Hoping to get there before nightfall, we took the wrong road. A Rocky mountain goat would have had difficulty following it. The first time Lucius Beebe saw it, he threw himself down in the bottom of his car, closed his eyes, and nearly died of fright until he reached the top. We didn't reach the top without help. Our Vic Mature car stalled on a one-way stretch, and started sliding down the canyon. My companions dashed out and nearly dislocated their shoulders putting rocks under the hind wheels. I sent Spec McClure down the trail for a mechanic. He sized up the situation, and returned with an undertaker. And brother, this body was waiting for him. He felt my pulse, discovered I was alive, and drove us the rest of the way up the mountain. I remarked, "with this pure air and mountain scenery, I don't suppose you have much business." Said he, "you reckon wrong—I had nine funerals last month. Three of them accident victims." "On this hill?" asked I. But he wouldn't say where.

Arriving in Central City, I located my hostess's home, which was built on a hill even steeper than the one we had just climbed. The gal who rescued us was Polly Grimes. When I told her we were in Vic Mature's car, she took off up a hill that would have made an eagle dizzy. She now has my dizziest hat as a reward. . . . The following morning, as I surveyed Central City, after breakfasting with the Burns Mantles, I decided it was worth the twenty years the trip has taken off my life.

This is real Americana, where relatives of the town's early settlers keep the love of the theater and opera alive year after year. The place is a gem of Victorian architecture. I learned that the miners, who came in 1863, were cultured, college graduates. Many were from Boston, New England and Georgia. They built their homes in the New England style, even to having a "widow's walk" around the top of the roof. It was from the "widow's walks" in Massachusetts that fishermen's wives looked out to get the first glimpses of their returning husbands. The natives mined gold by daylight, and followed cultural pursuits at night by reading Shakespeare and Dante. One of the first things they did was to build an opera house. You'll find no more charming structure anywhere. It is just as it was when built. Each year a group of opera and theater lovers brings top talent from all over the world for their show season. This year they're doing—delightfully—"Fidelio" and "Martha" with metropolitan stars. Following that, they'll have Frank Fay in "Harvey;" with Producer Brock Pemberton, and its authoress, Denver-born Mary Chase, as honored guests.

(Copyright, 1947, the Chicago Tribune.)

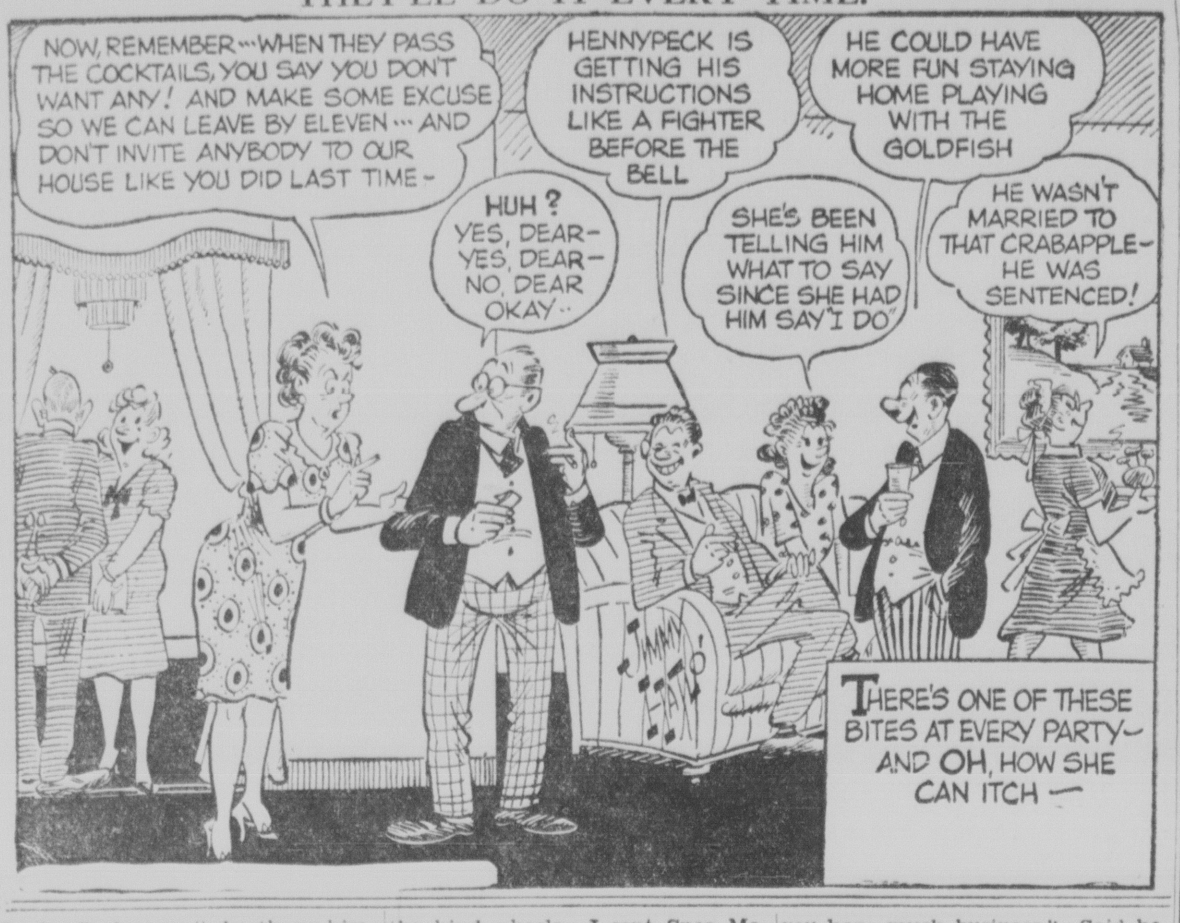
THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME.



NOW, REMEMBER...WHEN THEY PASS THE COCKTAILS, YOU SAY YOU DON'T WANT ANY! AND MAKE SOME EXCUSE SO WE CAN LEAVE BY ELEVEN...AND DON'T INVITE ANYBODY TO OUR HOUSE LIKE YOU DID LAST TIME-
HUH? YES, DEAR- YES, DEAR- NO, DEAR OKAY..

TO TESTIFY FOR "INFORMER."

Three Filipinos Called to U. S. for the Hirshberg Trial.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.(AP)—Defense counsel for Harold E. Hirshberg, 29, charged by the navy with maltreating fellow prisoners in Japanese prison camps, said at his court-martial trial today that three Filipinos would come here to testify in Hirshberg's behalf next week.

Lieut. Comdr. John J. O'Neil, defense counsel, said two Filipino men and one Filipino woman would leave Manila by plane Monday to testify at the trial in Brooklyn navy yard. He did not disclose their identities.

As the defense resumed testimony, Lawrence J. Jordan, 27, of Chicago, a former army sergeant and survivor of the Bataan death march, declared that Hirshberg "frequently" interceded with Japanese prison guards to permit ill prisoners to rest.

"Did you ever see Hirshberg give unreasonable treatment to any man?" O'Neil asked.

"I did not," Jordan replied. "Hirshberg carried out orders given by the Jap guards."

FRIGHT TWISTED HIS STORY.

Youth, Who Blamed Nail for Rifle Wound, Dies in Hospital.

ST. JOHNSBURY, VT., Aug. 1.(AP)—He didn't want his parents to scold him for playing with a .22-caliber rifle, so he said nothing about the bullet that pierced his intestines.

Instead, Carlton Langmaid, 8 years old, told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Langmaid, he fell on a nail. That was late Tuesday afternoon. He had been playing in the barn with his brother, Ronald, 10.

The intense pain, however, forced Carlton to ask for a doctor. He was taken to Brightlook hospital. An operation was performed. The bullet was removed.

But, late last night, Carlton died.

Old Man Coyote Laughs at Bowser

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

OLD MAN COYOTE isn't to be wholly blamed for laughing when Bowser the Hound ran straight into trouble. Of course, it wasn't a bit nice of him to laugh, but what could you expect when he knew that that trouble into which Bowser had blindly run had been prepared for himself? After all, it wasn't so much at Bowser that he was laughing as at Bowser's master, who, you know, is Farmer Brown's Boy. Old Man Coyote was laughing to think how he had been smart enough to outwit Farmer Brown's Boy and lead Bowser right into the trouble which had been intended for him.

When Farmer Brown's Boy had started out that morning to look at the traps he had set for Old Man Coyote there had been a great cackling and squawking of fright among the ducks and chickens and Bowser had started right away to find out what it meant. Right away he had found the fresh tracks of Old Man Coyote, just as the latter had meant that he should. In fact, Old Man Coyote had frightened the ducks and chickens just so that Bowser would try to find out what the matter was. Off Bowser had started on Old Man Coyote's trail, barking at the top of his lungs. Old Man Coyote kept just far enough ahead of Bowser to make him think that he would catch up in a few minutes.

Straight away across the Green Meadows went Old Man Coyote toward the far corner, where his home was. Old Granny Fox and Reddy Fox heard Bowser's voice and they knew what it meant. They had heard it so often behind them that now they looked at each other and grinned to think that it meant trouble for someone else and particularly because it meant that Old Man Coyote was having to run for his life. At least they supposed that that was what he was doing. You know, they have no love for Old Man Coyote. Old Granny Fox was very much surprised when she saw that he was running straight for his home. She turned up her nose.

"I always supposed that Old Man Coyote was reasonably smart," said she, "but I was mistaken. A six months' old Fox would know better than to go to his home until he just had to and was sure that he couldn't fool the dog. Hello, what's that? What's happened to that silly dog?"

Both he and Reddy pricked up their ears. They heard just what Farmer Brown's Boy heard and which set him to running as fast as he could—yelps and howls of pain and fright from Bowser the Hound. You see, Old Man Coyote hadn't been stupid at all, as Granny supposed. He had gone straight home for a purpose, and that purpose was to get Bowser the Hound into the very trouble which was making him howl so now. As he drew near his home Old Man Coyote had allowed Bowser to almost catch up with him, and Bowser had grown so excited that he couldn't think of anything else. Now, Old Man Coyote knew just exactly where each trap was that Farmer Brown's Boy had set for him and when he reached the first of these he lightly jumped over it.

But Bowser wasn't thinking of traps. He could think of nothing but catching Old Man Coyote. When he reached the trap, which, you know, was hidden, he didn't see or smell it. He put one foot squarely into it. Snap! Two cruel steel jaws seized Bowser's leg, and he was a prisoner! He was caught in the very way that Farmer Brown's Boy had meant that Old Man Coyote should be caught. And sitting down just a little way off and and laughing at him was Old Man Coyote himself.

ULYSSES S. WEBB, 83, DIES.

As California Attorney General, He Ruled Draw Poker a Skill.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.(AP)—Ulysses Sigel Webb, the former California attorney general who ruled that draw poker is a game of skill, died yesterday. He was 83 years old.

Webb was a Republican but each of the nine times he ran for the office of attorney general he won both the Republican and Democratic nominations. He served from 1902 to 1938.

A native of Flemington, W. Va., Webb came to California in 1888.

Webb was rounding out his first decade in office when he ruled that draw poker was a game of skill, rather than chance, and therefore could not be outlawed. His decision has never been challenged.

It was Webb who, after asserting that the Japanese planned large scale settlement in California, drew the alien land bill reserving the right of ownership of California land to citizens and to those eligible to citizenship.

A Vaccine Making Cotton Rats Immune to Polio Is Produced

Group of Stanford University Researchers Avoids Any Suggestion Their Product Might Be Used for Humans, However—Covers Only One Strain of Disease.

BY RENNIE TAYLOR.
(Associated Press Science Reporter.)

PALO ALTO, CALIF., Aug. 1. (AP)—A vaccine which makes cotton rats immune to infantile paralysis was announced today by a group of Stanford university medical and chemical researchers.

This vaccine is a relatively crude extract of the brains and spinal cords of mice and monkeys which had been infected with the disease.

After a series of injections of this substance, test rats remained resistant to the disease even when given fabulous amounts of polio virus.

The virus was produced by Dr. Hubert S. Loring, Dr. C. E. Schwerdt, Nancy Lawrence and Jane Collier Anderson under a grant from the national foundation for infantile paralysis. They reported their work in the Journal of Science.

Although this is the second recent step in the production of polio vaccine by American researchers, they all have avoided any suggestion that their products might be used to protect humans against the disease.

The new Stanford vaccine was tried only on cotton rats, which are highly susceptible to one particular strain of polio virus. This is the so-called Lansing strain, which was taken from a human subject many years ago and has been widely propagated in laboratories for tests on animals.

The other recent vaccine was produced at Johns Hopkins poliomyelitis research center by Dr. Isabel Morgan, Dr. Howard A. Howe and Dr. David Bodian. It was rated as having produced substantial immunity in monkeys.

The Johns Hopkins vaccine also was made from the Lansing strain of polio virus.

The main difference between the two vaccines is that the Johns Hopkins product was made out of living polio viruses while the Stanford substance contains only viruses which have been inactivated by chemicals.

Bradley Orders Review of Entire Construction Program as Money Runs Short.

FEAR 100 MILLION HIKE

With Contractors Asking Up to 35 Per Cent More, Nonessentials May Be Eliminated.

Washington, Aug. 1.(AP)—General Omar Bradley today ordered a review of the $772,702,845 veterans hospital construction program, saying "runaway construction costs" have outdistanced available funds.

The veterans administrator said recent contractors' bids have run 15 to 35 per cent above the most generous government estimates. He said, "There is evidence that contractors are adding a 15 to 30 per cent fear contingency cushion to construction bids."

Unless plans are modified, he said, as much as 100 million dollars additional may be required.

Accordingly, Bradley said in a letter to assistant and deputy VA administrators, he has instructed army engineers to reduce "as far as possible" nonessential hospital space in structures under design.

"This may mean elimination from some hospitals of such desirable but nonessential features as adequate staff and office space, doctors' quarters, theaters and other facilities ordinarily associated with veterans hospitals.

"As desirous as Congress is of providing maximum entertainment and recreational facilities in veterans hospitals, some members of the House appropriations committee indicated to me that they could not justify—at this time—theaters in general medical hospitals.

"Prohibitive construction costs require that tax money be funneled primarily into those facilities that are of direct aid in the medical treatment of patients."

Await Word Here.

Army engineers said today that preliminary plans for the veterans hospital here have been in Washington awaiting approval for some time, and that recommendations for modifications in line with Bradley's statement should arrive in the near future.

The engineers said the plans as drawn were based on building costs at that time, but that recent "upward trends" in construction, when viewed in line with the appropriations of Congress for the veterans hospital program, have been responsible for the modifications.

ASKS AID FOR CO-SIGNERS.

Reeves Will Press for Bill to Avoid Bankruptcy Actions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.(AP)—Representative Reeves of Kansas City said today he will press for action in January on his measure providing that co-signers of notes shall have the same benefits as wage-earners in proceedings for a wage-earner payment program under the bankruptcy act.

The bill has been approved by the House judiciary committee and is ready for House action when Congress returns.

Reeves explained that wage-earners do not have to take bankruptcy under the terms of the act.

If a worker has prospects of working out a program for payment of his debts, Reeves said, he can file a petition with the courts to get his creditors to co-operate with him in paying 100 per cent of the debt with court sanction.

"But this right to postpone payments does not extend to the co-signers of notes," Reeves told a reporter. "Debtors can, if they desire, proceed against the co-signer. That fact has compelled many persons to abandon the benefits of the wage-earner plan and take bankruptcy in order to protect their co-signers."

Fifteen Nations Will Share in Heavy Industry Reparations.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM, Aug. 1.(AP)—The interallied reparations agency announced today it had decided to allocate Hamburg's famous Blohm and Voss shipyard and twenty-two other German industrial concerns to fifteen nations, including the United States.

Three chemical plants, a factory containing machine tool workshops and eighteen mechanical plants used for war production were two other concerns to be distributed under the terms of the Potsdam agreement.

The Blohm and Voss shipyard was one of the largest in Germany. Fifteen of the eighteen member governments of the agency made claims for all or part of the plant.

The agency decided to divide the plant among the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Albania, Australia, Belgium, Denmark, Greece, India, Luxembourg, New Zealand, Norway, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. The proportions to each and the estimated value were not specified.)

Chinese Tell Baptists of Need for a "Marshall Plan."

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 1.(AP)—Dr. Henry Lin, president of Shanghai university, appealed to the world today on behalf of 500,000 Baptists in East Asia to "give us a Marshall plan."

The Marshall proposal was for United States assistance to European countries willing to help themselves, but it still must be approved and financed by the United States Congress.

Lin spoke before the Baptist World Alliance's seventh Congress. He said he observed conditions in Western Europe while on the way to Copenhagen and was convinced that the Marshall proposal was needed urgently. But, he added:

"Conditions in East Asia show a desperate need of initiative."

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.(AP)—Striking employees of Bethlehem shipyards, idle since June 26, stood firm today on their demand for a 13-cent hourly increase after rejecting a company offer of 12 cents which, the strikers' spokesman said, "would have been nullified by contract changes upon which it insisted."

POLIO CASES IN A DROP

ONLY THREE PATIENTS REPORTED THUS FAR THIS YEAR.

Decline From High 1946 Figures Is in Line With the Cycle of the Disease Here.

Only three cases of polio have been reported so far this year in Kansas City, a sharp contrast to a year ago at this time, when thirty-seven cases occurred in July alone.

The 1946 polio toll here was 215 cases and twenty-one deaths. None of the three cases here this year has proved fatal.

TWO BOYS INCLUDED.

Of the three cases in the records of Dr. Hugh L. Dwyer, city health director, one was a 3-year-old boy reported February 25, another a 16-year-old boy reported April 25 and the third a 2-year-old girl reported June 6. Only the girl suffered severe paralysis.

In addition, four nonresident cases have been treated here. A 13-year-old Freeburg, Mo., boy was admitted to the General hospital April 1. Two brothers, ages 8 and 12, were admitted to the Children's Mercy hospital April 28 and May 3, respectively, from Eldorado Springs, Mo., and a 5-year-old boy from Cowgill, Mo., also was treated there May 4.

The drop this year followed the pattern of a 3-year cycle of recurrence shown by health department records. Recent years of high polio incidence here have been 1937, with ninety-nine cases and fifteen deaths; 1940, with eighty-eight cases and five deaths, and 1943, with seventy-one cases and nine deaths. Polio cases in interim years, by contrast, have been as follows:

NATION'S TOTAL DOWN.

Nation-wide figures also show the drop from last year's high totals. There were 25,232 cases in the United States last year, but only 611 cases have been reported through July 19 this year.

The peak here last year was reached in September, with sixty-nine cases. There were fifty-six in August and thirty-seven each in July and October. Of the year's total of 215 cases, 106 were males and 109 females. There was only one Negro case.

The outbreak was concentrated most heavily in the northeast part of the city, compared to a heavier incidence in the southwest districts in 1943.

In the resident cases, three of the victims were less than 1 year old, fifty were from 1 to 5 years old, sixty-seven from 6 to 9 years old, twenty-seven from 10 to 14, thirty-seven from 15 to 19 years old, eight from 20 to 24 years, eleven each were between 25 to 29 and 30 to 49, and one case was reported in the 50 to 69 age bracket.

The outbreak here was heightened by the treatment in Kansas City hospitals of 305 cases from outside the city limits. There were twenty-two deaths in this nonresident group, making a total of forty-three polio fatalities in Kansas City.

FATAL TO ELDERLY MAN.

Although polio is regarded as a childhood disease, one death here last year was of a 62-year-old man from Braymer, Mo.

Forty-two of the "non-resident" cases, including two fatal cases, came from the Intercity district and Independence.

A total of 193 cases were reported at the General hospital, 105 at the Children's Mercy hospital, eighty-eight at St. Luke's hospital, eighty-five at the Menorah hospital and twenty-one at the University of Kansas Medical Center. Twenty-two cases were treated in the victims' homes and six at other hospitals.

There were nine instances of two polio cases in the same family, and three cases occurred in one family.

Many States Represented in Area Office Records.

Purchasers from Missouri, Kansas, New York and Illinois acquired more than 10 million dollars' worth of war surplus property offered by the War Assets administration's Kansas City regional office during the fiscal year which ended July 1, Thomas E. Joyce, WAA regional director, said today.

ADD TO CAMPUS ALLURE

COLLEGE GIRLS TO SCORE HIGH IN 1947 STYLES.

Original Models From Outstanding Designers Featured in Fashion Show at Downtown Store.

Signposts of coming distractions on the campus are the college girl's clothes for fall. A collection of these allurement items, made up largely of originals from top designers in the junior and sportswear field, was displayed at 8 o'clock last night in a fashion show at a downtown store.

Destined to make the masculine members of an economics or history class forget the subject in hand are outfits described as "top casuals" in the show at the Chasnoff store, 1018 Walnut street. A blond model stepped out in a gray costume of fine wale corduroy, made with the new full skirt, pushup sleeves and Peter Pan collar and given a splash of color in a plaid belt and tie. A beret type hat in gray was worn with the dress.

A Marion McCoy gray beige wool gabardine was shown with a cinnamon brown Norfolk jacket. A purple scarf was tucked under the standup collar. The moon comes in for a lot of discussion during college days and so will Tilly Schanzer's "full moon" skirt. Yards and yards of rippling wool in aqua made this skirt, worn with a dyed-to-match crepe blouse.

A biege wool dress with skillfully tucked neck and bodice (and no shoulder pads) was one of the Claire McCardell models shown. Other designers represented included Rentner-Miller, Josef Walker, Jo Taylor, Clare Potter, Ella Gaynes, Carolyn Schnarrer, Helen Morgan, Sophia Kory and Morgan Fauth. Two originals from England were brought here for the display, one a greatcoat in tweed and the other a fitted coat of plaid in soft colors.

In the "dressy black" group was a cocktail dress featuring a crepe low-necked bodice and rhumba skirt of moire with a swathed hipline. The ballet length was stressed in the clothes for formal wear. An outstanding dress was of Victorian green satin made with a drop shoulder effect. Sixty garments were included in the show, which was to be repeated at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Genealogy.

My clever mother's mother
Was middle Europe born,
Knowing with her silver,
The ways of flax and corn,

Chosen by an iron-hand
Who lived by the sword
As long as he wanted
And died, overlord.

My laughing father's mother
Was moon and jasamine bred,
With two black women
To smooth her posterbed.

She married a light-foot
Red-headed Scot,
Who came from the Highlands,
Or nowhere, like as not.

Sometimes I wonder
If any of them see
The variegated blossom
On the family tree.

DOROTHY DIX.

Young Couple Should Wait Until Ready for Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young girl of 20. Have been going steady with a boy of 21 whom I have known for four years. He is now going to college and has a year and a half more to go. We are very much in love and have an understanding that we will be married when he graduates and can support a wife.

My problem is that though I have told my family all of this my father insists on speaking to the boy and asking his intentions. He wants us to get engaged immediately, because he feels that I am wasting my life and in the end I won't have anything. I don't see the sense in a long indefinite engagement, and to get married just to be married isn't my idea of happiness.

How can I explain to my father that we have an understanding and know that we will be married when we feel we are able to? My Dad feels that I shouldn't see this fellow unless I am engaged and have it properly announced. — Bewildered Girl.

Answer: Your father evidently belongs to the old school of courtship when suitors asked father's permission to pay their addresses to a girl and were not permitted to waste her time in idle dalliance. They had to mean business and be ready to pop the question.

So I think you will find it difficult to get your father to see that you are right in taking the modern realistic view of courtship; that it is something not to be rushed into by the force of convention, but to be waited for until conditions are so it can end in a happy marriage. Therefore, I trust that you will stick by your guns and not let your father overpersuade you into getting married before you are ready for it.

Certainly anyone can see that, if you wait until your boy friend has finished his college course and gotten into some occupation by which he can support a family in comfort, you will have a far better chance of being happy than you will if both you and your husband have to worry over where the next meal is coming from, and how to meet the rent bill.

It is the marriages that are rushed into without any background of security that end so often in divorce. For just love isn't enough to live on. Even brides and grooms have to eat.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a teen-age girl married to a teen-age boy. We get along very well together, but I don't get along with his parents. Also, we are secretly married and I am due to have a baby in September. I try to make my husband tell his parents about it and that he must stay with me, as I figure I need him and his place is with me. As it is, now he stays half the time at his parents' home and half the time with me.

Do you think I am right?

Answer: Certainly a husband's and a prospective father's place is with his wife, but there is no place in an orderly, decent state of society for secret marriages. If a man doesn't love a woman well enough to make her his wife honestly before the world, and if he is still such a child that he hasn't any way to support a wife, he should wait until he grows up before assuming such responsibilities.

There is nothing more heartbreaking than for two silly children to enter into a secret marriage. It always means trouble for them.

Dear Miss Dix: Would you please advise us whether it is necessary to address one's mother-in-law and father-in-law as Mom and Dad? We are two friends who have been married for quite some time and have been told that it is not good taste to address them as such. Nor can we call them Mr. G. and Mrs. G. We merely face them and say what there is to say. Since we are both very close to our own parents we find it most difficult to know how to address them. This is not done for any personal reason.—Mixed Up Young Wives.

Answer: This is a burning question, apparently, with brides. Also with the in-laws who resent being addressed as "you," as if they had no personality of their own whatever. Nor does it endear a young wife to her husband's people to refuse to claim kin with them and to call them Mr. and Mrs.

Occasionally there is a type of mother-in-law who refuses to get old who likes to be called Sally or Susan, but it has always seemed to me to be exceedingly bad taste. So I think the solution of the problem is for the young wife to ask her mother-in-law what she wants to be called or, if she lacks the nerve to do this, she can just wait until she can settle the problem by calling her Grandma.

Dishes Guests Remember Are Served in Plattsburg Homes

This is the twelfth in the series, "Good Food in Midwestern Homes." The recipes today come from hostesses in Plattsburg, Mo.

PLATTSBURG, MO., has a long and honorable claim to a place among the spots in the state where guests later say enthusiastically to one another, "Do you remember the wonderful dinner we had in Plattsburg?" Nearly every hostess has her specialty. The word, "This is Mrs. R. E. Scearce's recipe," puts the gilt-edged stamp of approval on the dish at once.

Mrs. Willis Wood, a world traveler, has brought many a fine recipe from the far corners of the world. Mrs. Henry Hussey who lived in China twenty-five years has introduced many special Chinese dishes to her guests. Mrs. Hussey collected these recipes.

SOME OUTSTANDING RECIPES.

Two of the most famous recipes in Plattsburg are Mrs. Scearce's orange bread and Mrs. Wood's Chicken Italian. The watermelon sweet pickle is a wonderful treat. A jar is a choice gift.

One of the fine dishes of the town is corn on the cob, which in Plattsburg literally is "fifteen minutes from field to table." The hostess has the water boiling on the stove before a move is made toward the field of sweet corn. The corn is picked, shucked, the silks are removed and the ears popped into the kettle. Ten minutes is the approved boiling time in most homes and perhaps seven minutes for small, tender ears of corn. Then the platter is brought steaming hot to the table, where the corn is served with plenty of fresh butter. There is nothing better than this dish.

Orange Bread.

(Mrs. R. E. Scearce.)

Peel four or five oranges and cut into fine strips, with scissors, enough to fill one cup. Cover with water, add one-half teaspoon of soda. Cook until peel is tender. Drain off the water and add orange peel, one cup of water and one cup of sugar. Cook until water and sugar become thick like syrup (only a few minutes). Let cool. Beat two eggs well, add one cup of sugar, one cup of milk and beat again. Add three tablespoons of melted butter, a dash of salt, three and one-half cups flour, three rounding teaspoons of baking powder, stirring flour in well first. Add orange peel and syrup and one cup of nuts, crushed. Bake one hour in slow oven. Makes two small loaves.

Chicken Italian

(Mrs. Willis Wood.)

Dust 3-pound roasting chicken lightly with flour and brown in fat. Place in roasting pan with a cup of chopped onions, a medium-sized carrot sliced, a medium-sized bunch of parsley and one cup chicken broth or water seasoned with butter. Bake in moderate oven. Baste frequently and add more water when needed. Serve with fresh mushrooms, sauteed in butter, and large green olives boiled in olive oil.

Watermelon Rind Sweet Pickle.

(Mrs. Charles R. Young.)

10 cups sugar.
3 cups water.
1 cup vinegar.
1-3 cup bark cinnamon, broken.
16 whole cloves.

Boil until the mixture makes a syrup. Cut off outer green rind and inner pink part of a small watermelon. Soak rind in cold water thirty minutes. Drain. Add 2 tablespoons salt to enough water to cover (about one gallon) and let stand two hours. Drain. Cook rinds in enough water to cover until tender. Drain well (over night even). Drop rinds in thick syrup and boil fifteen minutes. Let set in syrup over night. Put rind in jars, heat syrup, pour over rind and seal.

Custard Sparkle.

(Eleanor Scearce.)

Prepare individual baked custards (one pint milk, 2 eggs, ¼ cup sugar, salt and flavoring). Chill. Whip 1 cup cream. Add 8 marshmallows, quartered, and mix with several tablespoons of chocolate syrup. To serve, unmold custard in fruit dishes. Add whipped cream mixture and top with previously prepared lime and lemon gelatin (1 package of each) cut into small cubes.

Nine-Day Peach Pickles.

(Mrs. L. H. Beard.)

7 pounds peaches, either cling or small free-stone.
1 quart vinegar.
3 pounds sugar.

Bring vinegar and sugar to boiling point. Add peeled peaches and cook until they can be pierced to the seed with a fork. Place fruit in stone jars, pouring the liquid over it. Cover tightly. Each day for nine days pour off liquid, heat and again pour over the fruit. At the end of the period seal the fruit in pint jars.

Cucumber Aspic.

(Mrs. R. E. Scearce.)

1 large can pineapple.
2-3 cup sugar.
2 large cucumbers.
Juice of 5 lemons.
2 envelopes gelatin.

Boil lemon juice, pineapple juice and sugar together for five minutes. Pour over gelatin that has been soaked in 1 cup of cold water. When cool and beginning to stiffen add cucumbers and pineapple, cut in cubes. Color green and mold. Serve on letture with mayonnaise.

Mock Quail in Casserole.

(Mrs. G. W. Carmack.)

2 pounds veal steak, ½ inch thick.
1 cup cracker and bread crumbs.
1 onion, chopped.
Pinch sage.
Juice 1 lemon.
2 slices lean bacon.
2 eggs.
2 tablespoons butter.
1 stalk celery.

Cut meat in small pieces, remove fat and season well. Make dressing with the crumbs, salt, pepper, onion, sage, lemon juice, butter and bacon cut fine. Moisten with eggs, well beaten and a little hot water. Place a tablespoon of dressing on each piece of veal, roll and tie from end to end. Roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Place in casserole. Mix a little flour in pan in which meat was fried, pour over the birds, sprinkle with chopped celery and bake one hour.

Angel Pie.

(Mrs. J. M. Clay.)

Beat 4 egg whites until fluffy. Add ¼ teaspoon cream tartar. Beat until stiff. Add gradually 1 cup sugar and beat until glossy. Spread in deep 9-inch cake pan and bake one hour in slow oven (275 degrees F. for twenty minutes and 300 F. for forty minutes). For the custard filling, beat the 4 egg yolks. Gradually beat in ½ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind. Cook until very thick in double boiler. Let cool. Whip 1 cup cream and fold into cooked filling. Top with coconut. Spread on the meringue and let stand in icebox twenty-four hours.

Chili Sauce.

(Mrs. W. T. Harbison.)

4 large white onions, ground.
18 large ripe tomatoes, chopped fine.
2½ cups vinegar.
2 cups sugar.
1 tablespoon salt.
3 green peppers, ground.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon ground cloves.
1 small red pepper.

Cook slowly until thick. Store in sterilized jars.

Orange Bowknots.

(Miss Rebecca Dedman.)

1¼ cups milk, scalded.
½ cup fat.
1-3 cup sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cake yeast.
2 well beaten eggs.
¼ cup orange juice.
2 tablespoons grated orange peel.
5 cups flour.

Combine milk, shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in this mixture. Add eggs, orange juice and orange peel and beat thoroughly. Add flour, mix to soft dough. Cover. Let stand ten minutes. Knead on lightly floured board. Let rise until double in bulk. Roll dough one-half inch thick. Cut in 10-inch strips, one-half inch wide. Tie each strip in a knot. Let rise. Bake in hot oven. Spread with orange topping, made by combining 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange peel and 1 cup powdered sugar.

CHICKEN DINNERS AT PEAK.

Birds for Frying, Roasting or Stewing Are Plentiful.

Chicken dinners for the family or for company are recommended especially this summer by poultry marketing specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. They point out that at this time of year chickens for various purposes—frying, roasting or stewing—are on the market, but that this summer fryers are especially plentiful and reasonable in price.

Of all choices in chicken, fryers are the most popular, perhaps because they are the most adaptable. "Country fried" chicken with its crust of brown, seasoned flour is delicious when it comes from the frying pan, piping hot. It is equally delicious when served cold, with salad, either at home or off on a picnic. Some cooks like to finish cooking their fried chicken in a moderately hot oven (300 to 350 degrees Fahrenheit, after gently browning it in a heavy frying pan, because it takes less watching in the oven. And for those who like "French fried" chicken—which is dipped in a thin batter and fried in deep fat, these young birds now available fill the bill perfectly.

Very plump fryers weighing not over 2½ pounds are tops for broiling, either in the oven broiler or in the outdoor fireplace. The heavier fryers, weighing around 3½ pounds, lend themselves to roasting, braising or fricasseeing. The gravy provid by these methods of cooking, or su additions as flavorful vegetab can make a few pounds of fryi chicken go a long way in serving t family.

URGE U. N. ACTION

Russians Complicate Mediation Plan for Indonesia With Demand for Decision.

SEES COUNCIL BY-PASSED

Without Opposing Intermediary Study, Gromyko Objects to Dutch "Advantages."

Johnson Would Conduct Conciliation Procedure After Fighting Is Halted.

Lake Success, Aug. 1. (AP)—Russia charged today that a United States offer to mediate the undeclared war in Indonesia was a "means of circumventing" the United Nations and demanded that the security council itself take "binding" action.

The surprise Soviet move seriously complicated the mediation plan which already had been accepted by the Netherlands government.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, agreed with the United States that the council should act immediately to order a cessation of hostilities, but he urged the council to go slow on the questtion of mediation.

Sees Dutch Advantage.

Although not stating definitely that he would oppose mediation, Gromyko raised strong objections, including his charge that the move would by-pass the U. N. He said it also would give the Dutch an advantage over the Indonesians because they could start the negotiations from their present military positions.

"The security council must seriously study the question and must take its own decisions," he declared.

He charged the Netherlands government with a clear "breach of peace" and said the security council would be "shirking" its obligations if it failed to take a binding decision.

Gromyko took the floor after the United States had called on the council to order an immediate cessation of hostilities to prepare the way for mediation.

Would Wipe Out Gains.

Gromyko later announced that he would offer a formal proposal that both the Dutch and Indonesian forces be ordered to return to the positions they held at the outbreak of the fighting.

At this point Faris el Khoury of Syria, new council president, informed the council that every member except himself had asked to be put on the speakers list.

In view of demands for immediate action the council decided to postpone the Balkan debate scheduled for this afternoon and continue on the Indonesian question.

Meanwhile, the Indonesian question came up in the economic and social council when India made a successful fight to have the Indonesian government invited to attend the international trade conference at Havana November 21.

The Indian proposal, supported by Latin-American and Arab delegates, was approved 6 to 4, reversing an earlier vote in the council's economic committee. The United States, Britain, France and the Netherlands voted against the proposal and eight members abstained.

Offer to Republic, Also.

Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States delegate, made his demand after Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, Netherlands ambassador to Washington, had accepted the United States mediation offer.

Johnson told the council the United States offer of "good offices" also goes to the de facto government of the Indonesian republic whose forces are fighting the Dutch.

No representative of the Indonesian government has arrived here yet. A dispatch from Batavia, however, quoted A. K. Gani, deputy premier of the Indonesian republic, as expressing the belief that his government would accept mediation conditionally.

Gani, a prisoner of the Dutch, said the Indonesians probably would demand that the Dutch return to them the areas occupied during the fighting before they would agree to mediation.

Wants Fighting Stopped.

Johnson expressed the hope that the proposed mediation would make it unnecessary for the security council to take any further action. He added, however, that "without prejudice to anyone's position, this council wants the fighting stopped."

He proposed an amendment to an Australian resolution, making it state simply that the council calls on the parties to cease hostilities at once and settle their differences by "arbitration or other peaceful means."

SET FOR OUSTING OF BEES.

Two Men to Begin Job Monday at Flanner Home.

Two men called on Walter J. Flanner, 3600 Jefferson street, last night, with a proposal to eradicate the bees which have made a hive out of the walls of the home. The men are to start work Monday, Flanner said.

There have been no new disturbances of domestic relations between the bees and the Flanner family, he added.

STORM MOVING IN ON TEXAS.

Weather Bureau Warns Small Craft to Stay in Port.

New York, Aug. 1.(UP)—The weather bureau warned today that a tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico was moving toward Brownsville, Tex., and was expected to hit that port city late this afternoon.

Advising all small craft to remain in port, the weather bureau said the storm was located approximately 170 miles south-southeast of Brownsville and was moving north-northwest at from twelve to fifteen miles an hour. Its strongest winds near the center of the storm area were estimated at around thirty-five to forty miles per hour.

Squally weather extends approximately 150 miles to the north and east of the storm's center.

A SCHOOL BOND VOTE SET.

Brookings Township Taxpayers to Decide Issue August 15.

The taxpayers of consolidated school district No. 2, Brooking township in Jackson County, will be asked to vote on a proposed $50,000 bond issue August 15 to provide funds to finance construction of a new grade school for that area.

About a year ago $250,000 in bonds was voted to construct a grade building and additional rooms on the existing Chapel grade school in the district, but increased costs have made it impossible even to let contracts on either proposal. Now the school patrons are faced with inadequate quarters unless the new $50,000 issue is approved, according to members of the school board.

MERGERS BY WAA HERE.

Some Regional and Zone Functions Combined.

A merger of five of the principal activities of the Kansas City regional office of the War Assets administration with comparable units of the zone office was reported today by John E. Kirschner, zone administrator.

Under the merger, Thomas E. Joyce, regional director, becomes zone counsel. Other activities and facilities affected include acquisitions, dispcsals, administrative services and the Wichita, Kas., office, which will be retained as a selling office.

Kirschner said the move was made to promote efficiency and effect economies. He added that it would not involve immediate reduction in personnel.

'KING OF OSAGES' FREE

PAROLE GRANTED WILLIAM K. HALE AFTER 21 YEARS.

Man Convicted of One of a Series of Indian Slayings in Oklahoma Will Live With Daughter, Mrs. Max Cohen.

Leavenwworth, Kas., Aug. 1.(AP)—William K. Hale, 72, who at the time of his conviction for murder in Oklahoma in the 1920s was known as "The King of the Osages," was free today on a parole from the Leavenworth federal prison. Hale was received at the penitentiary November 17, 1926, to serve a life sentence.

Warden Walter A. Hunter said Hale was freed on a parole, effective July 30, but was not released until yesterday, since the prison had to process the necessary papers.

Hale, at the time a resident of Fairfax, Ok., was convicted by a federal court jury at Pawhuska, Ok., at his third trial in 1929 on charges of complicity in the death of Henry Roan, Osage Indian. Roan's death was one of more than a dozen mysterious deaths among the Osages.

Some of the Indians, holders of oil headrights, were found shot to death and others died under strange circumstances.

Roan—or Roan Horse, a wealthy Osage, vanished from his home in Fairfax in January of 1923. Ten days later his body, a bullet hole in the back of the head, was found in an automobile in an isolated ravine.

When the Roan estate was settled, it was found that Hale, a white man living near Fairfax, had taken out a $25,000 life insurance policy on Roan. Hale claimed he had lent the Indian thousands of dollars and had taken out the insurance as protection on the loans.

Hale's first trial at Guthrie, Ok., resulted in a hung jury. He was convicted at his second trial in the United States District court at Oklahoma City, but that conviction was reversed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis, and he was returned to Pawhuska from the Leavenworth prison for his third trial.

Warden Hunter said Hale's daughter, Mrs. Willie Cohen, wife of Max Cohen of Wichita, Kas., was at the prison to meet her father. Hale will live in Wichita with Mrs. Cohen, the warden said. Hale's wife was not at the prison to meet him, Hunter added.

Hunter described Hale as having been a model prisoner during his confinement here. When he was received he worked as a hospital attendant, but for the last seven years he has been a trusty, living outside the walls at the federal prison farm in Platte County, Missouri.

Hale left the prison attired in regulation prison discharge clothing—shoes, suit and hat.

Tulane and Alabama Say They'll Abide by the N. C. A. A. Recruitment Regulations.

CAUSES STIR IN S. E. C.

Conference Secretary Says What the Two Dixie Schools Do Is Their Own Business.

Atlanta, Aug. 1 (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic association's drive to make the Southeastern conference as pure in athletic matters as the driven snow, or at least as untainted as other members, appears to have won a couple of converts—Tulane and Alabama.

Both S. E. C. schools now have gone on record as saying they will abide by any rules of conduct the N. C. A. A. lays down at its meeting in New York next January concerning off-the-campus recruitment and scholarships for athletes.

It Doesn't Bind the Others.

The action by the two schools, made public yesterday, prompted W. D. Funkhouser, secretary of the S. E. C., to say, however, that what Tulane and Alabama did was their own business.

"The N. C. A. A.," said Dr. Funkhouser, "doesn't want the schools to pay the room and board of athletes. We in the S. E. C. think we should pay them. If Tulane or any other school feels it should not, it is their privilege to decline, and I know the conference will not object."

Dr. Funkhouser's remarks came after the elder statesman of southern athletics, W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech, had expressed little surprise at Tulane's action and commented, "I expect every university which wishes to retain its membership in the N. C. A. A. will do likewise."

Alexander's conclusion was borne out by N. W. Daugherty, acting commissioners of the Southeastern group. Daugherty said he believed the S. E. C. would follow the athletic regulations of the N. C. A. A. if the latter by a vote of its own members became a regulatory body.

Believes Majority Will Conform.

"I am inclined to believe that members of the Southeastern conference will go along with the policies adopted by the majority of the schools in the United States," Dr. Daugherty said. He is also chairman of the athletic council of the University of Tennessee.

Tulane's action was confirmed by Rufus C. Harris, president. His statement was followed by one from Ralph Adams, acting president of the University of Alabama, saying his school would go along with Tulane.

Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of the University of Kentucky, said, however, that that school would continue to operate under S. E. C. rules and not necessarily those of the N. C. A. A.

The teapot-tempest arose several years ago when the S. E. C. branded as so much hypocrisy the rigamarole surrounding football scholarships in which schools obviously subsidized athletes while vigorously denying that they did so.

Follow an Open Policy.

The S. E. C. then adopted what its members called an above-the-table policy of grants-in-aid to promising athletes. The S. E. C. agreed to meet all expenses from tuition, room and board through laundry and including a small sum for incidentals.

Since that time, the controverssy over grants-in-aid has raged during the slack periods between football seasons over the fine points of amateurism vs. professionalism in college circles.

Briefly, the S. E. C. and the N. C. A. A. are agreed on the fundamental that athletes are entitled to aid. The differences lie in the degree and manner of application.

At its last meeting the N. C. A. A. adopted a set of principles on the basis of which it proposed to amend its constitution and by-laws. These principles would restrict the amount of aid permissible, restrict recruiting of athletes to the campus and provide a boycott of recalcitrant members by making the N. C. A. A. a regulating body.

Stems From Tulane Comment.

This latest dialectical battle stemmed from the comment of Dr. Harris in confirming a report that Tulane would play along with the N. C. A. A. Dr. Harris said:

"We have given much thought to the conflicting points of view regarding aid to students participating in intercollegiate athletics. There is much to be said for the above-the-table Southeastern conference plan which was adopted several years ago. Doubtless, there have always been many violations . . . that, however, is not the issue.

"The issue," Dr. Harris continued, "is whether we will conform to the regulations which the overwhelming majority of American colleges and universities may dictate as the course or level most consistent with the academic ideals and traditions as well as with sound practice."

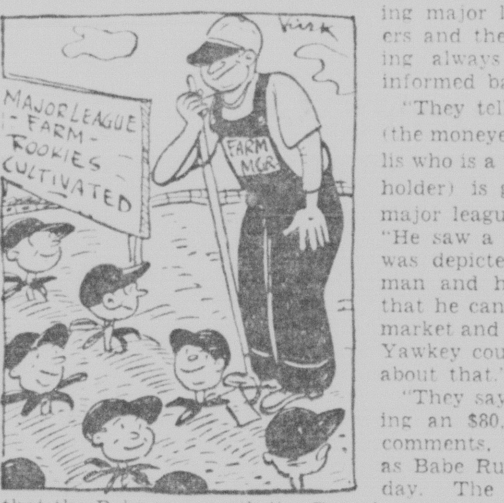
New Pittsburgh Owners May Be Learning That Money Can Not Buy a Ball Club for Immediate Delivery. . . . Greenberg Unable to Deliver $80,000 Worth of Baseball. . . . Farm System the Only Answer. . . . Jack Lohrke's Getting Acquainted Rapidly.

By C. E. McBride.

(The Star's Sports Editor.)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—Will the Pittsburgh club, under its new ownership and management, profit quickly from its unsuccessful experiences in trying to buy its way into a pennant contender or will the new Pirate owners take as many years as did Tomy Yawkey, tycoon of the Boston Red Sox, in learning that the only way to develop a major league winner is to develop players through a minor league farm system?

That is one of the interesting questions you hear brought up for discussion if you happen to be loitering in the hotel that houses visiting major league baseball players and the hangers-on, including always a coterie of well-informed baseball writers.



Kirk
MAJOR LEAGUE - FARM - ROOKIES CULTIVATED
FARM MGR.

"They tell me that McKinney (the moneyed man of Indianapolis who is a top Pittsburgh stockholder) is getting wise now," a major league baseball man says. "He saw a cartoon in which he was depicted as an old clothes man and he's coming to know that he cannot go into the open market and buy a ball club. Tom Yawkey could have told him all about that."

"They say Greenberg is drawing an $80,000 salary," another comments, "and that's as much as Babe Ruth made in his heyday. The main difference is that the Babe was worth it. Greenberg's a grand guy and he's doing his best, but he's about washed up and very slow."

"The Giants tried buying a ball club in the seasons of 1943 and '45," a writer said, "but they've given up now and are developing their own players. I believe the Giants have about eighteen farm clubs, including two triple A clubs, Minneapolis and Jersey City, and an agreement with a third, San Francisco. It's a lot different from the old McGraw days when John knew if he wanted a ballplayer to round out his club he could go out and buy one. He had enough money to use that way and he seldom failed to get the player he wanted. It's different now. The old McGraw system's dead. You've got to develop them."

"McKinney and Bing Crosby might as well be patient," another said, "and start putting their dough in a farm system. No matter what anyone may be thinking of the farm chain business it's the vogue right now and you get your players that way or you don't get them."

Suggests Feller May Be on the Decline.

THE COCKTAIL HOUR: Manager Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves and a former Cardinal manager has looked with favor on opportunities to obtain players he once managed. He has Litwhiler, Johnny Hopp, Rod Barrett, John Beazley, former Cards. . . . "A year ago this boy didn't know what league the Giants were in," a New York press boxman commented when Jack Lohrke, 23-year-old third baseman of the Giants came to bat. . . . Incidentally, Lohrke is a survivor of the bus wreck which took the lives of several of the Spokane players. . . . National league baseball writers figuratively thumb their noses at the American loop's Bob Feller when mention is made of Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell or Boston's Warren Spahn. "Too much high finance and barnstorming trip," said one New York writer when the talk turned to Feller. "I wouldn't be surprised if he isn't on his way out and I believe the baseball authorities will again drop the bars across long barnstorming trips like that 30-day operation maneuvered by Feller last fall." . . . Some baseball statisticians are estimating that the increase in night games in the majors means the shortening of a player's career by two or three years. . . . In the first game he played here after Harry (the Cat) Brecheen beaned him, Johnny Mize was persuaded to try a helmet, but the knot on his head at the spot where he was hit was so big he couldn't draw on the protective armor. . . . Bob Cadle, assistant manager of the Chase hotel where all but one (Cincinnati) of the major league clubs stop, is a friend of all visiting players and newsmen. He used to do a bit of line play for Steve O'Rourke at St. Mary's, and gives this correspondent credit for once having caught him in the act of holding an opponent, with an accompanying assessment of fifteen yards. . . . A new and sumptuous press box is being completed at Sportsman's park but the elevator isn't yet in and if you think the climb to the top of the K. U. stadium or the one at Norman, Ok., is steep you ought to try to reach the new press coop on the roof of the St. Louis ball park.

MAIN EVENT.

The Cardiff Giant, 320, Caracas, Venezuela, won his third straight victory by pinning Oregon Jack McDonald, Portland, Ore., in two consecutive falls in less than six minutes. The Cardiff Giant took the first fall by forcing McDonald into the ropes, then employing a crushing bear-hug hold in 3:06. McDonald was again forced to surrender under the pressure of a bear-hug and follow-through press in 2:12.

SEMIFINAL EVENT.

Tug Carlson, Seattle, defeated Wally Dusek, Omaha, taking the second and third falls. Dusek tabbed the first fall with a body slam and smother in 10:27. Carlson retaliated against Dusek's roughhousing tactics and evened the count in the second fall, flooring Dusek with a series of dropkicks and a follow-through smother in 21:42. Carlson went on to win the third and decisive fall when he leaped from the top ropes and dropped Dusek with a flying dropkick and a body press in 8:26.

SPECIAL EVENT.

Warren Bockwinkle, St. Louis, won his debut bout over Jack Hader, Kansas City, employing a rolling step-over toe-hold in 8:16.

A DUCK BAG LIMIT OF 4

NEW DRASTIC REGULATIONS SET POSSESSION AT EIGHT.

Shooting Hours Are Reduced Half an Hour in the Morning and Evening.

New waterfowl regulations announced yesterday in Washington limit the duck bag limit to four a day, compared with seven last year and ten in 1945. The possession limit was set at eight, compared with fourteen last year and twenty the year before.

The 1947 rules also limit daily shooting hours from sunrise to an hour before sunset, half an hour less in the morning and half an hour less at night than last year. In addition, hunting is prohibited before noon on the first day of each waterfowl season.

THE HOURS OF SHOOTING.

The regulations provide these hours for shooting waterfowl:

Waterfowl—(except wood ducks in Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, North Dakota, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming; snow geese in Beaverhead, Gallatin and Madison counties in Montana, in Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming and snow geese and brant in states bordering on the Atlantic ocean; Ross' geese and Swans—coots, rails and gallinules may be taken each day from sunrise to one hour before sunset; except—

The hour for the commencement of hunting of waterfowl and coot on the first day of the season (including each first day of the split season) shall be 12 o'clock noon;

Woodcocks, mourning or turtle doves, white-winged doves, and band-tailed pigeons from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Specific exceptions are listed wherever they apply as to hunting hours and certain types of game in certain areas.

The proclamation also sets forth the number of birds which may be taken in any one day including all fowl taken by anyone accompanying the hunter or assisting him.

Ducks (except American and Red Breasted Mergansers)—four, including in the limit not more that one wood duck, and no person may possess more than eight ducks, including in such limit not more than one wood duck.

American and red breasted mergansers—twenty-five singly or in the aggregate. No possession limit.

FOR GEESE AND BRANT.

Geese and brant (except snow geese in Beaverhead, Gallatin and Madison counties in Montana, in Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming, and snow geese and brant in states bordering on the Atlantic ocean, and Ross's geese anywhere), as follows:

In Washington, Oregon and California five, including in such limit any combination not exceeding two, of Canada geese (including Hutchins or cackling geese), white-fronted geese and brant.

In Alaska, Puerto Rico, Idaho, Utah, Arizona and Nevada, four, including in such limit not more than two Canada geese or two white-fronted geese or one of each.

Elsewhere than in the above states, four, including in such limit either one Canada goose or one white-fronted goose.

Any person may possess not more than the above bag limits of geese or brant.

The regulations provide that migratory game birds may be taken during the specified seasons only with a bow and arrow or with a shotgun not larger than 10-gauge, with the general requirement that firing must be from the shoulder.

STILL BAN ON NUMBER OF ROUNDS.

Hunting is prohibited generally with any automatic-loading or hand-operated repeating shotgun capable of holding more than three shells, unless the gun has been adjusted to limit its capacity to three shells.

The birds "may be taken during the open seasons from land or water, with aid of a dog, and from a blind, boat or other floating craft not under tow or sail, except sink-box (battery), motorboat (excluding a boat having a detached outboard motor), and sailboat."

The regulations do not permit taking of the birds "from or by means, aid or use of an automobile or aircraft of any kind, the taking of waterfowl by means, aid or use of cattle, horses, mules, or live duck or goose decoys, the concentrating, driving, rallying or stirring up of waterfowl and coots by means or aid of any motor-driven land, water or ais conveyance or sailboat."

Injured or dead waterfowl may be picked up, however, by means of a motorboat, sailboat or other craft.

Except for propagating, scientific or other purposes under special permit provisions, waterfowl, along with mourning doves and white-winged doves may not be taken directly or indirectly "by means, aid or use of shelled, shucked or unshucked corn, or of wheat or other grain, salt or other feed that has been so deposited, distributed or scattered as to constitute for such birds a lure, attraction or enticement to, on, or over the area where hunters are" operating.

OVER STANDING CROPS.

The regulations permit shooting of such birds "over properly shocked corn and standing crops of corn, wheat or other grain or feed, and grains found scattered solely as a result of agricultural harvesting."

Hunters more than 16 years of age must have in his possession a federal hunting stamp, validated by means of the holder's signature in ink. Persons not over 16 years of age are permitted to take migratory waterfowl without such a stamp.

Blue Affiliation With Yanks Has Brought Happy Results

Ten Years Ago Today the New York Organization Took Over the Kansas City Club—Recall the 1940 Crew, Rated by Many as Best Minor League Team on the Books.

TODAY marks the tenth anniversary of the New York Yankee ownership of the Kansas City Blues. It was on August 1, 1937, that the Yankee organization, headed at that time by the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, bought the baseball holdings of John Kling, former catcher with the Chicago Cubs, who recently died, and at that time owner of the Blues.

Many changes have taken place in the passing decade. When the Yankees came in, the Blues were in sixth place and struggling to keep from slipping lower. The Yanks immediately sent player help which enabled the club to climb into fifth place, but it was too late to reach the first division.

Meyer Arrived in 1938.

In 1938, Bill Meyer came in as the new manager, replacing Dutch Zwilling, who had been with the Blues for nine years. The Blues had won a pennant under Zwilling in 1929, and had finished second once, third three times, fifth three times, and sixth once.

The new regime brought in a team that finished six games back of the first place St. Paul Saints. That was the year that the two Eddies, Miller and Joost, came in as rookies and won starting positions in the infield. Both went to the majors the next year and are still there.

That 1938 season also brought Kansas City's first contestant in the junior world series under the Shaughnessy plan. The Blues first downed fourth place Indianapolis four games to two, winning three straight in Indianapolis after dropping two of three at home. They then trimmed the Saints four to three, and won by the same margin from Newark, International league champs, in an all-Yankee junior series.

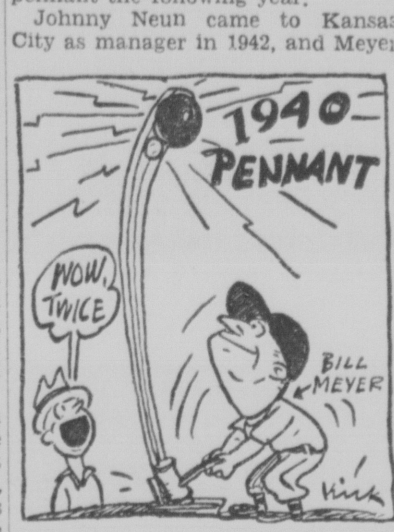
The following year brought what many consider the best team Kansas City has ever had. That was the year of the great infield combination of Phil Rizzuto, Gerry Priddy, John Sturm and Bill Hitchcock, that led the league in double-plays and turned in the only triple play in the Association. The Blues lost to Indianapolis in the first round of the play-offs that year, four games to one.

Lost in the Play-Off.

In 1940, with the same infield back, the Blues again swept through the regular season for their second pennant under Meyer, but lost to Louisville in the second round of the play-offs, four to two. Many critics at that time were rating the Kansas City infield as the best minor league unit ever assembled.

Meyer was still at the helm in 1941, when the Blues finished third and lost to the champion Columbus Red Birds, four games to two, in the first round of the play-offs. The Yankee organization brought up a pitcher, Charley Wensloff, that year, who won fifteen games and was to spark the Blues to another pennant the following year.

Johnny Neun came to Kansas City as manager in 1942, and Meyer took Neun's job at Newark. Wensloff won twenty-one games and the Blues took their third pennant in five years under Yankee ownership, but again lost in the play-offs. Third place Columbus again put the Blues out, this time four to three, and went on to win from Syracuse in five games in the junior series.



A drastic change in the Blues' fortunes came in 1943 as they dropped from first place the previous year to seventh, a new low under the Yankee regime. That was Neun's last year in Kansas City, and Jack Saltzgaver took over in 1944, when the Blues were buried in the cellar, finishing thirteen games back of seventh-place Minneapolis.

Illness Got an Assist in 1946.

Casey Stengel managed the Blues in 1945 and they again came in seventh, three games behind sixth-place Toledo. Meyer came back in 1946 after an absence of four years, but was forced out by illness in mid-season. Burleigh Grimes took over the reins and the Blues finished in a tie for sixth with Toledo.

The start of this season found Meyer in good health again and ready for a full season. With the war over and many young players back from service, the Yankees were able to send Meyer the makings of another first division outfit. Under the capable skipper's guidance, the Blues have surprised most critics around the league and are now battling for the pennant.

It looks like things are back to the pre-war normal in the Yankee organization, which makes the future bright for Kansas City baseball fans. According to Meyer, he has never had a team that hustled more than the 1947 edition of the Blues.

Legion Baseball Notes

TOMORROW'S SCHEDULE.
At C. Y. C. Stadium.
1 o'Clock—Century Motors vs. Schlozman Motors.
3:30 o'Clock—Power & Light vs. Broadway Motors.

WITH the selection early this week of the north and south division all-stars, interest is growing in the annual clash of the two Legion loops which will take place Friday, August 8, at C. Y. C. stadium. Both squads, have already had one practice session each and will hold at least one more drill before the game. The squads were named by the team managers with players being selected from five of the eight north division teams and from seven of the south clubs. The team to represent Kansas City against the Kansas all-stars August 15 will be selected from the north-south clash.

Three teams in the north division and three in the south are undefeated after two weeks of play in the second half of the split season. At the end of the second half schedule the first place teams in the north and south will meet in a series for the league championship. Schlozman Motors, undefeated in seven first half season games, have won their first two starts. Independence Merchants, a second division finisher, have started with a rush in the second half with three victories. Berl Berry is undefeated in three games.

The Newman-Fox Motors provided a surprise Sunday in the south by stopping Kelley-Williams for the first time this year in a league game. Kelley-Williams went through the first half undefeated but struck rough going in the tournament. Newman-Fox and American Meat have two victories apiece while also in the undefeated class is Burnett Meat with one triumph. Burnetts and Kelley-Williams have a postponed game to make up and with the state tournament on the Burnett-Benson game of this Sunday is being postponed.

Batting Out the Hits.

Slamming out three singles and two home runs, one with two mates on, Jack Haley, Burnett Meat centerfielder, had a perfect day with the ash and scored four runs. Eleven of the twelve players in the game made at least one safety in a 20-hit attack for a 15 to 3 Burnett victory over Welsh Motors. . . . John Williams, 14-year-old infielder, had three for five and Bob Hill three in six for Burnetts. . . . Daley, Schlozman Motor centerfielder, had a single, double and triple in four times, while Second Baseman Ken Greeley poled a single and triple in three against Broadway Motors. . . . Henry Early, Berl Berry centerfielder, had two singles and a home run in four trips. . . . Dennis Elliott, Independence Merchant catcher, hit a triple and single in four times against Broadway. Bill Lyday, with a home run with two on and Brown, with a circuit drive, powered the Independence 9 to 5 victory over Sorrell-Williams. . . . Twyman, American Meat left fielder, hit a 4-baser in the eighth, while Cy Young, Benson rightfielder, poled a homer in the fifth.

Gleanings From the Score Books.

Bill Anderson, Berl Berry second baseman, made an unassisted double play in the first inning against Century Motors. With Shortstop Wilson on second, Retherford lined to Anderson, who stepped on second to retire Wilson...Robert Bales, playing his first full game at third for Berl Berry, walked in the fourth, stole second and third and scored on Pitcher Charley Reed's single...Bob Isom, Berl Berry first sacker, has made only one error in twelve games Jerry Davis, Broadway left-fieldbaseman, handled sixteen putouts, while the team made some sort of a record with seventeen assists. Shortstop Bill George, leading with six while Pitcher Jones had four... ...Jerry Davis, Broadway left-fielder, retrieved Elliott's long triple drive and pegged to Jones whose relay nipped Elliott at the plate... Bates, Independence center-fielder, took Davis's line drive and doubled Hoverder at the plate in the ninth ...When Ralph Iseman, Power & Light right-hander, trapped Don Wright off first in the fourthh inning, it was the fourth time the hurler has nipped a base runner this season...Minor, Schlozman rightfielder, came in fast for Danny Palermo's single in the eighth and taking the ball on the first bop, almost got his man at first..."It must have been the heat," said red-faced Ed Billings when he insisted on the count on one of his hitters when Schlozman's changed pitchers. The call was two balls and no strikes!

A NEW FOOD GOAL

U. S. Urges Farmers to Seed 75 Million Acres to Wheat in 1948.

TO MEET WORLD SHORTAGE

Dire Export Needs and Shorter Corn Crop Result in Planting Hike.

By Ovid A. Martin.

Washington, Aug. 1. (AP) — Forecasting at least two more years of world grain shortages, the government today set a 1948 wheat planting goal topping any wartime or post-war target to date.

The Agriculture department called upon farmers to seed at least 75 million acres to the bread grain to permit this country to continue large shipments to shortage areas abroad at least until the fall harvests of 1949. The planting season for winter wheat is only a few weeks away.

Well Above 1946.

Next year's goal compares with the 1947 target of 70,700,000 acres and with around 50 million acres actually planted in the year's immediately before the war. Farmers, however, exceeded the 1947 goal by about 7 million acres—a development which helped produce the largest wheat crop in the nation's history.

In boosting next year's objective over the acreage originally asked for this year, the government postponed, somewhat reluctantly, plans to urge farmers to retire much overworked wheat land to grass, pasture and other noncrop uses for the sake of soil conservation.

A few months ago, the government was preparing to announce a goal of 68 million acres. But two factors—failure of the world food shortage to abate and prospects of a short corn crop this year—led officials to boost the figure by 7 million.

In announcing the new goal, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said that under "normal peacetime conditions" a much smaller acreage would be desirable.

To Maintain Exports.

"Because the need for exports to meet world shortages continues urgent, however," his statement added, "it apears desirable to maintain a high United States acreage in 1948."

Obviously aware of the possibility of a new drought and dust storms in the southwestern plains, Anderson said farmers in dry land areas "are especially cautioned against plowing up sod lands not suited for sustained farming, or planting wheat on land that should lie fallow."

The 75-million-acre wheat goal would produce 1,070 million bushels at the 1937-46 average yield; 1,221 million at the 1942-46 average, and 1,395 million at this year's yield. This year's crop is indicated at 1,435 million bushels.

Boost Rye Acreage.

Anderson also announced 1948 goals for rye and potatoes. The rye goal was put at 2,300,000 acres for harvest, or 347,000 more than the acreage indicated for harvest this year.

The goal for potatoes was set at 2,370,000, including 1,512,100 for commercial areas. This goal is unchanged from this year.

The wheat and rye goals are not mandatory. They serve merely as a guide to farmers. Commercial potato growers, on the other hand, must plant within their individual goals to be eligible for government price supports.

Futures Sag More Than $2 a Bale in Final Hour.

New York, Aug. 1. (AP)—Cotton futures sagged into new low ground for the day in the final hour of trading on commission house and New Orleans liquidation. Futures closed $1.65 to $2.30 a bale lower than the previous close.

Traders took to the sidelines pending fresh crop news and an announcement of government awards in connection with purchases of cotton for Japan. Some quarters estimated that the purchases would be between 75,000 and 100,000 bales.

It was reported that Germany is seeking 25,000 bales, which would be the first business under the recently approved private cotton program for that country. Estimates on French purchases of American cotton for the balance of the year ranged up to 100,000 bales.

Spot cotton closed off 54 points at 35.74 cents a pound.

LAMBS TO WEEK'S HIGH

New Crop Kinds Mostly 25 Cents Up—Steady to Weak on Cattle.

The week-end trade in hogs and sheep at the Kansas City stockyards today developed moderate activity but limited offerings of cattle sold slowly.

The hog market closed at the week's low and the sheep market at the week's high.

A few early sales of heavy butcher hogs were as much as 25 cents higher than yesterday but the general market ranged from steady to 25 cents lower on weights up to 280 pounds. Heavier weights were as much as 50 cents lower in a slow closing trade.

Spring lambs were mostly 25 cents higher than yesterday while other sheep held steady.

The cattle run comprised mainly odd lots of cows, bulls and calves which sold at steady to weak prices.

Both packers and shippers paid the day's top of $27.65 for fat hogs, only 10 cents under yesterday's limit. Bulk of the good and choice 170 to 250-pound hogs sold at $27 to $27.50. Most of the 260 to 280-pound butchers sold at $26 to $27 with 290 to 375-pound weights at $23.50 to $25.50.

Most sales of sows ranged from $20 to $23.50, some heavyweights down to $19.

Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company reported net profit of $3,302,343, equal to $2.51 a common share, in the first six months, compared with $1,630,665, or $1.18 a share in the first half of 1946.

Heart Disease Claims Third of Deaths of Policyholders.

New York, Aug. 1. (AP)—Heart diseases accounted for one-third of all deaths among policyholders in 1946, and more than 400,000 policies were paid as claims for heart disease deaths, the Institute of Life Insurance reported today.

This was more than twice the number paid as claims for death resulting from cancer, second largest cause of death during the year among policyholders.

Although deaths from heart disease and cancer increased during the year, the death rate among ordinary policyholders showed a decline to 689.3 per 100,000 from 714.5 in 1941.

The death rate from motor vehicle accidents was down sharply for both groups of policyholders. Homicides increased, but suicides declined.

WHEAT RISE PLAYS OUT

FUTURES LOSE EARLY GAIN, CLOSE IRREGULAR.

CCC Buys Heavily Again, but Flour Business Lags—New and Higher PMA Prices Expected.

The swift recovery in wheat futures played out today after scoring early gains of a cent or more.

Buying interest subsided in later dealings and quotations slipped. The close was irregular, ranging from ¾ cent down to ½ up here and at Chicago.

A SEASONAL HIGH.

Corn futures set new seasonal highs in the early trade, with deferred options scoring advances of 3 cents or more, but backed off in the late trading.

Futures closed erratically. At the finish, corn was 2⅛ cents down to 1¾ higher at the two markets.

Main interest in corn centered on the need for rain in the Middle West.

Again inspiring the buying side of the wheat market were continued liberal purchases of wheat by the government.

The Commodity Credit corporation office here obtained 2,080,000 bushels from noon Wednesday to noon Thursday, bringing cumulative purchases to around 58½ million.

CCC PAYS $2.24½.

The agency was said to be holding to a purchase price of $2.24½ for No. 1 hard wheat in store at Kansas City by August 31.

Lack of any real buying power came partly from a lag in both domestic and export flour business. Millers marked time pending an expected announcement Monday of higher buying prices by the Production and Marketing administration.

A VAGUE STOCK TREND

PRICES ARE GENERALLY MIXED IN SELECTIVE DEALINGS.

Many Leaders Lag as Accounts Are Adjusted for the Week End—Short Covering a Prop.

New York, Aug. 1. (AP)—The shift toward recovery continued selectively in today's stock market although selling revived sufficiently to put many leaders on the losing end.

Accounts were adjusted here and there for the week end but further light short covering propped individual favorites. Earnings generally remained helpful but exceptions were plentiful. A rally in the lately weak London market bolstered sentiment. Some doubts regarding the economic picture, including rising prices, consumer resistance and exports, inspired a certain amount of offerings. Buying again was based partly on the idea the list had enjoyed a healthy technical correction.

Volume was relatively light from the start but was aided by sizable blocks of low-quoted stocks. While gains of fractions to a point or so persisted in the afternoon, declines of as much were numerous.

The bond market tried for a rally under leadership of an assortment of rails. While gains were mostly small, a few favorites were bid up better than a point at one time and only a scattered minority failed to participate in the upswing.

Yes, you can now buy all popular sizes of the tire that outwears prewar tires at actually less than prewar prices! And despite higher manufacturing costs too. One of the things that makes possible this huge price reduction is the tremendous demand for the new Silvertown—greater than for any tire B. F. Goodrich ever produced. In fact, more miles have been driven on this new tire than any other tire introduced since the war.

PRODUCE

Heavyweight hens were steady to 1 cent a pound lower today at Kansas City, and other poultry, eggs and butter prices held unchanged.

Trade in eggs was dull with most buying around the lower end of the price ranges. Good quality supplies would meet a ready demand at premiums considerably higher than the quotations, dealers commented, but arrivals of this kind were negligible.

Trade estimates of cold storage holdings in the United States on July 26 were set at slightly more than 4 million cases of shell eggs, the same as on July 19. This was about equal to the stocks of July 1 and compared with 9,871,000 cases July 1, 1946.

Stocks at Kansas City today amounted to 156,361 cases, an increase of 102 cases since yesterday and compared with 148,992 cases a week ago and 317,630 cases a year ago.

Several dealers were limiting their poultry buying strictly to day-to-day needs because of the hot weather. Offerings of hens were heavy and with the slow outlet for the birds at present, quality slipped before they could be moved, buyers said.

A slightly firmer undertone was reported on spring chickens from some quarters. Arrivals of this class have dropped considerably this week, it was said.

A BULGE IN PREMIUMS.

Employers' Reinsurance Has 6-Month Total of $7,948,739.

Employers' Reinsurance corporation of Kansas City placed a sizable volume of business on its books in the first half of 1947, the interim report showed today. Premiums written totaled $7,948,739, compared with $6,679,396 a year ago. In all of 1946 premiums totaled 14¾ million dollars.

The company reported net investment income on a convention statutory basis, after income taxes, was $283,872, compared with $251,388.

Directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly common dividend of 50 cents a share, payable August 15 to holders of record July 31.

Exclusive of profit from operations, the risk company's investment income for the six months amply covered the $200,000 dividend requirement on the capital stock.

Total admitted assets in the first six months rose $1,394,646 and as of June 30 were $32,542,501. Holdings of government bonds were 14 million dollars, an increase of 1 million dollars. Total value of stocks and bonds was $27,173,018 against $26,559,119 three months earlier and $25,760,999 six months ago.

The voluntary special reserve (unassigned surplus) was $2,463,008, a decrease of $134,593 for the first six months of this year.

FARMERS USE CREDIT.

Banks Supply Cash to Purchase New Equipment.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (AP)—Because of higher production costs and the availability of more equipment, farmers are currently using a larger volume of bank credit than a year ago, an annual credit survey made by the agricultural commission of the American Bankers association disclosed today.

Continuing high incomes, however, have made it possible for farmers to repay loans and mortgage credits within a comparatively short time. The 5,859,000 farm families in the United States are using this period of prosperity to improve their financial standing, the commission reported.

In 1946 banks made 5,709,287 agricultural loans to 2,544,025 customers amounting to 4,195,491,000, of which $2,104,913,000 was outstanding January 1. Banks indicated they had $7,527,315,000 additional funds for loans if farmers wanted it.

The commission identified climbing production prices and cost of equipment as a possible source of danger. It said bankers also were watching the price of farm lands, which increased 12 per cent in the last year.

Based on the 1912-14 average as 100, the average farm land price reached 159 March 1, compared with 170 at the peak of the land boom in 1920.

CANDIDATES AND TALK.

Although long expected, the Bricker endorsement of Senator Taft for the G. O. P. nomination tends to clear the atmosphere. Although it starts him off with the promise of Ohio support, it does not make Mr. Taft definitely a candidate, and he himself has said that in his forthcoming western tour he simply was going to sound out the public reaction to the G. O. P. record in Congress.

Senator Taft had much to do with that record. He was the acknowledged Senate leader on domestic questions and plowed through a deep controversy in his sponsorship of the Taft-Hartley labor bill. In his speech last night he undertook a complete defense of the recent session. Presumably his definite announcement as a candidate will hinge upon the results of the trip he has planned. If he should then hold off further, he doubtless would remain available as a candidate.

As the outlook in general now appears it is chiefly a Taft vs. Dewey contest, with Senator Vandenberg as a likely background prospect. On all counts, Governor Dewey continues to hold the edge. He has continued to make an excellent showing as the chief executive of New York state and has been fortunate because his position there kept him out of the controversial issues raging about Washington—which Senator Taft could not escape. In the meantime, Vandenberg has conducted himself admirably as the Senate's foreign policy leader and, although he may be regarded as an available candidate, he has held aloof from strictly partisan expressions.

The Stassen criticism of Dewey for not speaking out on "the issues" at this time is rather beside the point. In the first place, the issues of 1948 belong primarily to that year. Events between now and then could greatly affect the relative importance of issues, and Stassen himself has made a sorry impression by declaring they would be chiefly communism in the United States, housing and veterans' legislation. Dewey has retorted by declaring that, when others were silent, he had plenty to say in 1944 and implying he would have it to say in 1948 if the occasion demanded it of him.

Candidates and issues alike are the decisions of next year—not this. It isn't talk now that will determine who wins. It could determine who loses, as suggested by the Stassen experience of getting out in front far in advance of the time. The big consideration for the G. O. P. and for any potential candidate will be the record of action in the months ahead.

Planning a Charter Victory.

The charter petition "task force" has a full month to prime itself for its September drive in behalf of good government in Jackson County. Its objective, plan of operations and tentative target date have been lined up by the force's headquarters staff. Perhaps the biggest pre-battle detail still to be handled is the assignment of specific missions to various field units.

These units are the civic and business organizations that have volunteered to serve in the charter campaign. They will be expected to provide the more than 1,000 workers needed to round up the signatures of at least 43,000 registered voters in a door-to-door canvass. The plan of attack is sure to succeed if these groups will only furnish the squads of petition circulators required for pinpoint coverage of every precinct and ward in the county.

A whole summer of work and planning is going into next month's name-getting effort. The charter force should be impressively ready by the time of its start. A swift victory seems likely on the basis of all the advance preparations. And with this success will come the first definite step toward home rule government by charter in Jackson County.

Dinneys Speaks for Publication.

The new premier of Hungary, Lajos Dinneys, says everything is fine in his country. The outside world may suppose that the recent reorganization of the Hungarian government was brought about under Russian pressure and has left the minority Communist party in effective control of the nation's affairs. But Mr. Dinneys has told Daniel de Luce of the Associated Press that both these assumptions are incorrect. According to him, the Soviet occupation authorities have exerted no pressure and the Hungarian Communists have been "most loyal."

Now, as Mr. De Luce points out, Mr. Dinneys is well-liked and respected by the Hungarians. Moreover, he is a member of the same moderate party (the Small Landholders) to which the ousted premier, Ferenc Nagy, also belonged, and the coalition government remains in office, with no increase of Communist representation. Mr. Dinneys even seems to imply that Mr. Nagy's resignation was for the good of the state. The Small Landholders, the premier declares, have "got rid of reactionary elements."

Here is an admittedly honorable Hungarian who appears to accept the Russian thesis that Mr. Nagy was implicated in a Fascist conspiracy against his own government, and who assures the world that Hungary remains democratic in the Western sense of that term, without Communist domination or Russian interference. Why, it may be asked, should his word be questioned? There are at least three reasons. Since its reorganization, the Hungarian government has followed the international line of the Soviet Union absolutely rather than generally, as before. The Russians still refuse to furnish the British and American representatives on the Allied control commission any evidence of a conspiracy such as they contend to have existed.

Finally, Mr. Nagy has testified that as a result of "joint Russian and Communist pressure," the Hungarian people are no longer governing themselves and that those of his political associates who remain in Hungary are either "actually or virtually prisoners." Mr. Dinneys may quite possibly belong to the latter classification. In any event, Mr. Nagy speaks for publication from one side of the iron curtain, while Mr. Dinneys must talk from the other side. That simple fact today makes a whale of a difference.

Ahead With Modern Lighting.

This hot weather, night is the best time anyway, so we nominate modern lighting as the local achievement of the season.

The one possible obstacle has been removed by an experiment with another type of lighting. The park department hoped to find some way to use the low light standards already in place along the boulevards. Two blocks on Rockhill road, Fifty-third to Fifty-fifth, were chosen for experiment with 1,000 candle power lights instead of the old 400 candle power. They were equipped with reflectors to throw as much light as possible on the pavement.

Unless his eyes were conscious of the glare from powerful lights, a motorist could have driven through the test section without noticing it. Vision a block or two away was little, if any, better than it had been with the old 400 candle power lights. The main difference was on the porches and windows of adjoining houses that caught the full glare.

The city officials and others who looked at the test section compared it with Brookside boulevard a few blocks away. The contrast was too great to leave any room for argument. The Brookside pavement is bathed in diffused, white light that reveals a pedestrian two or three blocks away. It is free of glare and soothing to the eyes.

Because it gets better results with smaller lamps, modern lighting is less expensive. The 1,000 candle power lamps tried on Rockhill road eat up a tremendous amount of electricity.

Protection of the trees was the main purpose of the park department's desire to keep the old, low standards. The modern standards, twenty-five feet high, do create a problem on some of the tree-grown streets and boulevards. The light can't throw its even glow through branches, and that means considerable trimming.

This is just a problem to be solved. So far, there has been no apparent damage. But the park department is the custodian of the trees and it is very properly watchful.

To this point the progress of modern lighting has been a wonderful and a clear gain for the city. Most big public improvements also make changes that inconvenience a minority. There are kicks along with the praise. The only persons that can complain of modern lighting are holdup men.

It knocks the strain out of night driving and gives pedestrians a break. It gives the adjoining families light in front of their homes without any unwanted glare on their porches. When it has spread to enough streets Kansas City will be so light that motor car headlights can be turned off. This will be a city of light.

Hard Fight in Prospect In G. O. P. Convention

BY JAY G. HAYDEN.
(North American Newspaper Alliance.)

WASHINGTON—When more than half the Republican members of Congress, polled as to their presidential preference, refused flatly to express a choice, they reflected a growing belief in the whole Washington circle that the Republican contest next year will be the most bitterly fought and uncertain since 1920.

In that year Frank O. Lowden and General Leonard Wood, closely matched and far ahead of other contestants, killed each other off and enabled Warren G. Harding, a decided dark horse, to pick up the prize. The prospective front runners this time are Governor Dewey of New York and Senator Taft of Ohio but, as was the case in 1920, many delegates scattered among other candidates make it improbable that any candidate will win in the first ten ballots.

Here are some of the credibly established straws leading to this opinion.

Dewey generally is rated the best bet, but this is mainly because of his firm hold on New York's big delegation and because of public opinion polls which, for six years, have almost invariably given him a long lead. On the basis of organizational strength—meaning the preference of party wheelhorses, who in the past usually have controlled the selection of nonprimary delegates—Taft is placed by experienced politicians on a par with, perhaps even stronger than, Dewey. It is difficult to see how either of these men can enter the convention with as many as 400 votes, in a total of about 1,100.

Gov. Earl Warren has assured that he will enter the presidential primary in California, in order to tie up its fifty-three delegates, and if neighboring states chose to adopt him as a sort of all-western favorite son, Westerners say he is likely to start with around 100 convention votes. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, actively campaigning for more than a year, is expected to have at least fifty but not more than 100 votes.

Vandenberg of Michigan, Green of Illinois, Halleck of Indiana, Saltonstall or Lodge of Massachusetts, Baldwin of Connecticut and Wherry of Nebraska are likely to tie up among them 250 delegates—nearly a quarter of the convention. There probably will be other favorite sons.

Even Governor Dewey, the one candidate whose friends have been talking of a bandwagon victory, is said to be shifting his tactics on the assumption that the convention battle may be long and drawn out. Correspondents with Dewey in the West report that instead of hunting for all possible first-ballot votes, as he did in 1940 and 1944, Dewey is saying now that he wants no delegate at the beginning who is not prepared to stick to the finish.

Last but not least of the factors counted as tightening the Republican race is the word coming from Kansas that General Eisenhower's transfer to a university presidency next January will signalize his political availability.

Because they are confident of winning, not only the Republican aspirants may be expected to fight harder, but opinion among the delegates as to just what kind of President this man or that man would make is likely to exert greater weight. The latter state of mind is apt to go hard with pussyfooters, whoever they may be.

LIFE'S MEANING.

Ivan Bunin in "The Well of Days" (Alfred A. Knopf).

I saw that life (my life or any other) was a succession of days and nights, of toil and rest, of meetings and talks, of pleasures and nuisances, sometimes called events; that it was a confused accumulation of impressions, pictures and images, of which only the most insignificant part (and even that heaven knows why and how) remained with us; that it was a ceaseless flow, never stopping for one moment, of incoherent feelings and thoughts, of confused recollections of the past and vague anticipations of the future; and withal, something which seemed to contain a certain kernel, a certain meaning and purpose, something extremely important which it is quite impossible to put into words, and, connected therewith, an everlasting anticipation: anticipation not merely of happiness, of its peculiar fullness, but also of something else in which, once it came, that essence, that meaning, would at last suddenly reveal itself and be grasped.

TYPEWRITER ILLUMINATION.

A typewriter lamp, recently patented, is a tubular fluorescent light held over the machine on an adjustable stand, the tube being about the length of the typewriter platen. The lamp can light up the typing, show through a stencil, and illuminate the page being copied.

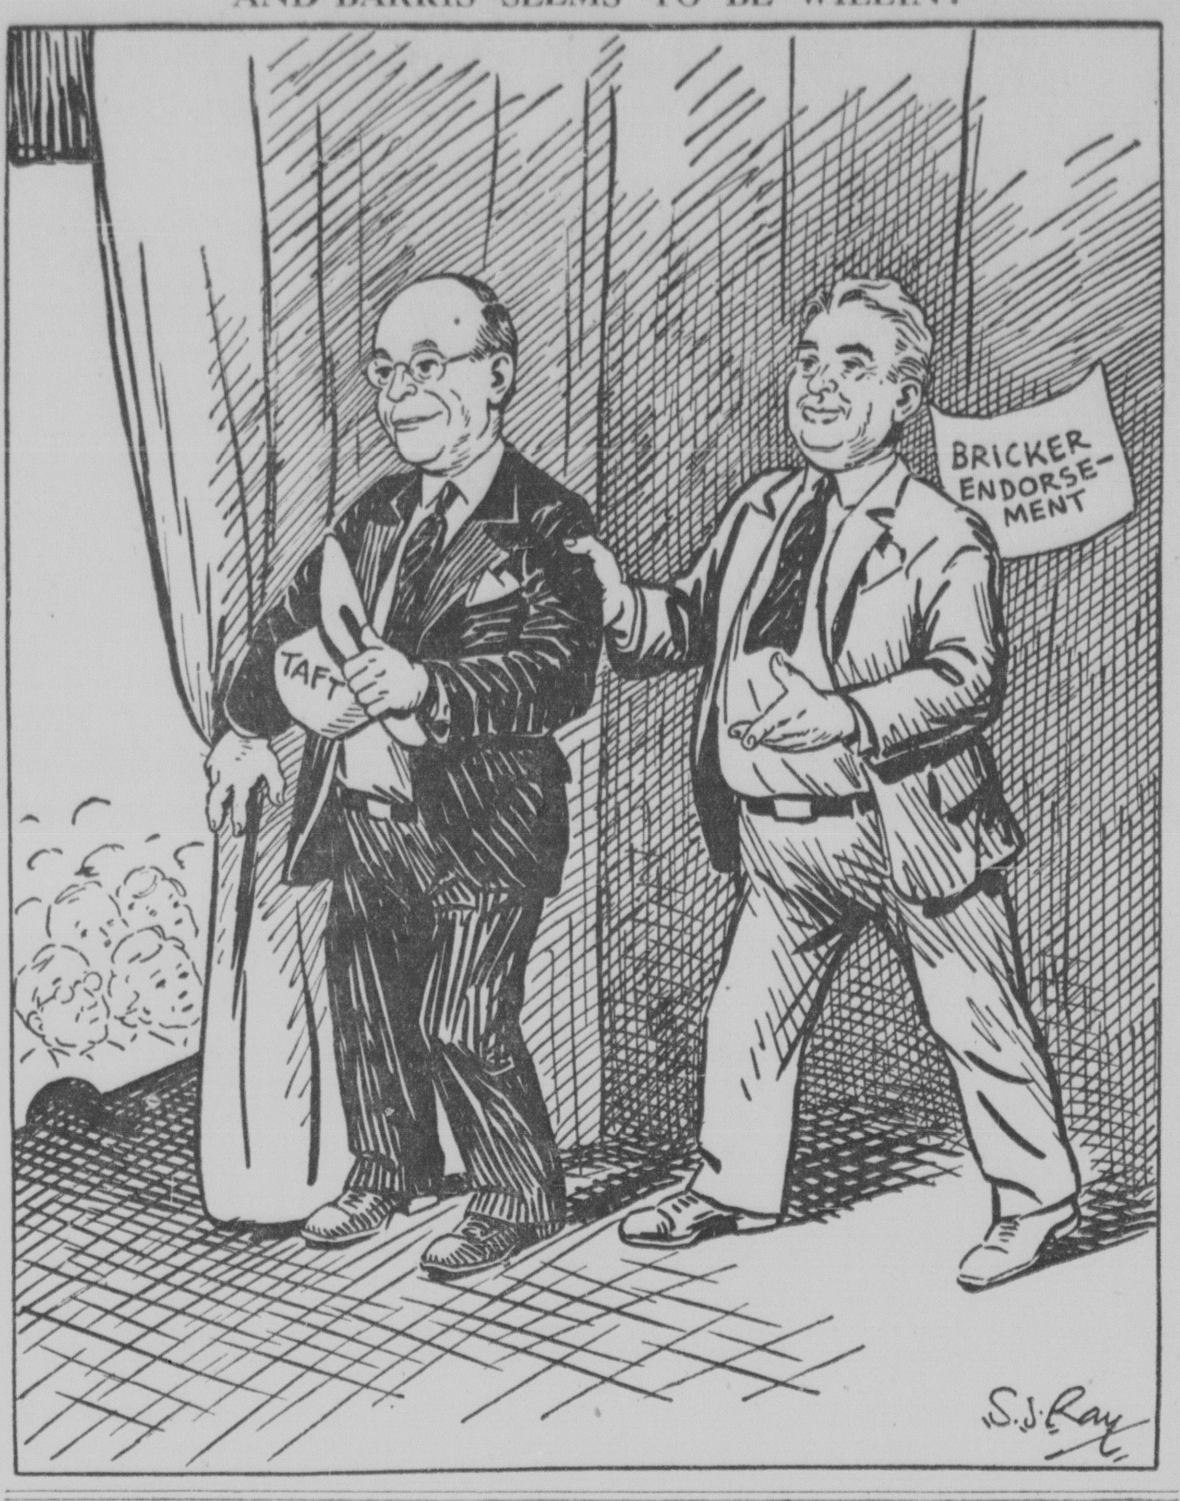
AND BARKIS SEEMS TO BE WILLIN'.

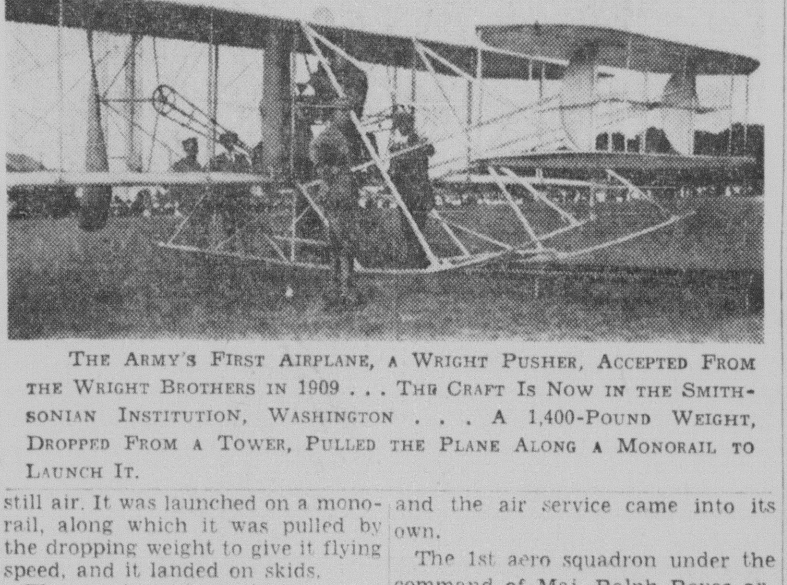


TREMENDOUS AIR FORCES OF WORLD WAR II GREW FROM HUMBLE START 40 YEARS AGO

The Army's First Plane, Provided by the Wright Brothers for the New Aviation Division of the Signal Corps in 1909, Was Jerked Off the Ground by a 1,400-Pound Weight—By 1914 the Appropriation for Air Service Had Grown Only to $600,000.

FOUR decades ago the army had to drop a 1,400-pound weight from a scaffold to jerk its air power into the wild blue yonder. Today, having progressed from lead weights to turbo-jets, and from a division of the signal corps to imminent cabinet equality with the army and navy, the air forces are celebrating the completion of forty years of shenanigans and serious research.

The aviation division of the signal corps was set up August 1, 1907, but its first plane was not delivered until 1909. Then the army had to swallow a bitter pill; it had to learn to fly from civilians. The instructors were the Wright brothers, Wilbur and Orville, who had sold the plane to the army and threw in their services as teachers. The plane met specifications that it must carry two passengers, have a range of 125 miles and fly forty miles an hour in still air. It was launched on a monorail, along which it was pulled by the dropping weight to give it flying speed, and it landed on skids.



THE ARMY'S FIRST AIRPLANE, A WRIGHT PUSHER, ACCEPTED FROM THE WRIGHT BROTHERS IN 1909 . . . THE CRAFT IS NOW IN THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, WASHINGTON . . . A 1,400-POUND WEIGHT, DROPPED FROM A TOWER, PULLED THE PLANE ALONG A MONORAIL TO LAUNCH IT.

The star insignia of the air forces was designed seven years later by R. S. Knowlson, now a member of The Star's staff. Knowlson was serving with an air unit of the New York national guard at Mineola, N. Y., when a major asked him to paint some sort of identification mark on the unit's aircraft. The white star with red center on a blue background finally resulted. The design was changed to its present form, with white bars extending from the star, when fliers and anti-aircraft gunners in the Pacific war confused it with the Japanese red circle insignia.

Barnstorming Memories.

Most of the early fliers learned their trade in the army, but the rich tradition of wild experiences they built came later when they were flying for profit instead of Uncle Sam. The army was particular about its airplanes even then. The repercussions would have been felt through channels all the way to Washington if Cadet Brown had crossed the control wires in Cadet Smith's airplane, so that left rudder and aileron were really right rudder and aileron, a trick common among barnstormers. The wind and weather pilots had to be alert enough to feel the crossed controls as they gathered speed down the cow pasture, or suffer a rude awakening on their first turn.

There is none of that nowadays, although an occasional dreamy-eyed student finds himself in the air with ailerons jammed by safety locks put in by the mechanic to prevent wind damage to the surfaces on the ground.

The pioneers operated perforce with only the crudest instruments, cut off from communication with the ground. This gave them a feeling of belonging to another world than that inhabited by the prosaic earth-bound slug, but it didn't help to get the job done. The army's first aerial foray on the Mexican border in 1916 was a miserable flop. The eight airplanes involved were lost in forced landings or damaged beyond repair in landings at the windy home base.

When war broke out in Europe in 1914 Congress had just appropriated $600,000 for the air service, a whopping sum in those days. Aircraft were developed specifically for military use, machine-guns were tested in flight, and various cumbersome signalling methods were worked out for air-ground liaison.

The liaison problems still exist today, in the opinion of thousands of infantrymen who have had the wits scared out of them by fighter pilots with briefing a few hours old.

French Suggest Big Force.

On April 6, 1917, the United States entered the war with an air force of 131 officers, only seventy-eight of them pilots, and slightly more than 1,000 enlisted men, divided into seven squadrons. May 23 of that year a startling request came from the French government for 5,000 pilots, 50,000 ground men and 4,500 aircraft, to be furnished by early 1918. This time Congress appropriated 672 million dollars, and the air service came into its own.

The 1st aero squadron under the command of Maj. Ralph Royce arrived in France in the fall of 1917 and was followed by eight other squadrons and balloon companies. The fixed balloon was very popular then for observation purposes, and remained in the air forces for many years after the war. It had been used along the Potomac, in the War Between the States.

The A. E. F. pilots were trained in French aircraft under seasoned French pilots while awaiting the arrival of new models from America. On April 12, 1918, the fliers had their first combat action when the 1st aero was attacked while on a reconnaisance mission. Two days later the first victory came for the Americans over Toul when Lieut. Alan F. Winslow and Lieut. Douglas Campbell shot down two German fighters.

By 1918 the Allies had adopted a synchronizer for machine guns firing through the propeller arc, designed by the Germans, although the most popular installation on the S. E. 5 was a Lewis gun mounted on the center section of the upper wing, firing over the propeller. Neither of the planes most used, the S. E. 5 and the S. P. A. D. (or Spad, as it was called), was an American design. The former was British, the latter French. These two and the French Nieuport models were the mainstay of the Allied fighter squadrons throughout the later part of the war.

Little Fear of "Archie."

Bomber squadrons were effective in daylight raids on railyards and troop concentrations, relatively safe from the inaccurate anti-aircraft fire of the time. For some reason the ack-ack was called "archie" by the pilots then, "flak" in the last war.

One flight of the 96th bombing squadron fell into enemy hands ignominiously when it made a landing on Coblenz airfield, apparently under the impression that it was some place on the Allied side of the lines. This sort of thing was not unknown in World War II, although the mistakes were usually confined to single aircraft.

When the war ended in 1918 there were forty-five United States squadrons with 767 pilots, 1,481 observers, 23 gunners and 740 airplanes. American aviators had flown more than 35,000 hours over enemy lines at a loss of only half of the confirmed enemy losses.

In the years after the war aircraft development continued, but was not spectacular. The army embarked on a disastrous program of lighter-than-air experiments, in which several big airships were lost and many airmen died.

In 1921, General Billy Mitchell's disputed statement of the importance of airpower over seapower was proved off the Virginia coast. Seven Martin bombers sank the heavily armored German battleship Ostfriesland in seven minutes.

West Point of the Air.

Formal flight training was resumed at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., in June, 1922, after a lapse following the armistice, and it has been turning out the glamour boys ever since. After the establishment at San Antonio of Randolph Field, the West Point of the Air, Kelly was used as an advanced school and near-by Brooks Field was made a lighter-than-air base.

The air service competed in air races, endurance flights and transcontinental dashes, perfecting techniques and equipment as much as a rather limited budget allowed. These were the days of the old Martin B-10, the heaviest and fastest (200 miles and hour) airplane in the world.

A portent of the air war ahead came in 1937, when the first B-17 was delivered to the air forces. Later to become the backbone of the war over Europe, the planes were given exhausting long distance and altitude flights by the army, and many modifications had been made when the ships finally went into action from England.

On VJ-day the air forces had 2½ million men and 85,000 airplanes. These figures have been greatly reduced by the trimming job undertaken since the war, and most of the aircraft will shortly be obsolete. The development of jet engines and rocket propulsion will make the P-47s and P-51s as old-fashioned as the latter did the World War I Jenny. Tests of the XS-1, the rocket propelled airplane, are steadily pushing the speed limits toward the supersonic wall, beyond which may lie a strange aerodynamic world, and jet aircraft are almost at the point when they may be used commercially in large numbers.

Too, the time may not be far off when the smartly uniformed fly boys will do their flying in cushioned splendor from offices on the ground, using radio and radar controls. What a far cry from the stern-jawed, riding breeches and puttees-clad aviator of forty years ago!

A-Bomb Element Found in Nature

BY THOMAS R. HENRY.
(Science Editor North American Newspaper Alliance.)

WASHINGTON—The synthetic element, plutonium, which is the basic explosive material of the atomic bomb, now has been found to exist in a natural form, but in inconceivablly minute amounts.

It is found to the extent of one part in 100 trillion in pitchblende, the mineral from which most uranium is extracted. It never would have been found had not the precise chemical properties of the element been determined in the atomic bomb research.

This has been revealed by Dr. Glen L. Seaborg and Dr. Emilie Segre of the University of California, discoverers of the new synthetic elements heavier than uranium—americum and curium.

Plutonium must be manufactured in one of the great uranium piles, such as those at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash. But its existence in nature, however minute the quantity, establishes the fact that the earth itself acts as a "pile" on a small scale. Wherever atoms of the rare isotope of uranium, U-235, exist, one of them is exploded now and then. One of the results is to transform some of the ordinary uranium into plutonium.

Otherwise the extremely short life of the element would have made it impossible for any to have remained in the earth. Whatever the amount in the original material of the planet torn loose from the sun, it would have disintegrated completely in a few weeks.

The two University of California chemists also reveal the existence of an isotope of neptunium, the synthetic element which is a transition stage from uranium to plutonium, which has a half-life of more than 2 million years instead of a few seconds, as is the case with the greater part of the element manufactured. (The term "half-life" means that one-half of any definite amount will disappear in 2 million years; then half of what is left will disappear in the next 2 million years, and so on.)

This isotope is of great value, the discoverers say, because it is produced in measurable amounts in the uranium piles and makes possible a comprehensive chemical study of neptunium. It appears to be closely allied to the so-called "rare earth" elements—as do also americum and curium.

They have also found a form of the new synthetic element americum, which has a half-life of 500 years, compared to one month for the more plentiful form. Like the first discovered, it is an emitter of alpha particles, essentially the nucleii of helium atoms. Both the new elements are produced by bombarding plutonium with whole helium atoms.

It is highly unlikely, the investigators say in a report just issued, that either americum or curium exist in nature. Unlike the parent, plutonium, they are entirely the results of synthesis which can take place only in the laboratory. It is possible, however, that the earth might contain small amounts of the long-lived neptunium.

At present the two new transuranic elements are purely of scientific interest. They do not, so far as is known, fit into any program of atomic bomb or energy development.

McNear Railroad Is Thriving Now

BY LAWRENCE PERRY.

NEW YORK.—Legal and economic green lights now shine all along the Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad right of way. The man chiefly instrumental in bringing this about—Russel Coulter, successor as president to the late George P. McNear, jr.—came to this city from Washington, where he collected $2,752,865.66 from the Office of Defense Transportation. The money was earned by the road when under government operation from 1942 to 1945.

While here the young administrator is busy talking to prospective shippers and, no doubt, casting a glance back at what he has accomplished since he assumed office on May 1 last. In the brief time of his administration he has unraveled many of the snarls which involved the system, and is still smoothing out the aftermath of labor difficulties, at the height of which George McNear was assassinated last March 10. And, in other ways, Coulter is setting the T. P. & W. on its feet.

Coulter was chief traffic officer of the Frisco, having worked up to the position from a clerk on that road, when approached with an offer of the presidency by trustees of the McNear estate, who still own the T. P. & W. He refused to take over until the labor situation was settled.

"Now," he said, "the labor personnel, some 375 employees, have got what they wanted—and what I wanted—standard wages. In a city of more than 100,000 like Peoria, you will grasp that the labor difficulty bit deeply, and there is still much to be done in eliminating past rancor and getting everyone to pull together. But I think I am making progress."

While the Toledo, Peoria & Western is a minor road, it bears relation to the great ones because it serves as a bridge between the East and West—between the Burlington, the Rock Island and Santa Fe in the West, and the New York Central and the Pennsylvania in the East. So, largely speaking, the Peoria railway is not underestimated by the big fellows.

"You know," Coulter said, "we move nothing but freight over our line. As I say to people, while it may not be so long as the Pennsylvania, it is just as wide. It is only a dream yet, but I hope to bring about a situation where the big roads will find it worth while to run their transcontinental trains, some of them, over our tracks. It will mean a short cut for them and I will try to bring it about—sometime."

As to the several million dollars turned over to the Peoria road by the ODT, Mr. Coulter had nothing to say except that "We can use it very nicely."

He was on the West coast when the McNear tragedy occurred and thus is no more familiar with the crime than any newspaper reader.

"All I can say," he said, "is that we still do not know the reasons for his assassination or who the murderers were."

MISS HELEN LANG.

Who now remembers Miss Helen Lang,
The music teacher who loved to bang
Beethoven loud on the listening air
When windows were open everywhere?

In the hot suburban afternoon
Both leaves and people hung in a swoon,
Limp on the tree and limp in the swing,
Except for Miss Helen Lang, poor thing!

"Her piano keys are the keys to hell,"
My mother said. "She plays very well."
Answered Aunt Ella to be perverse;
Aunt Marion's "Lordy!" was like a curse.

My aunts are dead and so is my mother;
I suppose that I and my sisters and brother
Alone remember Miss Helen Lang
Who loved Beethoven played with a bang.

By buildings reared to please the debonair;
The High Rent District it is often called,
And many dwellers out-of-place are there.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

BY MARY O'HARA

CHAPTER XLII—(Continued).

"I FEEL swell," she said. "It's wonderful what glands can do, either to you or for you." She put her hand in her pocket and Rob's hand reached out even before he saw what it was. She handed him a candy bar. "Here's some energy for you."

Rob's big white teeth bit into the chewy chocolate.

Let him eat that, said Nell to herself, and sweeten himself a bit before I break the news to him.

"How's Penny?" he asked with a full mouth.

"She's fine. Miss Sartoris has her out walking."

"Kind of gives you a holiday to keep the nurse, doesn't it?"

Nell nodded and two dimples showed in her cheeks. Nell had taken on ten pounds. The dark shadows were gone from under her eyes, there was a natural pink in cheeks and lips.

"We'll keep her a while yet," said Rob. "Have you got another of those things?"

Nell fished in the other pocket. "Aren't you about through work for today?"

"We've got to finish this. I think it'll rain tonight."

Gus, on the top of the wagon, gave the yell which meant to move up to the next hay pile. Tommy and Big Joe moved forward even before Rob picked up the reins. The old wagon rocked and creaked. From it came the smell of the sweet hay, the pungency of the horsemint which had been cut from the creek banks, the sweat of the men. Nell moved along beside it without troubling to unhook her leg.

When Rob stopped by the next pile and the men began to pitch, Nell said, "Got a wire from Ken."

Rob's face changed expression quickly. He looked at her. She nodded her head smiling, "He's got 'em!"

"Both of them?"

"Yes."

Rob let out a yell which made the horses jump.

"Look out!" exclaimed Nell, grabbing Redwing's reins.

"Well, that ends my troubles," said Rob with a big grin.

"And vindicates your honor," said Nell smiling. "Now, you can wire Mr. Greenway that you've done what you said you'd do and he can come and get his million-dollar filly."

"Where is the kid?" asked Rob. "Where was the wire sent from?"

"From Beaufort," said Nell, "a night letter, sent last night."

"Beaufort," said Rob thoughtfully. "Why, that isn't fifty miles away! He'll be here any hour."

Nell nodded, and her eyes roved over the field. Something in her expression arrested Rob's attention.

"Anything else in the wire?" he asked.

"Well, yes," admitted Nell. "Something that has me worried."

"Shoot," said Rob with narrow eyes.

"The wire said, Am riding Jewel. Leading Flicka and Sparks. Could not catch Thunderhead. He is following. Look out for Banner and mares."

* * * * *

For a long minute Rob stared at her, the smile leaving his face. And then, under his breath, he expressed his feelings by a burst of his best language. Nell appeared to be admiring the scenery. He then fell silent again, thinking, and presently said, "Isn't that the damndest?"

"It certainly is," said Nell, and she wanted to add, "What are you going to do?" But at such moments she was in the category of the boys, who knew that they would get their heads snapped off if they asked questions.

Rob's eyes roved over the horizon as if he expected to see the little cavalcade appear any moment. Then he looked at his watch. Then he studied the weather. Then he climbed down from the hay wagon.

"You get up there and drive, Nell, will you? And give me your horse."

"What are you going to do?"

"I'm going up to the Saddle Back and bring in Banner and the mares."

Nell slid off her horse and stepped up on the hub of the wheel. Rob gripped her riding pants by the seat and gave her a lift. Gus leaned over and took her hand.

Rob yelled the news to Gus.

"Yiminy Crickets'" said Gus.

"He might be here tonight or tomorrow early," said Rob. "And there's no telling—Thunderhead may be ahead of him. Once that horse gets close to home, he may come along on his own."

"Might be up there on the Saddle Back now," said Nell grinning down pleasantly at him as she took the reins in her hands.

Robs' blue eyes flashed at her as he called to Gus, "Get it all in, Gus, and get the tarps on before you come in tonight. It's going to rain."

"Ya, boss."

While Rob lengthened the stirrups on Nell's saddle his eyes glanced over the field, checking what every man was doing.

"Where will you put them?" asked Nell.

"I'll put Banner in the stable."

Nell nodded. "He won't like it but that's the safest. If you just put him in the corral, Thunderhead would jump into it and murder him."

"And I'll put the mares and colts in the Six Foot pasture. He can jump into it and do whatever he has a mind to, but they can't jump out."

"Are they all bred?" asked Nell.

"Every one of 'em." There was vicious satisfaction in Rob's voice. "None of that wild-devil blood in my horses, thank you!" He swung up into the saddle, and Nell watched the way her quiet horse gathered himself and began to prance and champ the bit as he received the charges of Rob's powerful will.

Rob put his heels into the horse's side and Redwing jumped. He was off. Rob's head turned over his shoulder, "Be careful, Nell—"

"Goodby," she yelled to the figure that was flying down the field.

Rob's rage grew by the minute. That he should have to leave his work when they were pressed for time and every man was needed, that he should have to go out to the Saddle Back late in the day and round up the brood and take that grueling ride with them down the mountain when the day's work should have been ended and he should have been sitting in his chair, feet up, a highball in his hand. Might have known Ken would do something like this.

"But what else could he have done?" asked Nell at dinner that night when she had pacified Pearl for dinner being so late, when she had combed the hay out of her hair, tucked Penny into bed, and when Rob was washed and tidy but no less angry. "If he simply couldn't catch him, what could he do? Because the stallion would follow the mares, and Ken had to bring the mares, didn't he?"

"He had a gun, didn't he?" said Rob coldly.

"Rob, that's silly."

"Not at all. It was understood this summer, over there at Westgate, that since the stallion could not be caught, he'd have to be killed. Ken agreed to it."

"It wouldn't have been agreed to if I'd been there," said Nell so belligerently that Rod had to turn his face away to hide his amusement.

"Well, it'll have to be agreed to by everyone," said he, as they left the table. "He'll be caught and gelded, or he'll be shot. We're not going on year after year with this nuisance."

They composed the telegram to Beaver Greenway and sent it off.

* * * * *

"Be easy on him now—" was the last thing Nell said to Rob when they saw Ken leading his cavalcade up the road, across the Green and on up to the stables. Thunderhead was not with him. There was no sign of Thunderhead.

But there was too much seething in Rob's mind for him to hold in long. That evening, when Jewel had been stabled safely in the cowbarn with her foal, out of reach of Banner, when Flicka and Sparks had been put out to pasture to forget their responsibilities, to rest, to roll and ease their tired muscles, when supper had been eaten and Ken's story told, Rob burst out.

"Why the devil did you have to wait till the last minute to wire me and let me know what I was up against?"

"Because," said Ken dully, "I kept thinking that I'd get him yet. I kept trying all the time."

"What's the last time you saw him?"

"Back there—before we got to Beaufort. I heard some horses neighing far away. That's when he disappeared and I haven't seen him since."

"Stealing some more mares!" said Rob savagely, "I'll be hearing about that next!"

Ken made no answer. It was what he himself had been dreading.

They were in the living-room. The night was cool, a fire was burning on the hearth. Ken sat in an armchair, one long thin leg thrown over the arm, a position his father often took. Rob was unable to sit down. He stormed up and down the room, biting the stem of his pipe.

"Look at you now!" The words burst out of him. "This is the way it is, summer after summer. You're a wreck! You spend your vacation wearing yourself out, then go back to school to rest? I suppose that's the idea!".

Ken's drawn brown face, ringed under the eyes as Nell's had been, was turned over his shoulder to the fire. He made no response to his father—did not feel like making any.

Too tired, thought Nell, then, aloud, "Ken, you said you kept trying to catch him right up to the end. In the daytime, you mean?"

"Nighttime too," said Ken in the same dull voice without looking at her. "Whenever I'd hear him near, I'd go out with the halter and rope."

"How long ago was it that he first came up to you?"

"Oh, about ten days ago, I guess—I just don't remember exactly."

Rob bent a long, furious gaze on him and then glanced at Nell. She met his eyes. Ten days, they both thought. He hasn't slept for ten days. Rob started again his long plunging stride down the room and back.

"And what's it all for?" he roared. "A horse—a good-for-nothing brute who has been a pain in the neck ever since he was born—" he continued with Thunderhead's biography, rehearsing every disappointment, every outrage.

Ken heard him without listening. It made no difference what he said. He had done the best he could, and now it was over. Let him rave. His thoughts slipped to Carey. He had brought her filly back for her . . . thank heaven . . . yes . . . he had done what he said he would do . . . Carey . . . she would be coming now . . .

Rob's roaring voice mingled with the crackling of the fire and the sound of the wind in the chimney. Kim and Chaps were lying on the cushions near the hearth. Pauly was on the davenport beside Nell. The puppy, Willy, was on her lap. Home . . . oh, what did it all matter . . . home . . . bed . . . sleep . . .

His head sank lower on his shoulder and his eyes closed. Nell watching him., smiled, for she saw that he was fast asleep. Rob continued his tirade, striding up and down the room. A good thing, she said to herself, smoothing the puppy's little domed head, let him get it all out of his system while Ken's asleep.

At last Rob stooped over Ken and looked at him. "I'll be damned!" he exclaimed. "He hasn't heard a word I've been saying."

Nell said nothing.

"Look at him, Nell."

"I'm looking," said Nell without moving.

Neither did Rob move. There was a long silence. Then Rob put his hand on Ken's shoulder and shook him gently. "Ken!" he said. There was no reply. Ken's head rolled on his shoulders.

"You'll have to shake him harder than that," said Nell, "if you want him to wake up. Remember he hasn't slept for ten days."

Rob put his pipe carefully in an ash tray, then leaned over Ken, gathered up the long spindly legs as he would gather up a colt, finally got the boy in his arms.

"He's almost as big as you," said Nell smiling.

"He does't weigh anything," said Rob gruffly, looking down at the tired face that hung over his shoulder. "I'll bet he's lost fifteen pounds on this trip."

"He did what he set out to do," said Nell shortly, and Rob carried the sleeping boy out of the room and up the stairs, walking softly, as if the sound of a step might wake him.

CHAPTER XLIII.

Halfway up the Saddle Back, an ancient pine thrust its gnarled trunk up through a split and caverned rock to spread wide branches over the hillside.

BURGLARS ON JOB.

Topeka, Kas.—"I'll leave this for the burglars," Marcus Reeves, manager of a lumber company, said jokingly as he stuck $2.65 from a late sale into a desk drawer rather than reopen a locked safe. The next morning burglars had taken the $2.65, leaving a note: "Kilroy was here."

SLAUGHTER STEPPED UP.

Juarez, Mexico—Last reports from the hoof and mouth disease quarantine area in Mexico shows the slaughter of 18,000 animals, of which half were cattle and the remainder sheep, goats, and hogs. Slaughter will be stepped up to 1,000 animals a day as equipment becomes available for disposal of the carcasses.

A RUT HARD TO BREAK

MONRONEY SAYS CONGRESS IS ONLY ABOUT HALF STREAMLINED

Oklahoman Believes Point Is Reached Where Reorganization Plan Must Be Used Completely or Abandoned Entirely.

By Douglas B. Cornell.

Washington, Aug., 1.(AP)—Representative Monroney of Oklahoma, Democrat, and author of the legislative reorganization law, estimated today that it has been about fifty per cent effective in "streamlining" Congress.

The session just ended was the first to operate under the act.

Terming the law about half successful and half "flop" Monroney added:

"Now we've either got to carry it out fully or abandon and repeal it."

The Oklahoman said the most conspicuous effort to use it was in setting a legislative budget.

"That was completely a flop," he continued. "Not the idea, but the way it was used."

WASTE TIME ARGUING.

The law says Congress must work out its own program for appropriations and spending, in the light of prospective government income and presidential recommendations.

This is to be done by a special committee made up of senators and representatives from the appropriating and taxing committees of both branches.

What happened last session was that Congress got a 37,500-million-dollar budget from President Truman and never agreed on one of its own. The House voted to trim 6,000 million dollars from the presidential total, the Senate 4,500 million dollars. They never compromised. And Republicans and Democrats are still arguing about just how much the budget was cut.

To make the plan work, Monroney said, Congress should have experts working with government agencies during the summer and fall as they work out their budgets for the coming year.

Then, when the House appropriations committee is ready to start operating, and the legislative budget committee meets, the experts could have ready-made plans for large, medium or small cuts.

SOME CONSOLIDATION MADE.

But Monroney said he sees little chance this will be done.

Despite all the talk of too many subcommittees, Monroney said, the biggest success of the reorganization law has been in the direction of committee consolidation.

Compared with 1945, he said, the number of all congressional committees—joint, regular, special and subcommittees—is thirty-two less.

He predicted that many of the subcommittees set up this year will wither away as it is found they have little to do.

"We couldn't get rid of all the extraneous growth with one cut of the scythe," he said. "But we did remove a lot of overlapping and duplication."

Monroney classed as an outright disregard of the law a decision of the House appropriations committee against public hearings on money bills. These hearings were held behind closed doors as in the past and the testimony made public when each appropriation bill was handed to the House.

The law also says that every House member "shall" be elected to one committee.

But Monroney noted that four members—Speaker Martin, Republican Leader Halleck, Democratic Leader Rayburn and Representative Marcantonio—were not elected to membership on any committee. Monroney says the three leaders probably should have been exempted in the law.

As for Marcantonio, the only member of a minor party in Congress, both Republicans and Democrats declined responsibility for giving him a committee assignment. Each side said the other should do it. Neither did.
